RINGSIDE

JOHN L. SULLIVAN ONCE TRIED HIS HAND at being a boxing instructor. But it didn't work. When asked why, he replied, "I tried it once. A husky young man took one lesson from me and went home a little the worse for wear. When he came around the second time he said, 'Mr. Sullivan, it was my idea to learn enough about boxing from you to be able to lick a certain young fellow I've got it in for. But I've changed my mind," he continued. "If it's all the same to you, Mr. Sullivan, I'll just send this fellow down here to take the rest of my lessons for me."

We, too, at Ring live and learn. Sometimes painfully. As we put this, out 18th issue out, we have come to appreciate certain verities about you, our readers. From the avalanche of mail we have received over the past year-and-a-half, we find that you like certain features and find fault with others. We are proud of the fact that the preponderance of mail favors our stands on given subjects—subjects like our opposition to the WBC and WBA ratings; current stories on up-and-coming boxers as well as the in-depth pieces on headliners. And, it is satisfying to know that most of our nostalgia has been appreciated by young and old-timer alike.

However, there are certain areas we have overlooked, but which you, the reader, have not. Those areas include a lack of material on West Coast favorites, too few stories on Latino boxers and our failure to give the amateurs their just due. All of these are mere oversights on our part and will be remedied in the months to come.

Otherwise, as the Great John L. said, you can just "send the (other) fellow(s) down here to take the rest of (our) lessons . . ."

This issue of The Ring is the biggest in our 59-year history and we are justifiably proud of it. And of our achievements during the past six decades.

Here you will find a detailed delisting of 5,000 current fighters, a review of the year and our selections for "The Fighter of the Year," "The Fight, Round, Upset, and Fighter Making the Most Progress of the Year." But wait, as Jimmy Durante was wont to say, "You ain't seen nothing yet!" For, together with these time-honored features we have also included, with tongue in cheek (although in whose cheek it is hard to decipher at this magic moment), such backhanded awards as "The Worst Fights of the Year," "The Biggest Busts of the Year," "The Worst Decisions of the Year," "The Biggest Punches of the Year," and something facetiously called "The Flyswatter—or Couldn't Break an Egg—Award." We think you'll enjoy reading these new "Awards" as much as we did in putting them together.

And, as you have noticed by now, we have used artwork on the cover for the first time in our eighteen months, a throwback to the "good ol' days" of Ring. Time was when every Ring cover was literally "pretty as a picture." And, taking nourishment from your overwhelming response to our resurrection of the old Ring logo—starting back there with the October, 1979, issue—we will now use such artwork on our special year-end issue, once a year, every year.

This, then, is our special year-end issue. In the word of Harry Golden, "Enjoy"!

ROUND ONE

LICENSES DO NOT A PRISON MAKE DEPT.

HERE'S A FIRST FOR THE STATE OF Michigan: Robert Reynolds, a lightweight with a successful amateur career, received his professional boxing license last July from the Michigan License and Regulations Board. What's so unusual about that, you may wonder? Reynolds was incarcerated at the time—and is the first in the state's boxing history to gain professional boxing status while in prison.

THE BIG MAC ATTACK

A LOT OF FOLKS MAY SAY THAT Gerry Cooney fights hamburgers—or that he makes hamburger out of his opponents. Well, now the 6'6" biggie can take on all of it he wants—at McDonald's, that is, for he was recently given the McDonald's "Big Mac Biggie" Award. The award is given not for disposing of ring opponents, but for community service. In Cooney's case, it was a tribute for contributions to youth development in his hometown and other charitable works.

When asked if he was trying to change the image of heavyweight boxing, Cooney replied in his soft, puppydog voice, "No, I just want to be me."

The ceremony took place in a midtown Manhattan McDonald's not far from Madison Square Garden, where, incidentally, his managers were busily putting together the upcoming bout with former champion Ken Norton.

Cooney undoubtedly would like to see Norton served up with two all-beef patties, special sauce, pickles, lettuce, cheese, onions on a sesame seed bun.

IF YOU LIKED THE FIGHT, YOU'LL LOVE THE MOVIE

WHAT DO BOXING AND HANDball have in common? Well, for one thing, they have a man named Jimmy Jacobs. Jacobs, who may be known by some as one of boxing's top managers — managing such fistic talent as Wilfred Benitez and Kallie Knoetze — and by others who are familiar with the Guiness Book of World Records as "The greatest four-wall handball player of all time," has served boxing for many years in yet another invaluable way.

Jacobs, who became interested in boxing at an early age, indoctrinated, as are many, by his father, soon became interested in the filming aspect of boxing and began collecting films in 1943. But he soon transcended being a mere collector and began buying the actual copyrights to the films, often traveling all over the world to buy rare films and to do the actual filming of many fights. He became an unofficial curator, spending vast amounts of time — not to mention money — restoring many of the great old films like Corbett-Fitzsimmons, Gans-McGovern, Papke-Ketchel, Nelson-Wolgast and many more.

Today, he owns 90% of all fight films in existence. And without the dedication and care of one man, many of the great fights might have been lost, the films destroyed or damaged beyond repair.

Thanks to Jimmy, all we need is the popcorn!

WIN ONE FOR THE ROCKY

CAMEROON-BORN LIGHT HEAVYweight Louie Pergaud is now being considered for a part in Rocky III—the next in the Sylvester series where Rocky loses his heavyweight crown to a black fighter he eventually winds up managing. Pergaud, who lives in Berlin, speaks four languages and could easily handle the part. Besides, says his real-life manager, Mickey Duff, "We bloody well need the win!"

ON THE MOVIE SCENE

BASED ON THE SUCCESS OF ROCKY and Rocky II, and, more recently, Raging Bull, it looks like we're in for a slew of prize-fighting flicks. For example, Rocky Graziano, actor Richard Harris and the co-producer of Raging Bull, Peter Savage, have been discussing their next venture, A Slice of Life. Graziano will portray a down-and-out ex-boxer who wants to do away with himself when he finds he can't make a comeback.

Production is set to begin this month on the docks of Hoboken, N.J.; the spot, you may recall, where young Marlon Brando got off to a fighting start in the all-time fight film classic On the Waterfront.

EX-CHAMP DeJESUS CHARGED

FORMER WBC LIGHTWEIGHT champion Esteban DeJesus, the only man ever to knock down Roberto Duran—on two different occasions—and until the recent Leonard-Duran fiasco, the only man to have beaten Duran, was charged with first-degree murder in connection with the Thanksgiving Day shooting of 17-year-old Roberto Cintron Gonzalez. The shooting took place at a red light after an apparent argument between three teenagers in one car and DeJesus in another car. DeJesus was also charged with two counts of attempted murder, because the two other teenagers could have been hit by the three bullets fired.

DeJesus, had recently retired from boxing after losing to Saoul Mamby last July in Minneapolis. Ironically, the shooting took place just two days after Roberto Duran gave up in his bout with Sugar Ray Leonard.

ALI'S FARE IN THE AIR

AN AIRLINE STEWARDESS WON A battle of wits or is that half-wits?—during a recent flight on which former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali was a passenger. The stewardess, attending to Ali, requested that he please fasten his seat belt shortly before takeoff.

Snapped Ali, "Superman don't need no seat belt!"

"Superman," countered the stewardess, "don't need no plane."

FOUL OF THE MONTH AWARD

ACCORDING TO THE BRITISH BOXing Board of Control inquiry into the bottle-throwing episode after the Marvin Hagler-Alan Minter middleweight title fight last September 27th, at London's venerable Wembley Arena, the fracas was due to alcohol and "over-elaborate presentation formalities."

The Board enuciated an eight-point plan to stop similar incidents and then reported that the "45-second fracas" was not a riot as reported by the media, but rather a "minor disorder." Sure. And the Battle of Britain was just a cricket match.

BARTENDER'S TRIVIA CORNER

WHAT LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMPION beat a Baby, a Puppy, a PeeWee, a Babyface, an Angel and a Lulu, but retired when he was knocked out by a Bunny?

LAST MONTH'S TRIVIA QUESTION: What famous referee's father was middleweight champion and held John L. Sullivan to a draw although outweighed by 40 pounds?

ANSWER: Arthur Donovan, who refereed 14 heavyweight championship bouts—twice as many as any other man—was the son of Professor Mike Donovan. The Professor was middleweight champion during the bare-knuckle era. He reigned from 1872-1882, and in that time twice boxed John L. Sullivan to a draw. He later also held Jack Dempsey, "The Nonpareil" to a draw. Among the Professor's other bouts was one in Cheyenne refereed by Wyatt Earp and another in San Francisco that lasted 3 hours and 48 minutes over 96 rounds.

IF THE TOOTH BE KNOWN

FORMER HEAVYWEIGHT BOXING champion Leon Spinks was allegedly attacked on a city street in Detroit after leaving a west side bar there late one evening last January. Spinks, who awakened hours after the so-called "attack", found himself in a motel, stripped bare of $45,000 worth of clothing, jewelry and other items—including his removable gold dental plate.

Spinks was apparently uninjured during the attack and requested no medical treatment. Moreover, he "did not see who attacked him", remembering nothing until awakening the next afternoon in a strange bed, in a strange motel, sans his clothes—and even his two front teeth!

Apparently it wasn't only Jimmy Boyd who sang "All I want for Christmas is my two front teeth!"

DOWN FOR THE COUNT

WENDELL BAILEY, 28, was stabbed to death by his wife in Philadelphia Nov. 8th. A heavyweight boxer and sparring partner to Larry Holmes, Bailey boxed part time and supplemented his income as a roofer. Bailey was knocked out by Jimmy Young last year at Madison Square Garden in an unsuccessful attempt to break into the world rankings.

MARTIN, BOB, 82, IN OAKLAND, Maryland. Known by his ring name as "Soldier" Bob Martin, the native of Terra Alta, West Virginia, began boxing pro throughout Ohio in 1917. The heavyweight, who hung up his gloves in 1925, became famous by winning the American Expeditionary Forces crown among servicemen fighting in Europe during World War One.

WICKS, JIM, 86, December 10, 1980 in London after a long career as one of the great managers in the history of British boxing. Wicks' most well-known fighter was Henry Cooper, who came closer to KO'ing Muhammad Ali than any other pro when he decked him in the 4th round of their 1963 fight with "Our 'Enery's" best left hook.

FERRARA, CHICKIE, 68, in Flushing, New York, after a long illness. Considered one of boxing's top cut men, Ferrara worked the corners of former lightweight champion Beau Jack, ex-middleweight champ Dick Tiger, and during the 1960s was in the corner of the-then young Cassius Clay.

BRUNEAU, EMILE, 78, chairman of the Louisiana Athletic Commission, after suffering a heart attack. Bruneau's love affair with boxing began in 1919 when he started managing his friend Ashton Donze. He went on to manage many top fighters in the New Orleans area from the 1920s through the 1940s, including Jimmy Perrin, Battling Shaw, Jerome Conforto, Ervin Berlier, Mike Cusiman and Al Donnelly. He moved into the Administrative part of boxing when he ws named as a member of the Louisiana Athletic Commission in 1948.

PUNCHLINES

BOXING SCULPTOR JOE BROWN, comparing eras: "The fighters weren't better then, they were just poorer."

Don Majeski, making his promotional debut, the day Mt. St. Helen erupted: "I'm the only boxing promoter who ever had his show called 'On Account of Volcano'."

Junior welterweight champion Saoul Mamby on managers: "Never have so few taken so much from so many."

Sugar Ray Leonard, on being asked by Johnny Carson when his wounds heal after a fight: "When the check clears."

RING'S BRITISH ADDITION IS A REAL ADDITION

MANY BOXING COMMENTATORS have their share of critics, but British fight fans are lucky indeed. For, in Reg Gutteridge, we have one of the best in the field.

Mr. Gutteridge gives just the right information and calls it as he sees it. Even the non-boxing fan who just happens to look in on a fight cannot help but learn a little after listening to Reg on television.

RALPH OATES, ESSEX, ENGLAND

STEWARD: MANAGER OF THE '80s?

TO OPPOSING MANAGERS AND TRAINERS beware! Steward has become the Dr. Frankenstein of the boxing world. Along with cultivating such talents as World Champions Thomas Hearns and Hilmer Kenty, his newest creation, Milton McCory, will prove to be just as awesome and devastating as Hearns.

After witnessing McCory's 10th straight knockout over Alfonso Hayman in the 3rd round (Hayman went 10 with Hearns), there is no doubt that he will be a champion when his time comes. He possesses the same incredible physical build of Thomas Hearns. And is just as punishing a puncher.

Steward's list of world class fighters goes on and on—Mickey Goodwin, Caveman Lee, Davey Lee Armstrong, etc. I predict he will go down in history as the greatest manager-trainer of our decade.

VERNARD BELL, DETROIT, MICH.

YOU'VE GOTTA HAVE HEART— TWO VIEWS

IF DURAN EVER DECIDES TO FIGHT again he should look up Dr. Chrisian Bernard and get a real heart transplanted into his chest where obviously there is an empty space. Or maybe the Wizard of Oz can help him out.

R. BARTHELMESS, BLUEPOINT, N.Y.

Well a lot of things are being said about Roberto Duran because of the way he ended the fight with Ray Leonard; and I don't believe it's all deserving. Since Duran won his first title in 1972, he has proven to be a great champion and a man with great heart and courage. I guess we won't really know for many years what went through his mind on that night November 25, but I am sure the 7th round had a lot to do with it. Instead of using his fists, Leonard mocked Duran and treated the champion like a fool. No man has to put up with that. I believe Leonard used all his artillery up by the fifth round and saw Duran wasn't hurt so he resorted to running and clowning. It's really a shame for all the devoted fight fans. Duran will be back, hopefully not another Leonard rematch, but maybe a Cuevas or Hearns fight. If not, I and many others like to thank Roberto Duran for sharing his many years of greatness with the boxing world.

RAMON CASAL, JR., NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y.

WHAT CAN YOU SAY AFTER YOU SAY "TRICKERATION"?

HOW CAN ANYONE CALL THE RECENT Duran-Leonard rematch a rip-off? I saw the fight closed-circuit and cannot feel that my $30 was wasted.

While the outcome of the "main event" was disappointing, most people didn't realize that the highlight of the evening was yet to come! During the post main event bout—the Marvin Camel-Carlos DeLeon Cruiserweight Championship—Don King, that master promoter, showman and hairstylist, gave birth to a new word once again.

During a savage exchange between the two boxers, Don exclaimed loudly that "This is Fisticanery at its greatest"! I knew right then that my $30 was well spent!

I think its time for Don to write that Boxing Dictionary we've all been waiting for. (Don't forget Trickeration)

I simply can't wait for the Leonard-Duran rubber-match, so I can again pay Don another $30 to hear his latest addition to the English Language.

WHEN LIGHTER ISN'T NECESSARILY LESSER

WOULDN'T IT BE A GOOD IDEA TO have a nationally televised "Battle of the Little Guys", starting with the light flyweight through the bantamweight divisions, having fighters of undisputable credentials—of whom there are many in these so-called "lesser" divisions—square off for the title? It would be a great way to "showcase" the unfairly ignored talent in these divisions.

An ideal match-up between two proven greats in the light flyweight division would be Yoko Gushiken versus Hilario Zapata. Then, in the flyweights, arrange for Shoji Oguma to box Tae-Shik Kim—this would likely turn into a war. Finally, pit Jeff Chandler against Lupe Pintor, a can't-miss natural clash of speedy boxer vs. power puncher.

These series of bouts would surely make fight fans out of many. True fight fans have known for years that the little guys put on much more exciting, fast-paced battles than the heavyweights. People would be wondering out loud why the networks didn't give more TV coverage to the lighter weight divisions.

But these bouts are all "title unification" bouts and would probably be vetoed by the high priests who "run" the WBC and WBA. The more champs we have, the richer we get, they figure. If only they would look at what was good for boxing instead of their wallets, they'd find themselves—and boxing—a lot more popular.

ARE RING*'S RATINGS "FALLIBLE"?*

THE RING INTERNATIONAL RATINGS Panel would appear to be a fair way of comparing international talent.

As of November 4, 1980, Peter Mathebula was rated Number 21 in the Flyweight division. On December 14, 1980 he gained a split decision over WBA champion Tae-Shik Kim.

Is it not unusual for a fighter ranked 21 to get a world title shot? Probably even more unusual for him to win! Or is your rating system fallible?

ALAN PINSHAW, M.D.
FRAMINGHAM, MASS. 01701

Ed Note: While there has been no attempt made by this corner to insinuate that the Ring*'s International Ratings are infallible, several things must be pointed out that might help you better understand the case of Peter Mathebula: First of all,* Ring*'s Flyweight Ratings include* Junior Flyweights amongst their number, something neither the WBA nor WBC do, thus insuring that more world-class boxers, 112 pounds or less, are included; Secondly, Ring*'s Ratings are* not*, unfortunately, the determinants of whether a man gets a title shot or not, that being decided by the two given organizations—as witnessed by the WBA giving someone named Young-Ho Oh a shot at their lightweight crown even though he was unrated by the rival WBC and given nary a single vote by* The Ring panel; And, finally, it must be pointed out that the ratings reader Pinshaw refers to were those in which the fighters were reflected as to ability, records and world-class status (Flyweights and Junior Flyweights included) through November 4, 1980. The more current ones, in the February issue of Ring*, reflected the rankings through December 10, 1980, or three days before Mathebula defeated Tae-sik Kim, and had him in the Number 15 spot. (For a complete report on the fight by* Ring correspondent Louis Mesorana, see ringside Reports.) No, Dr. Pinshaw, we do not claim Ring*'s International Ratings are infallible; Only* less fallible than any other set of ratings!

QUESTIONS & AN

Q In your December issue you answered Lester Sheer Jr., by stating that Muhammad Ali was decked four times. I maintain the answer is "THREE" since in his fight with Chuck Wepner he was tripped and not knocked down.

—CLARENCE HOWARD

A Sorry, Howard. When Ali went to the canvas in his bout with Chuck Wepner, the referee, Tony Perez, ruled the Ali "trip" to the canvas as a knockdown.

Q In watching the recent heavyweight title bout between Mike Weaver and Gerry Coetzee it seemed that the referee failed to warm Coetzee for holding onto the ropes. Has a referee ever been substituted for when he was doing an unsatisfactory job? And, if so, who would have that authority?

A A referee has never been replaced for an unsatisfactory performance although referees have been replaced due to sickness, et al. The person making the decision would be the Chairman of the Boxing Commision under whose authority the fight was being conducted. If the chairman was absent then a member of the Commission delegated the authority could make the decision.

Q I am a distant relative of the one-time light heavyweight champion, Jack Root. Or so I have been told. Could you give me the real name of Root?

—ALEX ROSAK

A Root's real name was Janos Ruthaly, and he hailed from Austria, where he was born in 1876. He passed away in Los Angeles, California in 1963. Jack was the first man to hold the world light heavyweight crown, a class which had been invented by a Chicago newspaperman, Lou Houseman, back in 1903, just for Root.

Q I am a Gerry Cooney fan. Is there any type of organization or fan club I could join?

A Yes! The Official Gerry Cooney Fan Club was recently formed with Joseph H. Kearney, Jr. residing as President. The Club's address is: P.O. Box 1782, Union, N.J. 07083.

WERS

Q A friend from Texas maintains that there was a Texan from a place called Cut and Shoot by the name of Roy Harris, and that the guy was good enough to get fights with men like Sonny Liston, Henry Cooper, among others. Is my friend pulling my leg?

—TOM WAKELEY

A He's giving it to you straight. Roy Harris hailed from Cut and Shoot, Texas, and was born on June 29, 1933. A six-foot tall heavyweight, Harris won the Texas State heavy title and defeated a goodly number of top fighters to become a highly rated world class fighter. He defeated such men as Willie Pastrano, Willi Besmanoff, Charlie Powell, Charlie Norkus, and Bob Baker among others. He had one crack at the world heavyweight title when he challenged Floyd Patterson for his crown on August 18, 1958, and was knocked out in twelve rounds. Incidentally, he did fight Sonny Liston and was belted out in one and Henry Cooper whom he lost to in ten rounds.

Q The new Record Book indicates that Roberto Duran won the world light weight title from Francisco Munoz on March 10, 1972. I thought Duran won his light-weight title from Ken Buchanan. Which is right?

—CARLOS DITES

A You are correct! It was a printer's error. Buchanan lost his title to Duran on June 26, 1972, when he was knocked out in thirteen rounds.

Q Did Joe Louis fight Tommy Farr in England as his first defense of the world heavy title that he had won two months before from James J. Braddock?

—RICARD HAFERKORN

A You are half-right. It was Tommy Farr whom Louis took on in his first title defense on August 30, 1937, with Louis successfully defending his newly-won crown, winning on points in fifteen rounds. You are wrong in the place: The bout did not take place in England, but in New York City.

Q Do you know if the famous Billy Papke is still alive? There's an elderly man mooching drinks around here in the San Francisco area who claims to be Papke.

—SUSAN CARSON

A You've been taken. If Billy were alive he would be ninety-four, but he is very much on the dead side. He died November 26, 1936 in Newport, California when he shot his wife and then took his own life.

FIGHTER OF THE YEAR

He was a battle scarred teen-aged punk who thought that "mother" was just half a word and who'd progressed from stealing hub caps into knocking over soda shoppes. He was going nowhere, except, certainly, to Sing Sing when the proper identification was finally made. . . . And then, he found boxing.

The above scenario is not the story of current WBA welterweight champion Thomas Hearns. Nor is Hearns the violinist who was forced to take up boxing to help out his sick kid brother. No, the 6′ 2½″ Thomas has been boxing since the age of 10, and he's never dreamed of being anything except a champion.

And, at the age of 22, Hearns has certainly arrived. His kayo of Pipino Cuevas established him as few have ever been established before.

Never before in the history of boxing has any one fight made a fighter into an instant "all-time-great" in the minds of so many boxing people. Before that contest, Hearns ws a 147-pound, 6′ 2½″ physical freak from Detroit. A "nobody" from "nowheresville." Now the cynics are convinced:— Hearns is one of the greatest welters who ever lived,— the greatest since Robinson.

Pipino Cuevas had appeared invincible. The way he'd almost knocked out Billy Backus' left eye with just one punch was frightening. Beside, what other welterweight had ever broken punching bags at Gleason's Gym? The Detroit fanatics might have thought that Hearns would knock out Cuevas, but not the "smart money."

Until, of course, the first round of the fight. A left hook shook Pipino in the opening seconds of that frame, sending the Mexican reeling backwards. Hearns' supporters in the poorer neighborhoods—where closed circuit robs more people of more money in one night than "organized crime" does in a month—went wild. That punch even stunned the critics. They had never seen Pipino hit like that,—or read such respect in his eyes for an opponent.

The second-round knockout was ridiculously easy. Hearns made good use of his vaunted rights and knocked out Cuevas with two hard rights to the chin and head. The ease with which Thomas had triumphed stunned the boxing experts. Not since Sonny Liston's demolitions of Floyd Patterson had any fighter—in any weight class—looked so awesome.

At this writing, Hearns' record stands at 30-0 with 28 knockouts. Only Alfonso Hayman and Mike Colbert have lasted the distance with the Detroit "Hit Man." Even then Thomas knocked Colbert down four times and broke his jaw on his way to a unanimous win.

Hearns has scored kayoes over four world champions—Saensak Muangsurin (3), Angel Espada (4), Eddie Gazo (1), and Cuevas (2). Not bad for a growing man of 22. And who's to say he won't someday break Joe Louis' record of eight. Or Henry Armstrong's record of three chamionships?

To compare Hearns to Liston or to Louis, though, is futile. There has never been a fighter quite like Thomas Hearns, nor one quite so destructive in the lighter classes. Liston's best punch was his left, while Louis specialized in short, machine gun combos. Thomas' best blow is a long straight right—made all the longer by Hearns 78½″ reach. That's slightly longer than the reaches of Jack Dempsey and Joe Louis—and more than ten inches longer than the reach of former world heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano.

Does any welter stand a chance, let alone those in other divisions where Hearns will "grow" on his opponents?

The most amazing thing about Hearns is his record as an amateur—12 kayoes in 163 bouts. The difference between that log and his record as a pro is more than just amazing. It's dammed near unbelievable! The magic word, says manager Emanuel Steward, is "leverage." As Tommy put on weight (he was 119 pounds five years ago), his punch developed—and Steward's expert training did the rest.

Like Eusebio Pedroza—who was nothing too spectacular as a bantamweight, but blossomed as a feather—Hearns simply blossomed as he put on weight. There are many who believe that "The Motor City Cobra," as the press has named Hearns, is a future middle and light heavy king as well.

In 1980, Hearns stood, "head and shoulders" above all the other men in his profession. The Ring is proud to honor him as "Fighter of the Year."

Larry Holmes, who won The Ring's acceptance as world heavyweight champion when he stopped "Big, Bad" Leroy Jones in the eighth round after Mike Weaver (whom Holmes had knocked out on June 22, 1979) kayoed John Tate for the WBA version, is the "runner-up" for Fighter of the Year honors. Larry also halted Lorenzo Zanon in six, Scott LeDoux in seven, and Muhammad Ali in 11 in a fight that never should have taken place. Holmes, at any rate, extended his heavyweight title bout kayo streak to a magic eight—tying Tommy Burns for the record.

Salvador Sanchez was unknown to many fans until he won the WBC featherweight title by stopping Danny Lopez. Sanchez, however, displayed great form, brilliant counterpunching, and the things that make a champion. He successfully defended his crown against Ruben Castillo, Lopez, Patrick Ford, and Juan LaPorte—compiling what was probably the best championship record of the year.

Mike Weaver was third runner-up, due, in part, to his two championship fights—the first one, in which he scored one of the greatest knockouts in boxing history to win the WBA title; and the second, in which he took all kinds of punishment, and stormed back to pressure challenger Gerrie Coetzee and knock him out in 1:49 of the 13th round. Weaver may become another Matthew Saad Muhammad, if he keeps it up.

Last, but not least, is world welterweight champion Sugar Ray Leonard. Ray was 2-1 in 1980, knocking out Dave (Boy) Green in four rounds in Landover, losing to Robert Duran in Montreal, and regaining his crown when Duran quit in the eighth round in New Orleans. Ray might have finished higher in the Fighter of the Year sweepstakes, but losing to Duran in the first fight—and having the second bout stopped short by Duran's stomach (or whatever) cramps, gave everybody pause. (Duran claimed the stomach cramps gave him pause, too).

No one, incidentally, voted for Roberto.

FIGHT OF THE YEAR

BY RANDY GORDON

The first Roberto Duran-Sugar Ray Leonard bout was sensational. The Thomas Hearns-Pipino Cuevas title match was stunning. The Mike Weaver-Gerrie Coetzee brawl belonged in a ring perhaps five feet square. The Larry Holmes-Muhammad Ali bout was exciting, if only because it was steeped in anticipation. However, none of the above mentioned fights were as brutal, as savage, as explosive, as moving or as heart-stopping as the incomparable light heavyweight classic that was thankfully seen live over national television. Matthew Saad Muhammad vs. Alvaro "Yaqui" Lopez.

Even the most hardened reporter who covered the slugfest will not deny he broke the time-honored rule that there be no cheering in the press section. The Ring's coverage of the bout called it "a dramatic, see-saw, punch-filled glorious fight." That was a mistake. It was better than that. Much better.

For Saad Muhammad, it was his third of four 1980 title defenses. For Lopez, it was his fourth attempt at the world title—He previously failed against Victor Galindez (1977 and 1978) and John Conteh (1976).

It was said before the fight that Lopez was through. Washed-up. Shot. The reasoning: Too many wars had drained him physically, and too many close, heart-breaking decisions had drained him emotionally. He was only in there for the payday. Or, so most people thought. Saad Muhammad was fortunate he did not belong in the category labeled "most people." He expected a rough fight from the always game Lopez; and trained with an intensity beyond anything he had ever done before. Saad somehow knew he would be called upon to come up with the best performance of his career.

Early in the bout, Saad sustained a slight cut above his right eye. Lopez suffered a gash on the bridge of his nose in round three. Those cuts did not play a part in the outcome of the fight. Ferocity did.

For the first seven rounds, the fight was merely an all-out, breath-taking, punch-filled contest. Then, if possible, the action became even more thrilling.

After the seventh round, two of the judges agreed that Lopez had to win four of the next eight rounds to become champion. The referee thought Lopez had to win only three of the next eight rounds. Then came round eight. All the officials gave the round to Lopez as he closed in on the title that had eluded him for so long.

The round was fought Hollywood style—all-out, all-give, all-take, bombs away, with every punch landing. It was Lopez landing and Saad catching. Somehow, miracle of miracles, Saad stayed upright. The round drained Lopez of everything he had.

"I won the battle," Lopez later said about round eight, "but lost the war."

The pace slowed in round nine, but only in comparison to the previous pace. By any other standards, round nine was merely exciting.

Lopez continued to fight hard, but the zip was gone from his punches. The bounce was gone from his legs. Saad Muhammad, who has shown some of the most incredible recuperative powers of any champion in history, began to come back.

Muhammad's superhuman drive finally caught up with Lopez midway through round 14. An overhand right rocked the challenger, then a right uppercut floored him. He arose at eight, but went back down moments later from another right.

Once more Lopez picked himself up brushed himself off and started all over again. But only to be sent back down by yet another right. Through tremendous courage, call it instinct, if you like—Lopez picked himself up one more time. The three-knockdown rule had been waved, and though Lopez had become a human yo-yo, he was determined to stay in the fight. But after being dropped a fourth time by a hard right to the chin, referee Waldemar Schmidt waved one of the greatest fights of all time to a close at 2:03 of the 14th round.

It was a battle both men will always remember; and one that those who had seen it will never forget.

While Danny Lopez was involved in 1979's "Fight of the Year," the man who beat him—Salvador Sanchez—took part in 1980's second-best fight.

The bout took place on April 12 in Tuscon, Arizona, and was one of the reason so much interest has returned to the smaller-weight classes. Because for 15 rounds, Salvador Sanchez fought with everything inside him to retain the crown. There was not a dull round; not a dull moment in the fight. When it was over, Sanchez had captured a unanimous decision. But there was no loser.

Sugar Ray Leonard returned to Montreal—the scene of his 1976 Olympic gold medal-winning performance—to face "Mr. Macho", Roberto Duran. Leonard tried to out-muscle, out-slug and out-macho Duran for 15 rounds. It cost him the decision. And the title.

There was fancy footwork and no dazzling combinations thrown in Mike Weaver's first title defense—a bout many experts figured him to lose against South Africa's Gerrie Coetzee. It was a war between two tanks on a hunt-and-destroy mission. Weaver's Howitzers found the range in round 13, stopping the Coetzee War Machine in his tracks for the first time in his career. The victory gave solid credibility to Weaver's claim as WBA heavyweight champion.

Other great fights of 1980 were Michael Spinks' demolition of Yaqui Lopez; Hilmer Kenty's destruction of Ernesto Espana (bout one); Thomas Hearns' second-round knockout of Pipino Cuevas; Yoko Gushiken's narrow victory over Pedro Flores; Eddie Mustafa Muhammad's masterful, title-winning performance against Marvin Johnson; and Ken Norton's gusty, punch-filled victory over previously unbeaten Randall "Tex" Cobb.

All were outstanding contests. But they pale by comparison to the Matthew Saad Muhammad-Yagui Lopez classic.

As for Saad—who has now been involved in the "Fight of the Year" two years in a row—he leaves fans clamoring to see him fight again.

Play it again, Saad.

ROUND OF THE YEAR

BY RICHARD H. CHUDNOFF

Gleason's Gym, the day after the day after the fight. A young hopeful is fighting for air so that when the mechanical bell rings again, he can go back to jamming his mitted fists into the sawdust-filled bag. He's nodding agreement in time to the old man who's telling the kid what he should have learned from that great eighth round:

"Let that be a lesson to you. Lopez could have had him, could have nailed him later. He didn't listen when his corner told him to let up so he shot it all in one round and he didn't have enough left. Sure, it was great fighting, but it was lousy boxing."

Not that Yaqui Lopez didn't know better. There was just too much passion and too much desire; too much opportunity to let Matthew Saad Muhammad slide. Everything inside the challenger screamed out for him to crush the champ and gain the crown he'd sought on three separate occasions since 1976. It came pouring out in answer to a Muhammad hook early in the round. Lopez laid a hook of his own and the desperate need took over. His corner's pleas to "draw back and box" were lost. His best training and hard earned lessons were all sacrificed to the heat of the battle.

With alternate hands, he unloaded with all he had into the champion's face and head—each blow coming, not just from his arms, but his whole being.

Muhammad wavered, rocked; he knew he was in trouble. In a strength of will from his deepest being, he held, refusing to give in to the despair and delusion that taking 20 uncountered blows can create. He held, and more—he came back to end the round, slashing out with both hands to stagger and stun his challanger as the bell sounded to end the "Round of the Year".

For three incredible minutes, the irresistable force strained against the immovable object. But this force could be depleted and this object could feel the pain. That's why every eye in the Playboy Club Arena that night was fixed on the ring. For three sweeps of the second hand, nothing else existed, no joy, no personal problems. Nothing but the sight and sound of two men fighting each other for a prize that only one could have.

The one, as it turned out, was Saad Muhammad. He held his crown through what must have been the hardest, loneliest three minutes of his life. He held it because, as Lopez was to say later:

"Saad Muhammad wanted it more."

He said it in the same gym where an old man told a young hopeful: "Let that be a lesson to you."

There were other lessons this year, in other great rounds:

. . . The 15 of the first Duran-Leonard encounter, where we saw that Sugar Ray could take it after all and still go toe-to-toe with the "Hands of Stone". And the man who owned those hands didn't take an easy ride that last round, confident of a point victory. We learned that losers as well as winners can earn respect for superlative performance.

. . . We saw that Sugar Ray could learn too, taunting the man who had taken away his crown in Montreal. In the seventh inning of their second fight, Leonard, the dominator, humiliated Duran with a winding corkscrew right which turned out to be a left; a demoralizing left which did more to punish the ego than the body. It was, in a sense, a knockout blow.

. . . Mike Weaver proved he had a right in the 13th session of his go-round with Gerrie Coetzee. Ducking the well known left, Coetzee fell right into the trap of Weaver's right again and again, till Gerrie fell, taking all the South African dreams of a championship with him. Both were counted out.

. . . We were reminded that a fight and with it a career, can turn on a single punch as Weaver, losing on all the cards toppled "Big" John Tate with only a minute to go in the last round. A set-up right to the body followed by a textbook left hook to Big John's big jaw had the now-to-be ex-champ kissing the canvas.

. . . Some people can accomplish in two rounds what others cannot do in 15. Just five minutes and change into his WBA welterweight title fight with Pipino Cuevas, Thomas Hearns turned a reach advantage and two powerful right hand shots into the currency needed to own the crown. Pipino rose, but his manager Lupe Sanchez, held him back. The belt changed hands and a star was born.

. . . We saw a bully get his as Jerry Martin decisioned James Scott in 10 rounds at Rahway N.J. Down in the first and second from Martin's rights, Scott fought his way back to gain the edge by the end of the sixth. Martin, however, had other ideas and popped Scott with a left-right combo and staggered "Superman" in the seventh. It was back and forth after that, but the seventh round had been the decider and the decision was unanimous: Martin.

. . . And, finally, we saw the compassion that two men, whose business is to inflict punishment upon each other, can possess. In the final round of the Sanchez-Castillo world featherweight affair, both men were punished to their limits. The battle had raged from the start with both men alternating control. Sanchez got the better of the closer, catching Ruben coming in. When the bell ended it, both boxers, dripping from the tremendous exertion, spontaneously embraced and reminded us all, despite all that can be said is wrong with it, of why we love the sport of boxing. ■

MOST PROGRESS OF THE YEAR AWARD

BY RANDY GORDON

Progress. Without it we'd still be rubbing sticks together to start fires. Without it fighters would still be swinging their bare fists at each other. Progress.

Over two decades ago, The Ring began presenting the award for the "Most Progress of the Year" to the fighter who has taken the most steps towards becoming "championship material" during the previous 12 months. Of all the yearly awards presented by The Ring, this one may be the toughest to decide upon, for there are so many young preliminary fighters who have risen to stardom and/or main event status after having spent the previous year in either professional obscurity or still under amateur wraps.

John "The Heat" Verderosa heads the list. He's brash. He's exciting. He has charisma. On top of everything, he has talent. When 1979 ended, Verderosa was a four-round fighter. Nothing more; nothing less. Then came a diet of carefully chosen opponents. Their styles ranged from speedy boxers to heavy hitters, from maulers to classic, stand-up fighters. "The Heat" smoked them all out easily, finishing 1980 the way he started it—with a knockout. Fourteen fights, 14 victories, 10 knockouts. He currently stands one fight away from the vacant United States junior lightweight title. From four-round preliminary kid to world-class fighter in 12 months. So, when Verderosa, who claims to be his own favorite fighter, won the award for the "Most Progress of the Year" for 1980, he made the P-R-O stand out even more than the g-r-e-s-s. No matter how you spell it, that's progress!

The Ring's number two nominee for top prospect honors is San Antonio, Texas' Tony Ayala, Jr, Ayala, who recently celebrated his 18th birthday, made his pro debut midway in 1980. By the time 1980 was over, he was already being spoken of in terms of greatness. His final victim of 1980—Earl Liburd—said "nobody is gonna beat him at 154 pounds. The man is brutal!" Liburd said those words through clenched teeth, as his jaw had just been broken by one of Ayala's left hooks.

Wanaque, New Jersey's undefeated middleweight sensation, 19-year-old Bobby Czyz (pronounced "Chez"), a recent winner of the New Jersey State middleweight title, did not turn professional until April, 1980. It was immediately evident he was no ordinary fighter. He has the punching power in either fist to quickly come from behind in any fight or to dramatically, suddenly, end it. He also has the ruggedly handsome good looks and the muscular "beach body" to set turnstiles clicking.

Czyz, who graduated high school with honors, hopes to enter the medical profession. He is well on his way towards becoming the first world boxing champion ever to earn a medical degree.

Bashiru Ali is a Nigerian transfer student who attends college in California. Several victories in 1980, capped by a victory over perennial contender Jesse Burnett, has taken Ali out of the club-fighting class and placed him among the world's leading light heavyweights.

When middleweight Ray Mancini—another former high school honor student—fights, crowds yell "BOOM! BOOM!" as he wades in throwing his bombs. Last year, he was an undefeated four-round preliminary fighter. Today, he is undefeated in nearly 20 contests, and ready for the top lightweights in the world. Progress!

Frank Fletcher was a club-fighting middleweight before blasting his way to a championship in the ESPN tournament. It was quite a year of development for him in 1980, but not like the one he said he has planned in 1981. At the top of his list of priorities: the middleweight championship of the world. Look out, Marvin Hagler.

A few other mentionables for top prospect honors are: England's Colin Jones, Nevada's Freddie Roach (trained by Eddie Futch), Detroit's Milton McCrory (trained by 1980's top instructor, Emanuel Steward), Puerto Rico's Edwin Rosario (who some say may become another Wilfredo Gomez) and New York heavyweight Renaldo "Mr." Snipes, who with some hard work in the gym, may go a long way in the talent-lacking heavyweight division.

Progress. It's a word the boxing commissions of the world should learn the meaning of.

UPSET OF THE YEAR

BY HERBERT G. GOLDMAN

Yasutsune Uehara, a fairly ordinary Japanese slugger, won the world junior lightweight title—and brought new meaning to the old phrase "lucky punch"—by knocking out Samuel Serrano with a right hand in the sixth round of their title bout on the Hearns-Cuevas card in Detroit's Joe Louis Arena on August 2nd.

Serrano, a methodical and unexciting fighter with a good right hand himself, had never been knocked out—a tribute more to his boxing skill than to his durability, although Sammy had displayed some of the latter when Nkosana Mgxaji floored him with a looping right to the head in the fifth round of their title fight in Cape Town on April 14, 1979.

Uehara, the Japanese national junior lightweight leader, had scored 19 kayoes in 29 previous bouts. He'd lost four fights, including one in which he'd been knocked out in two by Ben Villaflor in a bid for the world junior lightweight throne. Villaflor subsequently lost the title to Serrano, who was favored to whip Uehara handily.

For five rounds Samuel tied Yasutsune up and totally negated all his bull like rushes. Serrano also countered with enough blows of his own to take each round by a 10-9 score on all three cards. It looked like another easy win for the Puerto Rican champ.

In the sixth, the stocky challenger redoubled his efforts, flurrying and charging. Near the end of the frame, he threw a series of punches and topped them with one last blow Samuel did not expect—a vicious right hand to the jaw that knocked the tall Serrano to his haunches. The champ tried to grab the ropes, and finally made it up at 2:59 of the round—a second too late. He then fell forward onto the top strand unconscious.

Yasutsune Uehara was the junior lightweight champion of the world! It was just what boxing needed—a Japanese Rocky.

Another upset involved what was probably the most dramatic ending to a fight in history—Mike Weaver's stunning last-round kayo of Big John Tate to win the WBA heavyweight title at the University of Tennessee's Stokely Athletics center in Knoxville.

A "lucky punch", as many have claimed. Hardly. Mike had landed a left hook to Big John's big jaw in the 12th round, and Tate was never the same after that. Weaver came out for the 15th trailing on all three cards. He knew he had to knock Tate out to win.

Mike connected with a right, two left hooks, an overhand right, and another hook. Tate was hurt, but rallied and held on, trying to let time run out. Weaver, however, was not to be denied. He threw a left and right and pushed the massive Tate into the ropes. That great left to the jaw put Tate to sleep within the next few seconds. The official time was 2:15 of the last Round—the closest any heavyweight champion had ever come to winning the crown to the Final bell.

Tate had been the favorite, and he should have been. Weaver had lost nine of his 30 pro fights—hardly the credentials for world championship honors. The fact that he'd won seven of his last eight fights was notable, but hardly made up for the fact that Tate was undefeated—and had a 24½-pound weight advantage. That Mike had been knocked out five times did not inspire confidence.

So upsetting was this upset—and the punch—that Tate was finished as a fighter. An ordinary boxer named Trevor Berbick knocked out Tate in nine rounds three months later for yet another of the year's big upsets.

Two more heavyweight contests saw tremendous upsets. Randall (Tex) Cobb showed his durability, outlasting Earnie Shavers and clubbing the Warren, Ohio veteran into submission 2:19 of the eighth round. (That Cobb was undefeated did not make much difference. He had never beaten anyone of note.)

Jerry "The Bull" Martin shocked the inmates out at Rahway with a 10-round decision over James (Superman) Scott. Martin, no stranger to prisons, was not intimidated, and outbulled Scott in a grueling battle, knocking James down twice. It was Scott's first defeat, and he has not fought since.

Alan Minter scored a mild upset when he won a split decision—and the world's middleweight title—from Vito Antuofermo. Vito's last fight had been a draw with "Marvelous" Marvin Hagler, and few (outside of England) thought Minter stood a chance. The fight was close, and difficult to score. Many disagreed with the decision, and still more could not believe judge Roland Dakin's 149-139 (Minter) score, giving Antuofermo only one round, the 14th, when he knocked down his challenger.

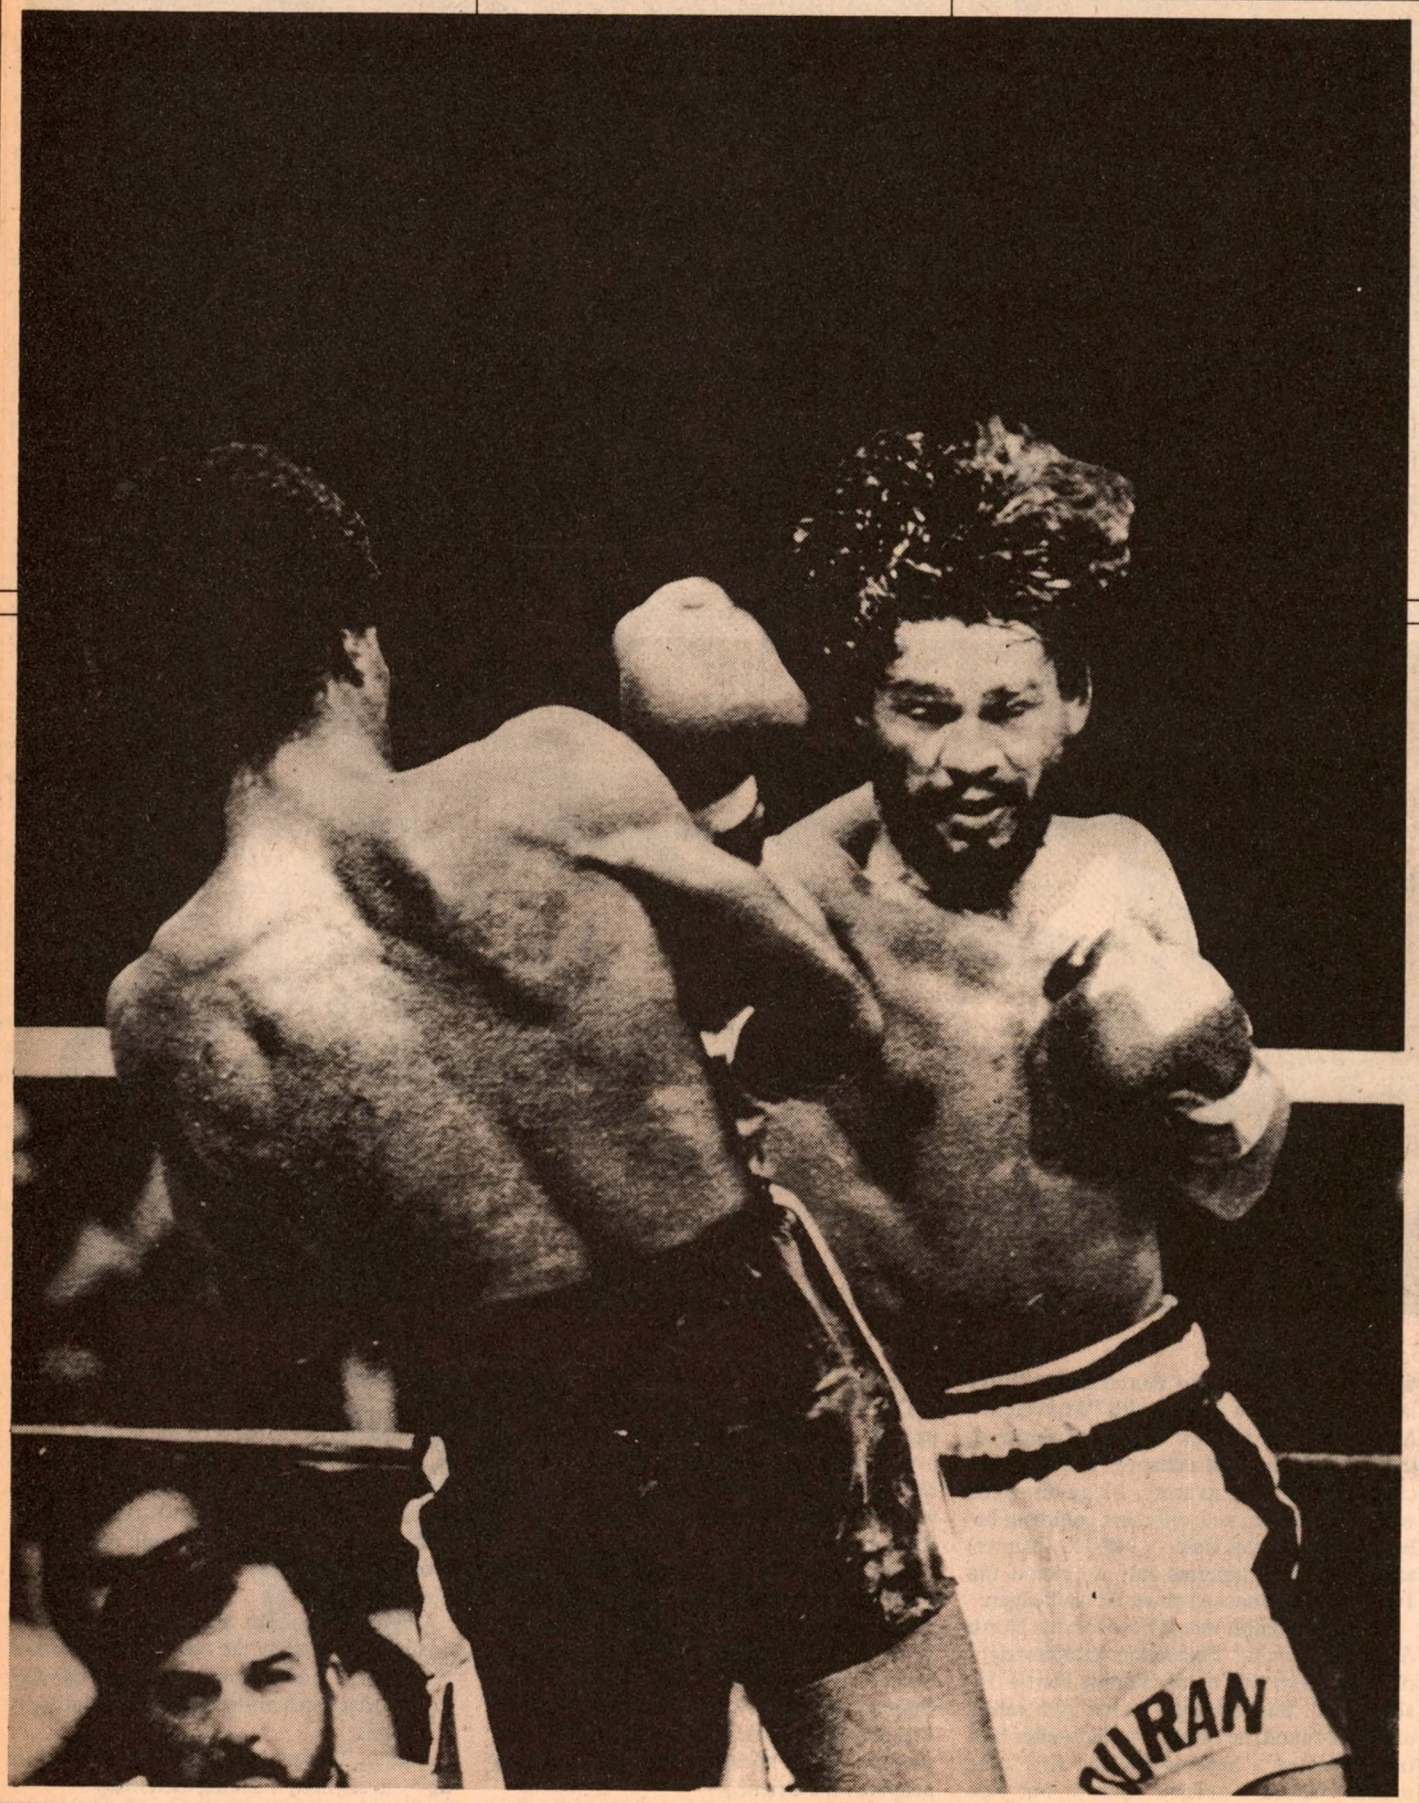
Sammy NeSmith should have lost his North American Boxing Federation middleweight title fight with title holder Ronnie Harris. He almost did. But suddenly, in the 10th round of the 12-round, he came alive and—after having absorbed a beating for the first nine rounds—landed a sudden hook to put Ron down for "10".

The lighter classes also had their share of upsets. Salvador Sanchez's initial triumph over Danny Lopez was a shock, although Sanchez has since proved himself a more than worthy champ . . . Leo Randolph's kayo of Ricardo Cardona for the WBA junior featherweight crown even surprised a lot of hard core Randolph fans—although not as much as did Leo's subsequent loss to Sergio Palma . . . Then there was journeyman flyweight challenger (and one-time WBA champ) Shoji Oguma's kayo over Chan-Hee Park for world 112-pounds honors. (Park's difficulties with southpaws was no secret, though, to boxing people in the Orient.)

Tae-Shik Kim is a hard puncher, but no one outside of Korea seemed to know it 'till he knocked out Luis Ibarra in the second round to win the WBA flyweight title. And it was only a fractured right that made Kim drop his crown to nothing much South African Peter Mathebula in Los Angeles (a split decision) in December—another of the year's amazing upsets.

Upsets add variety, surprise, and shock to boxing. An upset is the possible transformed into reality, underscoring the unpredictable quality that helps make boxing the great sport it really is.

And an "upset" is much better than a "set up"—in anybody's boxing dictionary.



DURAN

1980: A YEAR REMEMBERED
A YEAR OF AD-DITTIES & ODDITIES

BY BERT R. SUGAR

ADVERTISING HAS OFTEN BEEN defined as "Something which makes one think he's longed all his life for a thing he has never even heard of before," and the practitioners of that quasi-art as "Yessir, nossir, ulcer." And 1980 was the year that Madison Avenue found the world of sports.

Not only were such spokesmen as Bruce Jenner, Reggie Jackson, Earl Campbell and Julius Erving employed by such a disparate group of products as the Telephone Company, Panasonic, Skol and Chapstick, but boxers, too, made their collective ways into commercials with Sugar Ray Leonard heading the list by doing a 7-Up commercial and Muhammad Ali pushing something called D-Con.

But just as some cynics wise-assed that perhaps George Brett should have signed on with Preparation-H (especially after he made his World Series quote that all his problems "were behind" him), boxing also had its potential spokespersons coming off of their performances in 1980—winners, or non-winners, as the case may be, in the Madison Avenue "Sweepstakes." Take, for instance, Roberto Duran. . . .please!

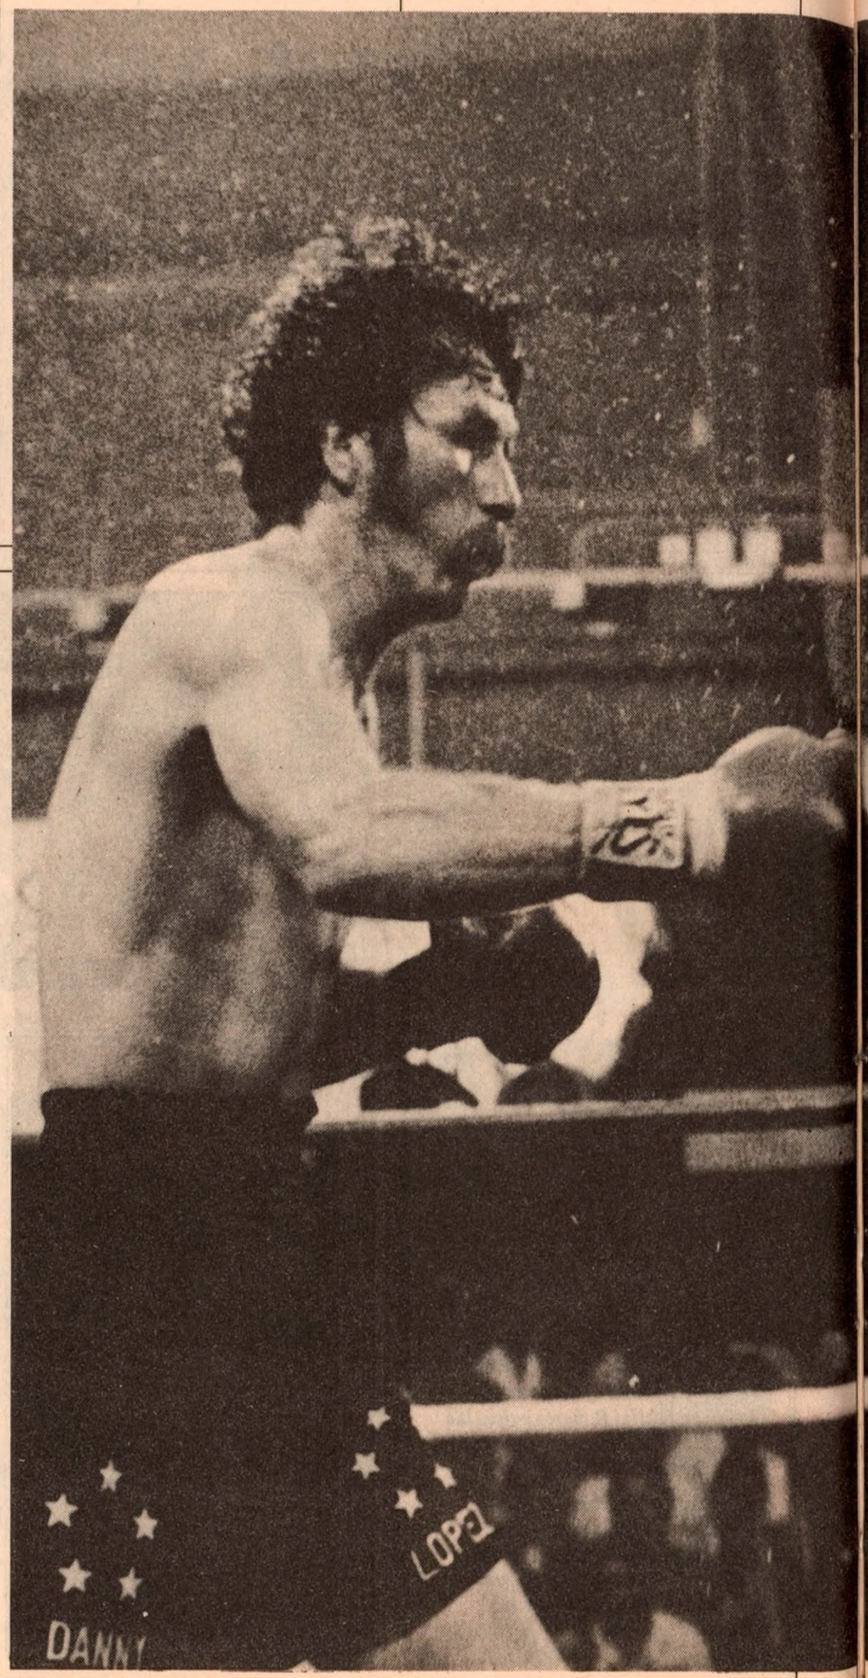
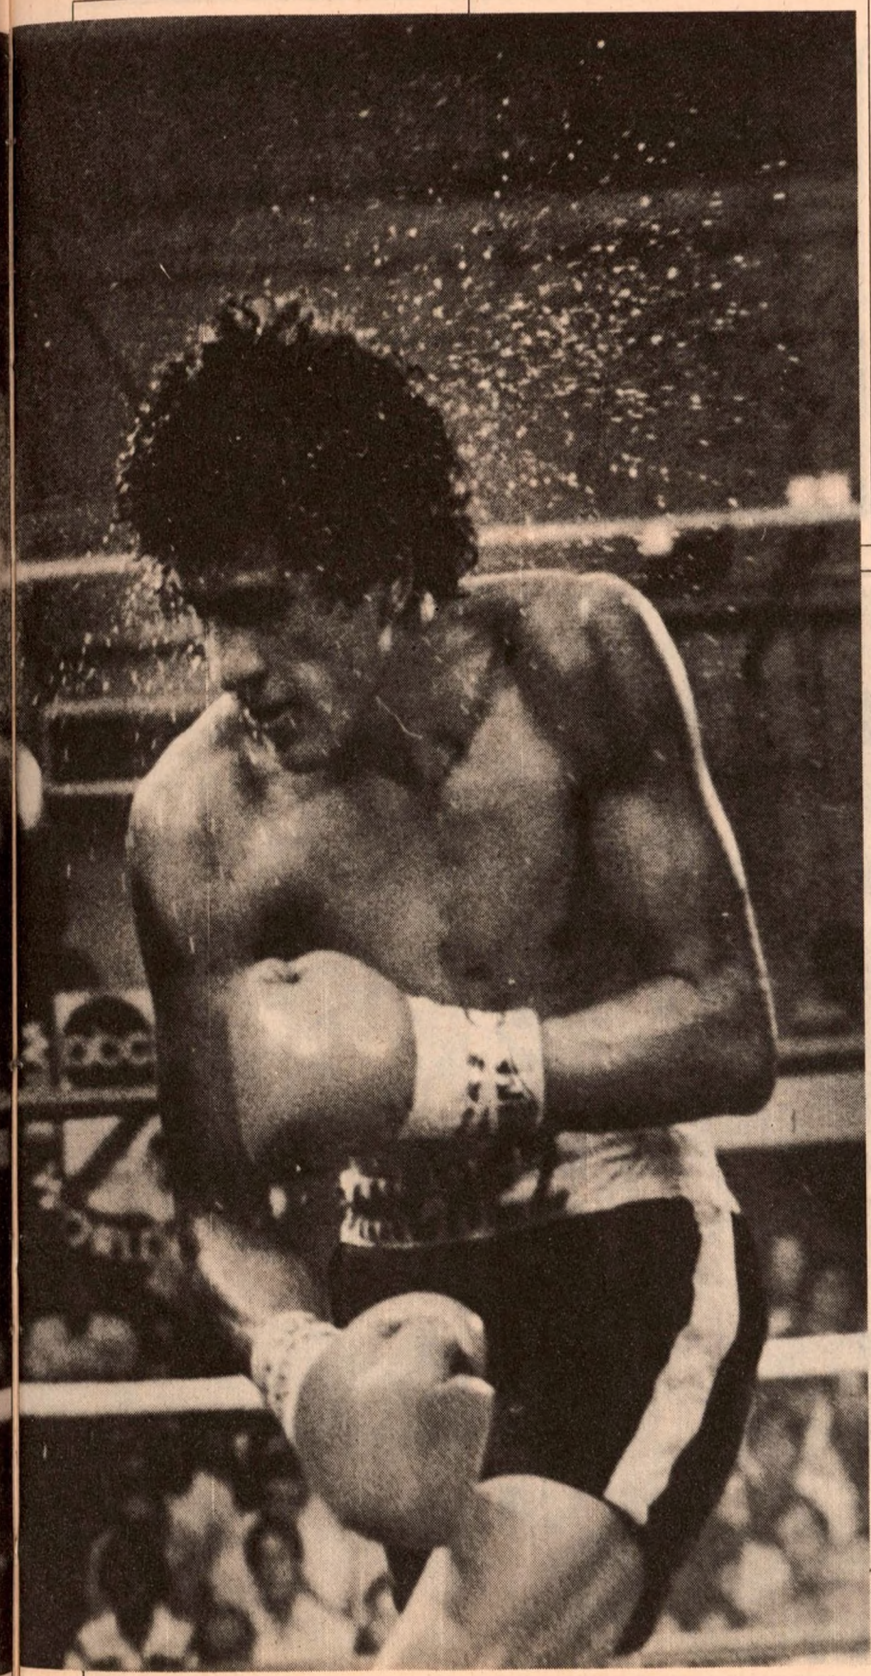
Roberto, coming off of his non-performance in New Orleans is more than qualified for an Alka-Seltzer spot. (Or, restated, how do you spell "Relief"? N-O M-A-S, Muhammad Ali, for proving that the fight in Caesars Palace's parking lot was boxing's parking lot of 1980, could easily become a spokesperson for Geritol, and Pipino Cuevas, if the metaphor from nearby Salvador carries through, could serve as a stand-up—or is that fall-down?—presenter for an "Eat and Run" franchise taco stand.

However, before everyone begins





Mexico's Salvador Sanchez TKO'd Danny Lopez to win the world featherweight title. Sal then proved he was a "fighting champ," successfully defending against Ruben Castillo, Lopez, Patrick Ford, and Juan LaPorte.

10. Roger Leonard-Mel Dennis

to believe that Madison Avenue labels are only available for those who couldn't survive 1980, let it be known advertising's two most (Over-) used words, "New" and "Improved", were reserved for one Thomas Hearns, he of the soft eyes, long reach, and thunderous punch. Hearns, the aptly-named "Hit Man," did what he did best to Pipino Cuevas, and thereby gained the distinction of becoming The Ring's "Fighter of the Year." Before, for all the world knew, he could easily have been serving as the spokesman for the California Olive Producers Association. For, where else could a 6′ 2½″, 147-pounder find employment? Surely Central Casting would have typecast him as a demonstrator pulling pimento through olives on the production line. That was before the Pipino Cuevas fight, of course. Now Central Casting would put him in the character of Tommy Udo in the re-make of "Kiss of Death," and, not indidentally also cast him as the boxer with the most malevolent stare since "Laura Mars."

1980 was also a watershed year for many others in the world of boxing.

BIGGEST PUNCHES OF THE YEAR

1. Mike Weaver vs. John Tate
2. Yasutsune Uehara vs. Samuel Serrano
3. Thomas Hearns vs. Pipino Cuevas
4. Mike Weaver vs. Gerrie Coetzee
5. James Broad vs. Marvis Frazier
6. Sugar Ray Leonard vs. Davey "Boy" Green
7. Saad Muhammad vs. Louie Pergaud
8. Michael Dokes vs. Ossie Ocasio
9. Jerry Celestine vs. Pablo Ramos
10. Tony Ayala vs. Earl Burd

It was the year that the United States did not enter a team in the Olympics, theoretically depriving many young men of their chance at glory and the gold tht follows, denying them the stepping stone that had proven so much of a catalyst to the careers of such former greats as Floyd Patterson, Cassius Clay, Joe Frazier, Ray Leonard, and others, leaving them, like English Leather users to "wear nothing at all". . . . It was the year when a youngster from Mexico, Salvador Sanchez, came North of the Border to clean up first on Danny "Red"

Lopez and then found the rest of the pickings in the featherweight class "Finger Licking' Good" as he decimated the remainder of the division . . . It was the year when Gerry Cooney found that he could collar more old-timers than Wisk could with its "Ring around the Collar". . . . 1980 found retirement village alumni like Ken Norton, Earnie Shavers and others who should have been recalled faster than Rely tampons, entering the ring . . . It was the year when Mike Weaver had it "His Way," giving John Tate Excedrin headache number 15

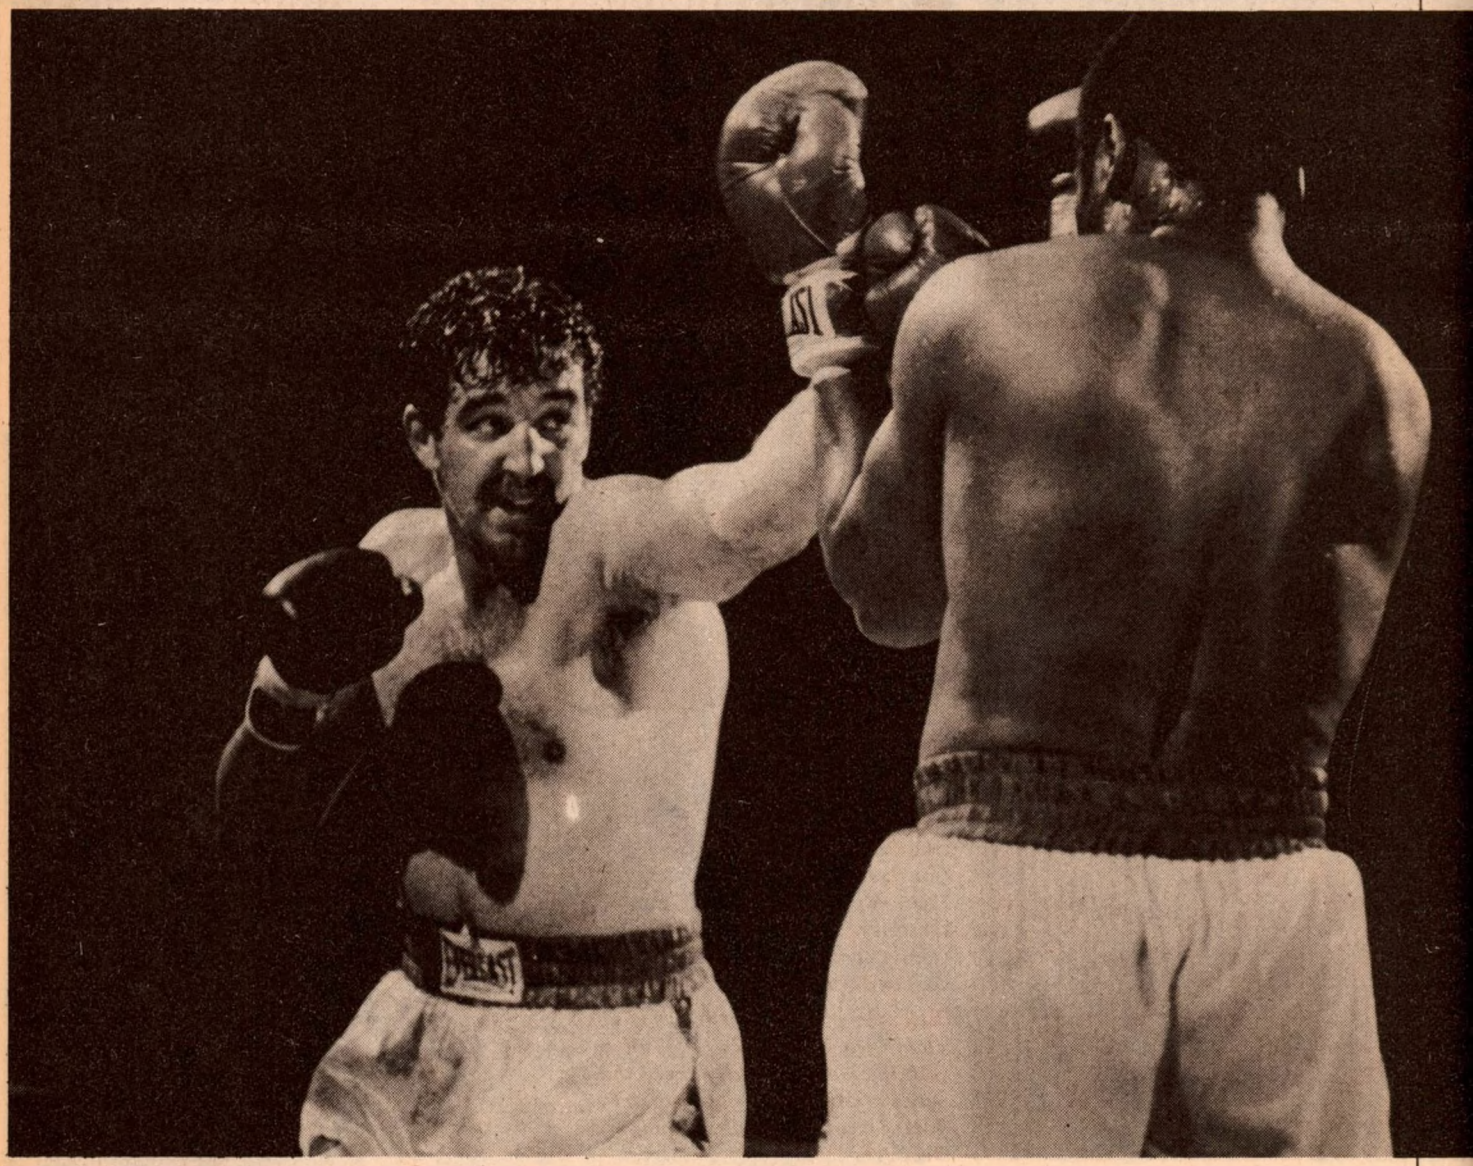
(Berbick gave him yet another one); . . . When Sugar Ray Leonard, "Moving Up", took back the crown he had lent five months before to Duran . . . When Eddie Gregory found he could "fight and switch," winning the WBA light heavy crown and changing his name to Eddie Mustafa Muahmmad . . . When the other light heavy Muhammad, Saad, "Tried harder" than Yaqui Lopez . . . And when Larry Holmes was "driven" more than Datsun, defending his championship no less than four times, winning every time by knockout . . . 1980 was a year of bad decisions—including the Minter-Antuofermo verdict, when the English judge didn't care enought to send the very best, bad fights (notably the Holmes-Ali match, when Ali shoulda gone to midas) and, tragically, the loss of several important people in the sport, including Sammy Angott, Arthur Donovan, and Sarge Johnson and the Olympic team.

Yes, 1980 was that kind of year . . . A year Madison Avenue could have scripted and cast. But who would have bought it?

WORST DECISIONS OF THE YEAR

1. Shoji Oguma-Chan-Hee Park
2. Yasutsune Uehara-Leonel Hernandez
3. Rafael Orono-Willie "Birdlegs" Jensen
4. Lupe Pintor-Eijiro Murata
5. Bobby Chacon-Rafael "Bazooka" Limon



FLY-SWATTER AWARD

1. MANNING GALLOWAY
2. HOWARD DAVIS, JR.
3. MARVIN CAMEL
4. MIGUEL CANTO
5. VILOMAR FERNANDEZ
6. WILFRED BENITEZ
7. EDWIN VIRUET

FIGHTER OF THE MONTH

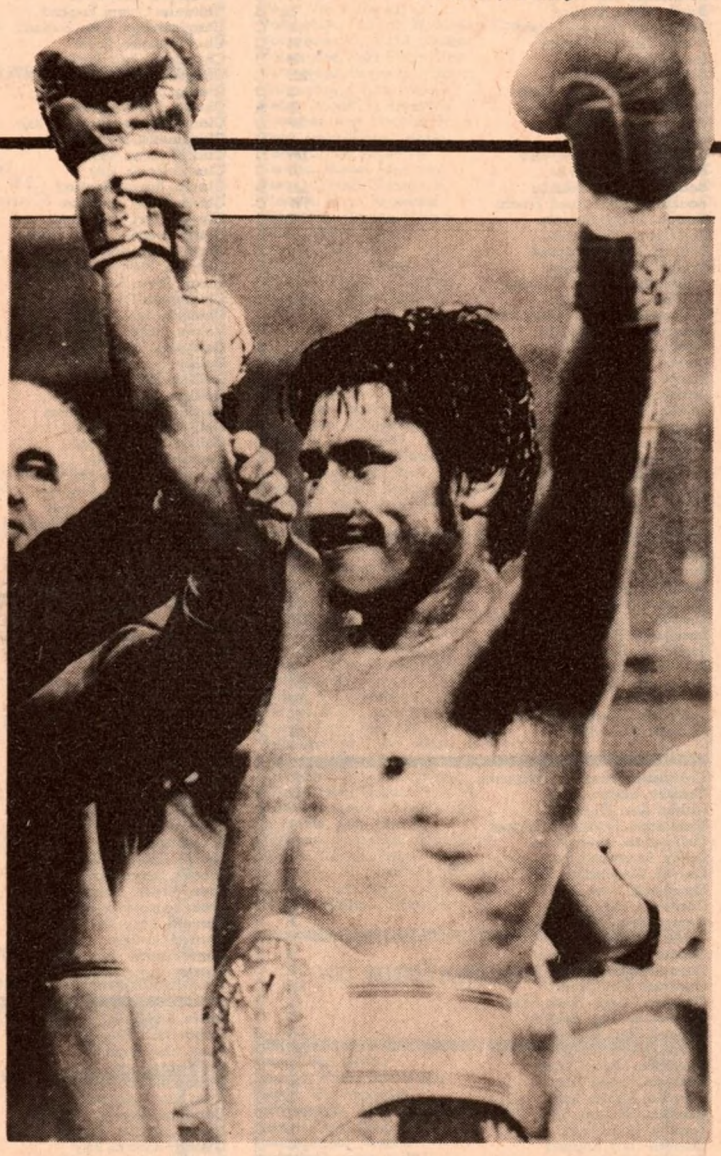
PAUL GUEZ, PRESIDENT



LUPE PINTOR

ALBERT DAVILA WAS DETERMINED TO beat Lupe Pintor and ascend to the WBC bantamweight throne. It was a dream—a desire—he lived with every day of his life. All he wanted was a shot at the title. Davila trained with the determination of a champion. He fought with the determination of a champion. His only problem was that Pintor was even more determined, and held onto the crown by finishing in championship style, winning a majority decision.

Pintor's close victory and championship effort earned him The Ring's "Fighter of the Month" award, an honor that gives him a one year supply of championship clothes from Sasson Jeans, Inc.

Pintor not only finished like a champion, but recovered like one, as well, after being staggered in round three. It is in anxious moments like those that a champion must fight or fold, and Pintor fought—with everything he had. With this victory, it became obvious that the man who eventually beats Pintor will truly have to earn his victory.

Other fighters who were considered for "Fighter of the Month" honors were South Africa's Peter Mathebula, for his victory over Tae-Shik Kim for the WBA flyweight crown; Wilfred Benitez, for his one-sided thrashing of Pete Ranzany in Ranzany's "backyard"; Salvador Sanchez, for his quality performance against classy Juan LaPorte. The win was Sanchez' fifth title victory during 1980.

RING'S INTERNATIONAL RATINGS

The word "Ratings" may soon be added to a great list being compiled somewhere by some lexicographer as one of those wonderful words which doesn't subscribe to any one definition, alongside words like "Creative", "Great", Marketing" and "New." Mention it to anyone and they'll give you a new definition, totally of their own making.

Some will even give you their own ratings. And these, too, will be of their own making. Recently the New York Post put its big toe into the ratings water, announcing in an editorial that "Now We Will Keep You Post-ed" or some such other catchy phrase—to indicate that like another New York Paper, NewsWorld, they will be publishing their ratings. And, even though the editorial didn't make it through the day, they are more than welcome. The more the merrier. But before they take the full plunge, they should be aware that the WBC and the WBA are not making it any easier for the ratings-makers. Not only has the WBC been hard at work adding division-after-division, many of which are labeled "Super" something-or-other—to be distinguished from the WBA's "Junior" something-or-other—but they have created divisions out of whole cloth, like the "Cruiserweight" Division. Whatever that is. Now the WBA is hard at work devising new headaches for anybody who is trying, diligently, to pay attention by creating still another division of their own, which would rest between Flyweights and Bantamweights. Together with the WBC's Junior Flyweight this would give us four divisions within eight pounds.

And how is anyone going to rate fighters from an ivy-covered editorial room in New York when most of the fighters in those weight classes, not to mention few fighters at all, no longer fight in New York?

Perhaps this is why, when one of the most knowledgeable boxing writers we know asked to be included on Ring's International Ratings Panel, we reluctantly had to turn him down inasmuch as we already had our quota of writers on the panel from North America.

But this is not to say the New York Post is not welcome. They are. Especially if their ratings are better than the WBC or WBA ratings. They can't get worse.

How The Ring International Ratings Panel works: Boxing authorities from all five major continents have submitted their ballots—marked from one to ten to indicate their rankings under The Ring's champion—to reflect their evaluation of the relative challengers' positions as of January 10, 1980. Their ballots were then weighted with scores of from ten (for a first-place vote) to one (for a tenth-place vote) and totaled up to provide the final standings. After the top ten were tabulated, those other fighters receiving votes were then listed in order, according to the number of votes received, from 11th on.

(AS OF JANUARY 10, 1981)

The names following each division received votes (in order of their listing)

PINTOR-DAVILA
WBC Bantamweight Title

LAS VEGAS NEV.—It was a fiery Battle of the Bantamweights at Caesars Palace Sports Pavilion, as WBC champion Lupe Pintor tackled top contender Albert Davila and emerged with a majority decision.

It took Pintor 15 grueling rounds to beat his talented, determined opponent, and only in the final three rounds did his victory seem assured.

Indeed, it was Albert Davila, at 118, who seemed early to be leading on points against the 117½-pound champion.

The first round was uneventful—as the battling bantamweights seemed to be feeling each other out.

But the action began in earnest in the second, with a fierce exchange between the fighters, marked by Davila's devastating combinations and Pintor's straight rights to the jaw.

Davila led off in the third round with a series of combinations and several shots to Pintor's head that staggered the champion momentarily. But Pintor recouped and dealt Davila a fierce right uppercut followed by an overhand left. The end of the round saw Davila dealing straight lefts and combinations.

The fourth round saw Davila on the defense, as Pintor worked with uppercuts to his jaw and straight shots to his body.

Davila opened the fifth round with his familiar combinations to Pintor's head, chin and body.

Lupe countered in the sixth round, dealing Davila constant rights and lefts to the body. But in the seventh round, Davila took charge with overhand rights and lefts, followed by punishing uppercuts.

In the eighth round, Pintor took command, working inside with straight shots to Davila's body. The challenger countered with uppercuts to Pintor's head, which briefly rocked the champion.

Pintor came on strong in the ninth round, but was met by a fierce Davila offense. Alberto maneuvered his opponent to the ropes, dealing him a series of straight lefts. Pintor eased away from the ropes, and countered with his own combinations.

The 10th round saw Pintor again in command, working inside to Davila's body and sending a series of combinations to the challenger's body and head.

In the 11th frame, Davila appeared to be tiring, as he missed with many of his intended shots. Pintor took advantage of the weariness by leading with long straight rights and uppercuts.

Both fighters came on strong in the 12th round, with Pintor dealing strong uppercuts to his opponent's head. A straight right opened a cut over Davila's left eye, and the bleeding continued throughout the round.

Despite the sight disadvantage, Davila stood toe to toe with Pintor for the remainder of the round, with both fighters landing fierce uppercuts and combinations.

Davila maneuvered Pintor to the ropes in the 13th, but his combinations had lost much of their power; and the champion began to pile up points for the obvious victory.

Davila entered the 14th as the aggressor, but was soon staggered by Pintor's brutal shots to his body. Pintor pummeled his opponent without mercy until the end of the round.

The 15th and final round was all Pintor, as the champion worked constantly with straight rights and uppercuts against his weary opponent.

The judges and ringside fans all agreed it was Davila's fight in the beginning, but that Pintor pulled out his victory in the later rounds.

Judge Duane Ford scored the fight an even 143-143. Judge Anselmo Escobedo had it a close 143-142, Pintor. Judge Custodio Tovar had the widest margin, 146-142 for Pintor . . . making him the winner-and-still-champion.

The referee was Carlos Padilla.

After the fight, the dejected Davila stated: "I was sure I'd win, but then, you can't win every fight. I knew the scoring was close; so I tried to stay inside, and keep the pressure on him. But he's a great champion; and he kept hitting me with those uppercuts to keep me away."

Davila added: "Pintor's been ducking me for a long time. So I was really ready for this 15-round title fight. But all my fights this year have ended in early knockout wins, so that could be the reason I got tired in the later rounds. I haven't had to go more than six rounds for over a year!"

Pintor, meanwhile, stated through his interpreter that he was confident of winning, and even felt that he might score a knockout. He declared his respect for Davila, stating: "He wasn't scared of me at all. He managed to hurt me a few times. But I wanted to show the people that I'm still a champion, and that I haven't been demoralized by the tragic ending of my fight with Johnny Owen.

Both Pintor and Davila stated that their blockbuster bout would show the public tht "the most exciting action is in the lighter weight classes!"

The Pintor-Davila bout was Lupe Pintor's fourth successful title defense since winning the championship from Carlos Zarate on June 3, 1979 in the same Caesars Palace ring.

In the card opener, scheduled for ten, German Torres, 111, scored a TKO over Victor Salcedo, 110¾, at 1:08 of the sixth round.

Torres sent Salcedo to the canvas once in the fifth round; and then twice in the sixth, when the bout was stopped by referee Joey Curtis.

In a lightweight bout, scheduled for 10, Roberto Elizondo, 136¼, kayoed Chu Chu Salcedo, 139, at 3:04 of the second round. Salcedo hit the canvas at 2:54 of the round; and remained there as referee David Pearl administered the count of 10. (Fighter cannot be saved by the bell).

A Super Bantamweight bout, scheduled for 10, ended at 1:46 of the sixth, as Juan (Kid) Mesa, 125, scored a TKO over Luis Avila, 124. Avila's corner stopped the bout to spare the fighter further punishment. Referee: David Pearl.

BENITEZ-RANZANY

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—Wilfred Benitez, the former junior welterweight and welterweight titlist, used local idol Pete Ranzany as a tune-up for a challenge with World Boxing Association champion Thomas Hearns. Benitez earned a unanimous 10-round decision before a near sold-out crowd at the Civic Auditorium.

Benitez pretty much dominated the whole fight. But Pete Ranzany fought his heart out. He was the aggressor. He surprised many, including most of his loyal fans, by holding up so well against the 24-year-old wizard from Puerto Rico. Benitez is the one time youngest fighter to capture a world championship. He is a marvel to behold. Benitez, now 40-1-1, easily figured out the straight ahead charges of his opponent, and, though never really fighting all out, he was thoroughly the master of the situation.

"Ranzany's a good contender for anybody," an unmarked Benitez said from his dressing room after the bout. Asked why he had failed to stop Ranzany in two rounds, as he had predicted, Wilfred the Great said, "They told me he would be easy. But he gave me a hard fight. I only saw him twice, losing to Cuevas and Leonard, and I did not expect very much. But Pete Ranzany is great. He gave me a very hard fight.

The Muhammad Ali Professional Sports promoted the bout, its first venture in Northern Calif, and it grossed an indoor record of $89,955, contributed by 2,955 customers. Ringside seats went for $52.50. Despite the rich live gate, MAPS supposedly lost another bundle. Just two weeks earlier, MAPS promoted a light heavyweight title defense by WBC champ Saad Muhammad in L.A., and the next night, a WBC defense by Mustafa Muhammad in San Diego. Reportedly, the mysterious promotional group lost a combined $1,250,000 for the two cards. On February 23, 1980, MAPS will finance Benitez's challenge to unbeaten Thomas Hearns in Madison Square Garden. The question remains—where does MAPS get all that cash???

Benitez, who was given a three week delay due to the flu, came in at 150¼, while Ranzany was a quarter pound heavier. There was little difference in height and each between the two, but their styles and manners were worlds apart. Ranzany is high-strung, churing, a collection of nervous tics and feints, an unpretentious fighter, forever jabbing and rushing forward. And Benitez is calm, cocky, and fluid, as slippery as a weasel. He seems to enjoy dueling, posing, sometimes sticking his tongue out, and on occasion, showing off his considerable boxing skills.

After 10 rounds of a very good fight, the verdict was 99-92 by referee Larry Rozadilla, and two votes of 97-94 by local judges Terry Smith and Hank Elespuru. The Ring gave Benitez 7 rounds, Ranzany two, with one round too close to call.

There was but one pattern to the fight: Ranzany threw at least a thousand swings, very few landing flush, while Benitez, much less active offensively, was in sure control of the fight. It was a sight to see. Benitez, who beat Antonio Cervantez at the age of 17 for his first title, is a phenomenon in boxing; young and arrogant, he uses his great skills like a spoiled, conceited child. He has a talent for condescension, and he seldom fights at full throttle. But he is a superb defensive fighter, a smooth though not dangerous counter-puncher, and he has the natural intelligence to be able to dictate a fight in unseen ways. Round after round, Benitez stayed right in front of Ranzany, so close it appeared Pete could have reached over and scratched the back of Benitez's neck, and yet Ranzany could barely land a decent whack to Benitez's face during the 10 rounds.

In the fifth, a flashing left, right, left combination by Benitez had Ranzany knocking his knees, doing the spaghetti disco, waving like laundry on the line during a windy day. Benitez waltzed in for the kill, (he is too Lordly to merely walk or rush in,) and then, in one of those rare moments in boxing that becomes quite personal to a certain type of mind, Pete Ranzany did something that was completely out of character for him (though perfectly acceptable). Wobbling and badly hurt, he grabbed at Benitez's arms and hung on. The round ended, and Ranzany had survived his worst moment.

In round seven, Ranzany threw three consecutive left hooks, and Benitez, the artful dodger, without one bit of a wasted movement, slipped each punch. Men gasped around ringside. It was that impressive. And yet Ranzany kept pressing on. It would have been understandable if he had suddenly stopped and shook his head in disbelief. Many in the noisy, pro-Ranzany auditorium were doing just that.

Some well-meaning kibitzers kept shouting for "Pistol-Pete" to go to the body. But he seldom did. He seemed connived by the illusion that it was right in front of him.

Benitez was his most aggressive in the final round, connecting with a series of combinations to Ranzany's stomach and head. But Ranzany held up, and even began to do some talking. "You can't hit hard," it seemed like he was saying. "You're not so good."The crowd roared, fully aware of what was going on.

Benitez did not throw one right hand during the last two minutes of the final round. Even before then, he seemed to be holding it back. Later he would say, "In training, I worked with both hands and I decided I would concentrate more on my left. That is my way. I thought it would be good to just work my left more. But I will not spare Tommy Hearns. I will teach him about boxing. I am The Dragon and he is The Snake. I'll beat him easy."

Following the bout, Mickey Duff, British manager of Jim Watt and David Green, had this to say. "Ranzany was very much up for the fight. Benitez played a bit, and maybe he hurt his right hand. But it was a real good fight. Benitez just had too much talent for Ranzany. And right now, Benitez is at his peak."

Next comes the Hearns-Benitez showdown. It will be interesting. Thomas Hearns, the WBA champion, has an untarnished reputation. He is feared. He is praised. He is unbeaten. He is taller than former heavyweight champion Joe Frazier. He destroyed Pipino Cuevas. And yet, it all seems too perfect. Harold Weston was outboxing Hearns until a damaged eye forced Weston out of the fight. Cuevas seemed scared, and was never given a chance to test Hearns' chin. Not restricted by modest ambitions, Hearns claims to be aiming for Marvin Hagler, then the light heavyweight title.

Ranzany's effort proves one thing. If a man were to need a heart transplant, he could do no better than having Pete Ranzany as his donor. There is no "quit", no "give-up," no "laziness" in Ranzany. A very decent man, Ranzany does not get stomach cramps. Perhaps, a few years ago, when Carlos Palomino was the champion, Ranzany could have captured a world title. That was his ambition all along. As an amateur, he had beaten Palomino. There was talk of a fight between them. But it never came off.

Following the fight, Ranzany said, "I feel very disappointed. I did not have it tonight. I got finals coming up in college, and I trained hard, but I could not do what I wanted to. I have no excuses. Benitez is a very good fighter. He does not carry a hard punch. But he is very clever. He deserves a lot of credit."

A few minutes later, when the lights from the TV cameras were turned off, and the newspaper reporters were shuffling out, Pete looked over his shoulder and whispered a bit sadly, "I really wanted to win this one, then take the Hearns fight, and get out of boxing."

Benitez made $75,000 up front from MAPS, and reportedly an equal sum as a bonus. Ranzany took in $50,000, leaving him with, after his manager's cut and taxes, a not very impressive amount. At 29, the pride of Sacramento is being urged by friends to retire.

Edwin Viruet, 136, New York, won a unanimous decision over Jose Hernandez, 135, Mexico, in 10 dull rounds.

Jeff McCracken, 156½, Santa Monica, flattened Pablo Gomez, two. Roosevelt Green, 155, Santa Monica, won unanimous decision over Roberto Lopez, 157½, Los Angeles, four CHRISTOPHER COATS

LIMON-BETHELMY
WBC Junior Lightweight Title

LOS ANGELES, CALIF. — It was wrestling night at the Olympic Auditorium.

Never mind the championship boxing that was advertised; wrestling is what you got. Rafael (Bazooka) "Boo Hoo" Limon, 129¼, Mexico City, "won" the right to call himself the super featherweight champion of the WBC world by stopping Idelfonso "Fish" Bethelmy, 129¼, Venezuela, in the 15th round of a god awful fight.

Limon, who can be an erratic and frustrating performer (blowing, at times, hot and cold), was definitely not at his career best for this golden opportunity. What saved him was that Bethelmy was nothing much. Idelfonso is an awkward fighter, and his best punch is a powder puff right slap to wherever it happens to land. He has virtually no jab, hook, or, for that matter, any of the skills necessary to be included in a championship eliminator. How he got to be so highly rated is beyond this correspondent.

Idelfonso's favorite tatic — against Rafael, at least — was to grab, hold, wrestle, and then slap away with his right hand. His combinations were a sight to behold — a lightning quick grap, a blazing vise-like hold backed up by a number of wrestling maneuvers, and a shoofly right hand bomb. Great stuff for the fans, who appreciated every minute of it. Limon was just as good, as he went into his crybaby act a few times. The fans liked that immensely.

Limon's great skill was evident in most of the rounds. He varied his attack. One time, he might punch low or use his thumb, then quickly follow that up with a clinch. The fans loved it. Here, at last, was a wrestling fan's fight.

A lot of clinching, mauling, and crying. Limon sometimes forgot himself and threw some punches — a right hook in the second staggered Bethelmy, who went into the ropes, and a southpaw left had Idelfonso showing the crowd the latest dance steps from Venezuela in the eight.

Finally, after 14 rounds of moaning and groaning, Limon accidentally caught Bethelmy with a barrage which acquainted him with the canvas. He was up at eight, but when referee Larry Rozadilla asked him if he wanted to continue, shook his head from side to side—indicating he was through—with one minute and 39 seconds left in the fight.

Limon proved himself better than a nothing much adversary. He thus goes into ring history as the WBC 130-pound champion. (Alexis Arguello left the title vacant when he moved into the lightweights.)

Limon was never in any danger, but he fought with such caution that one would have thought he was facing a killer. It's too bad, really, because, when prodded into action, Limon can fight, and packs dynamite in his right glove. He needed none of that to win the title this night, as Bethelmy had nothing to offer.

6,500 fans attended this so-called championship match, and left kind of disappointed over the lack of action. Maybe next time.

MATHEBULA—KIM
WBA Flyweight Title

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Two nights after the Limon-Bethelmy "contest," South Korea's Tae-Shik Kim, 111, lost his WBA flyweight title — foolishly — to South Korea's Peter Mathebula, 112. Either that, or he is just a masochist. In his last title defense, he suffered a broken jaw in the fifth round against Arnel Arrozal. (Are you listening, Roberto?) And, despite the pain, he pounded out a 15-round decision. The Korean miracle man had done it. Well, he tried to tempt the fates again. The week before this match, Kim hurt his right hand in a sparring session. His people kept the injury to themselves and trained, thereafter, in a Korean karate gym, which was barred to everyone. Ring's Orient correspondent, Joe Y. Koizumi, reported that Kim's best punch was his potent right. If his right hand was bothering Kim that much, the bout should have been postponed. Kim was in great pain after the contest, and was taken to the hospital for x-rays.

The fight started briskly, with Kim forcing the action, throwing punishing left hooks to the body and head to cop four of the first five rounds. Mathebula tried taking the fight to Kim, but was shaken by crisp left hooks to the head. He decided to box after that.

Mathebula rallied in the sixth through eighth rounds, using his longer reach to his advantage. The challenger is a fine boxer, with little or no power. His left jab found the mark often, and it was followed by an accurate right that kept him in the fight. Kim looked crude at times, missing with more punches than he should have. The champ was guilty of many fouls, including hitting after the bell in rounds two through nine. He also hit low and used his elbows on many occasions.

The fight was hard fought at times, but Kim's handicap kept him from really dominating. He reinjured the right hand midway in the fight. Up to that time, he had used it sparingly. After that, it was useless.

Even so, Kim seemed to have done enough to get at least a draw and retain his title. Referee

Terry Smith and judge Rudy Jordon, though, both had it 145-143 for Mathebula, with judge Jen-Ken Jim carding 145-141 for Kim. A pity, as the fight was close, and had it not been for Kim's injury, he would have won without a doubt. The new champ has a 30-5 mark as a pro and is the first black South African to win a world title. Kim sinks to 14-2 with 10 kayoes.

Slightly less than 3,000 paid to see this battle. The audience was predominatly Korean, and were well behaved — unusual for an Olympic crowd — although referee Smith needed to be escorted from the ring because the crowd felt he had hindered Kim. British fight promoter Mickey Duff was overjoyed. Now his fighter, Caharlie Magri, has a very good chance of winning the title, as Mathebula is no puncher. Magri, it seems, does a dance every time he gets clipped on the chin by anyone with just a little punch.

SANCHEZ-LaPORTE
World Featherweight Title

EL PASO, TEXAS—1980 was quite a year for world featherweight champion Salvador Sanchez. After winning the crown from Danny Lopez, he successfully defended against Ruben Castillo, Lopez, Patrick Ford, and Juan LaPorte of New York City (by way of Guayama, Puerto Rico).

Laporte had indicated, prior to the contest, tht he planned to force the action inside, against the champion—something that none of the other challengers had done. LaPorte followed this strategy and won the first two rounds with hard right counters to Sanchez's ribs and head.

By round three, however, Sanchez had begun to find the range with his left jab, and the tone for the remainder of the bout was set. Not only did this crisp jab put a stop to LaPorte's constant forward movement, it backed him up on occasion, and the challenger seemed incapable of scoring effectively when on the retreat.

Though the Puerto Rican was able to land with looping overhand rights frequently in rounds four and five, Sanchez's far greater experience (both men are 21 years old, but Salvador had 37 fights prior to this outing as compared to Juan's 16) began to turn the flow of the fight decisively in his favor at this relatively early stage. He simply beat LaPorte to the punch time and time again with a jab and right cross combination.

The middle rounds of this, the first world title contest ever held in El Paso, were all Sanchez. He landed his left jab virtually at will to the right side of LaPorte's face while making the challenger miss with almost all attempts to counter. Again—the ring generalship that comes only with the right kind of experience.

LaPorte's last hurrah was in round 11, when he rallied, capturing the frame on most observers' scorecards with a few effective right hands underneath Sanchez's jab.

A nasty wound on Juan's right eyelid, the result of Salvador's rapier like left jab, bled freely during the fight's last four rounds. Taking advantage of this, Sanchez closed with a flurry and won the last four frames. Jab, jab, dance away from LaPorte's wild blows, and jab again. A masterful exhibition by Sanchez in the later stages, when heart alone seemed to be holding the game LaPorte up.

The scoring was as follows: judge A.D. (Spider) Bynum (Dallas), 147-140; judge Abraham Chavarria (Mexico City), 148-142; and judge Vince Delgado (Los Angeles), 146-139—all for Sanchez. Referee David Pearl of Las Vegas didn't score the fight.

Tickets for the title card, which was staged by Five Star Promotions and televised by ABC, were priced at the relatively low scale of $30.00 to $7.50, probably the lowest for any title fight held in the U.S. in a long time. Attendance in the 8,100 seat El Paso County Coliseum was approximately 7,700—a considerable number of people crossing the border from nearby Mexico to cheer on Sanchez.

A side note . . . Sanchez was presented with a $3,000 belt designed by Sasson Jeans, Inc., whose president, Paul Guez, co-manages LaPorte.

Herman (Kid Montes, 139¼, Pico Rivera, Calif., TKO'd Rosario Gonzalez, 137½, Los Angeles, at 1:47 of round two.

Jaime Garza, 121½, San Antonio, kayoed Manuel "Chocolata" Ruelas, 122¼, Juarez, in 1:19 of the first. Garza is now 23-0.

Rodrigo Aguirre, 129, El Paso, stopped Jose Pacheco, 128¾, Los Angeles, at 2:06 of round four.

Rocky Burke, 138, Las Cruces, New Mexico, outscored Larry Hernandez, 131¼, Tucson, six. Burke was badly cut.

Sal Ugalde, 128, Los Angeles, won a majority decision over previously unbeaten Leo Martinez, 126¼, El Paso, six.

Angel "Pelayito" Hernandez, 133, New York, won a unanimous decision over Raul Morales, 135, Mexico City, six. Morales wore an emblem of the cartoon character "Tweetie Pie" on the left leg of his trunks.

Hector Cortez, 118½, Mexico City, starched Pedro Gonzales, 122½, Juarez, in 2:25 of the first round in a walkout bout.

Preliminary officials — Steve Crossen, Dick Cole, Jimmy Quiocho.

▲ TUCSON — Three preliminary bouts, topped with two 10-round main events, were offered by promoter Joe Quinlan at Tucson, Arizona's Community Center the day before Christmas. Despite a rather poor turnout, the bouts were exciting, with local talent showing their wares.

In one of the main events, Nico Perez, demolished 126¼ pound Miguel Ruiz, Guanajato, Mexico, in 1:45 of the third round. The Los Angeles based Ruiz tried to make a fight of it, but Perez continually beat Miguel to the punch, and at the end of the second round it was evident that Ruiz would'nt last long. In the fourth, a hard combination put the game youngster down for the count, and Ruiz went back to California with his record dropping to 29-6.

In the other 10-rounder Arizona flyweight champ, Jose "Pulga" Torres, 115½, had a time with Jose Luis Garcia, 115. Garcia, a substitute, and fighting out of the Blackie Ramon stable in San Antonio, looked anything but a prize fighter, with a round, pleasant face and wispy mustache. The first two rounds were even when, during the active exchange Garcia fell to the canvas, his face etched in pain. half crawling to a nuetral corner, Garcia hoisted himself to his feet as referee Bobby Ferrara helped the injured boxer to his corner. After a conference, it was decided to give the Texas based fighter a five minute rest. Ringside doctor Jack Varon examined Garcia and after a few minutes had passed, left the ring. Garcia decided to return and make a fight of it, as the fans applauded his courage. By the fourth round it ws only a question of time and after a little more than two minutes of fighting, Garcia went down in his own corner. Trying to shake the cobwebs from his head, Garcia tried to rise but th;e effort was futile. It was a good fight while it lasted, with "Pulga" looking good against a surprisingly tough foe. This win puts Torres' record to 21-2 and Jose Garcia's to 13-7.

The five round preliminary pitted young Karl Hess 174¼, against th;e grizzled veteran, Vincente Medina, 166. It was a vicious fight, with Hess storming into Medina to try to even up an earlier loss to the ringwise Vincente. After a flurry of punches at close quarters, Hess' left eyebrow started tricling blood. Between the second and third rounds, Dr. Varon took a look at Karl's eye, but decided the cut was only superficial and allowed the fight to continue. In the third and fourth, Medina's nose bled heavily, which covered both compatants. At the end of five rounds, it was Vincente's glove that was raised in victory, a disappointing loss to Karl hess, whose record now stands at 17-5.

Tucson flyweight Alvaro Ramos, 116, won a tough decision from Gerardo Pedrosa, Phoenix, 115¼ in a four-round battle. Ramos, a sparring partner for Nico Perez, handled himself with control as th;e stocky Pedrosa pressed in close and bulled the taller Tucson fighter into the ropes.

In the opening four-rounder between two local boxers, Xavier Barajas, 123, won on a technical knockout ove chunky David Burgarin, 128. The tattoed Burgarin started out with a flurry in the first, but was pinned to the ropes in the second and wasn't defending himself.

▲ PHOENIX — This city was the scene of furious boxing action with state junior middleweight champ Jerry Cheatham knocking out veteran Mario Mendez at 2:28 of the third round. It was a capacity crowd that jammed into the Towne House Hotel to watch this Steve Eisner promoted card, which featured three preliminary bouts and two 10-rounders.

Cheatham, despite past injuries to his right hand, looked good as he forced the action against t;he ringwise Mendez. Mendez caught the home town hero a couple of times with overhand rights, and held his own for the first two rounds. Jerry finally caught Mendez in the third round, and threw two left hooks to the body which started to topple Mendez, then quickly followed with a short right cross that sent the Mexican tumbling to the canvas. Rising to unsteady feet, Mario tried to get out of trouble, but Jerry wasn't to be denied and a short flurry again sent Mendez to the deck. After he, got up again, it was evident that Mario wasn't able to continue, and referee Bobby Ferrera waved him to his corner. Jerry looked in fine shape, hitting the scales at 148¼. It was a good tune-up fight for Cheatham, who will now face Tyrone Rackley for the Junior-middleweight championship of the state of Arizona.

Rackley was featured in the other 10-rounder in what was supposed to be a "soft touch." 18-year-old Mario Tineo came into this bout with only 8 professional fights, and had never gone over six rounds. But, to the surprise of the crowd and Rackley — Tineo showed he was not only a dangerous puncher, but able to last the distance. The first two rounds were even, as the third got underway. Rackley jabbed and paried while Tineo moved forward, flatfooted. Sud.denly, Mario un.loaded a vicious left hook followed by a right cross that sent Tyrone down so hard that his head hit the canvas with a resounding thud, his feed crashing down and sending rosin flying in the air.

The pro-Rackley crowd went wild as Tyrone tried desperately to get his faculties together. Slowly rising, Rackley was met with another onslaught and again went down for the count of four. After action resumed, Tyrone was able to keep out of trouble by using the ring and backpeddling. From the fourth round on, it became clear that Tineo had exhausted his strength and would hand on to Rackley to get his second wind. Working Tineo's corner were veteran Beto Martinez and Jimmy Montoya from California. Between rounds, Mario's corner kept stressing for him to give himself punching room and not get wild. The following rounds were much the same, with Tineo trying to muster enough steam to land a solid punch and Rackley boxing and dancing his way out of trouble. At the end of the 10-rounds, both fighters were bone-weary and as referee Roger Yanez raised Tyrone's arm as victory, it was evident he had been in a brawl.

The four-round curtain raiser had debuting Robert Daniels, Mesa, knocking out blond haired Ricky Cline, Clendale, Arizona. Daniels, weighing 135, had an outstanding amateur career, but, since the fight lasted just 1:02 into the first round, wasn't able to show any of his talent.

In another four-round preliminary, strutting Randy Holmes, 158, Phoenix, pummeled and smacked last minute replacement Jose Rivera, Phoenix, into submission at 2:28 of the second round. Holmes, who had been a state Golden Glove champ, showed little in the pro ranks as he missed and cuffed the out-of-shape Rivera around the ring. Rivera, sporting a bloody nose, tried to nail the showboting Holmes and would occasionally catch him with looping rights. In the second round, a frustrated Holmes grabbed Rivera by the back of the neck and then unloaded a right upper-cut as he held on to Jose. At first, it was believed referee Roger Yanez would disqualify Holmes, but, after a check with River's corner he called a halt to the proceedings. Rivera, always noted to be able to absorb punishment and keep going, had taken a drubbing but didn't look to be in any severe trouble. After a quick shower, Jose returned to the ring to watch the rest of the action when, suddenly, he was taken with a seizure. Rushed to the local hospital, it was established he had sustained a slight concussion and was suffering from "insult to the brain." Released the next day, it ws advised Jose forget prize fighting indefinitely.

The six-round bout had Phoenix's Darrel Stoval pitted against short, stocky Mauro Fuentes, Chandler. The tall, lanky, Stovall came int o the fight at 133, and kept the charging Fuentes at bay with a long left jab. Mauro, sporting tattoos on his chest and arms, tried his best to get under the reach of Stovall, but kept missing with his roundhouse swings. Stovall who had some trouble finding his range, finally caught Fuentes in the fourth round, swarmed over the game Mauro, and had him hanging on as the bell rang. In the fifth round, Stovall finished the job and put the stocky Fuentes down and out in 1:11.

▲ DENVER — Tlatelolco Auditorium — Tim Lucero, 131½, Denver, halted Gabby Mesias, 128, Houston, Texas, in 2:45 of the second in a scheduled six-round main event. A thunderous right sent Mesias down and out.

Ron Cisneros, 115, Denver, scored a unanimous decision over Luis "Pony" Jimenez, 112, Houston, in the six-round semimain. Cisneros is now 5-0.

The opening six-rounder saw J.J. Cottrell, 155, Denver, knock out Joe Pacheco, 153, Houston, in 1:32 of the second with a right hand to the body. Cottrell is now 26-6-2.

This professional boxing card was sponsored and promoted by the Colorado Recreation and Boxing Coaches Association, a non-profit organization based in Denver.

FLORIDA

▲ FT. MYERS — Lee County Arena — Promoters Tony DiCicco and Bob Gaskill once again produced a tough and rugged fight card. Not however, without difficulty.

Once again, as in the past, Al Migliorato failed to show for the 10-round main event against Randy Heath. Just before fight time, Tony came up with an Orlandoan named Greg Paine. Randy hurt Paine in round two, but Greg came back, and in the third round, had Heath reeling. Referee Jay Edson stopped the bout at 1:58 of the session. Heath was really dazed.

Steve Whetstone, 111, Homestead, stopped an outclassed Jimmy Bowen, 113, Miami, in the second.

Richie Duest, 138, Ft. Myers, raised his record to 2-0 with a second round TKO over Frankie Valdez, 139, Tampa. Valdez is now 6-5.

Eddie McNeeley, 171, Ft. Myers, raised his record to 3-4 by stopping tough Bobby Phillips, 168, Ft. Pierce. Phillips, who required stitches under his left eye, is 17-9.

Ray Yzaguirre, 149, Ft. Myers, kayoed Manny Vega, 141, Orlando, in the first. Vega, who was making his pro debut, looked good early in the round. He ran into a right to end the contest.

Local favorite Terry Kemp, 128, Ft. Myers, took out game Dexter Smith, Homestead.

"Showtime" Mike Wilcox, 163, Orlando, knocked out veteran Tiger Hall, 159, Sarasota.

Crowd pleasing Rocky Fabrizzio, 154, won a unanimous decision over localite Mike "Mad Dog" Janus, 157, in the best fight of the night.

ILLINOIS

▲ CHICAGO — Floyd "Jumbo" Cummings kept his record undefeated and heightened his hopes of facing a heavyweight contender with an eighth round TKO win over George Mostardini.

Cummings (13-0) and Mostardini (19-3) are two of Chicago's top boxing attractions, but neither had faced stiff competition. It was a crossroads fight for each man, and Cummings used superior boxing skills and a devastating right uppercut to pound out the win.

Jumbo, 219, kept the action in the center of the ring for most of the first five rounds, using a good left jab to keep Mostardini at bay. When George bulled his way inside, Jumbo either tied him up, or used right uppercuts to hurt him.

Mostardini, 212, never did get off in the fight and later called it "the worst fight of my career." By the sixth round he had a badly swollen left eye, and by the end of the seventh it was ballooned up and nearly closed. He had also pulled a muscle in his left elbow.

Mostardini's plan for the scheduled 10-rounder was to take punishment in the early rounds, tire Cummings out, and get to him in the later sessions. Jumbo never did tire, and Mostardini never unloaded his powerful left hook or overhand right. Cummings fought his best fight, and displayed boxing skills that most observers never thought he had.

Two former amateur champions continued winning as pros on this card when Chicago light heavyweight Lee Roy Murphy and heavyweight Tony Tucker, from Grand Rapids, Michigan, scored knockout victories.

Murphy, 1980 Olympic Trials champ, raised his record of 2-0 with a quick K.O. victory at 0:58 of the first round over overmatched Tony Hunter (0-5). Murphy, 179, hurt Hunter, 178, with two jabs and then unloaded a straight right hand that ended their scheduled six-rounder.

Tucker, the 1979 Pan American Games champion, upped his pro mark to 3-0 with a fifth round K.O. of Max Bear Smith in a scheduled six-round bout. Tucker, 202, was methodical and careful as he picked Smith apart. He finished him off at 2:43 of the fifth with two devastating left hooks. Smith, 234, saw his record fall to 18-6.

The co-main event was a ten-round welterweight scrap between two hungry young Chicago fighters, Roosevelt Green, 22, and Louis Mateo, 19. Green, stepping down from the middleweight division, had too much punching power for Mateo, and won on a TKO when Mateo failed to answer the bell for round seven.

Green, 146, punished Mateo throughout the fight, using a good left jab and straight right. Mateo, also 146, a good inside fighter, didn't get inside often, and when he did, Green was too strong for him there as well.

Green (11-1) won the unofficial "welterweight title of Chicago" by beating Mateo (11-3) in this scheduled 10-rounder.

Referees for the evening were Stanley Berg, Al Preslinger, and Brian O'Shea.

The card was co-promoted by Ernie Terrell and Top Rank, and was televised nationally on ESPN cable network.

NEVADA

▲ CRYSTAL BAY — Cal-Neva Lodge — Gord Racette, 212, Nanaimo, B.C., knocked out Ernie "Big E" Smith, 220, Dallas, Texas, in the first round. It was Racette's 18th straight pro victory.

Harvey Steichen, 221, Carson City, stopped Bruce Scott, 186, at 2:56 of the third.

Larry Ware, 208, Reno, made his pro debut by winning a unanimous decision over Arnold Sam, 225, Yerington. Ware was the 1979 Sierra Nevada Golden Gloves heavyweight champ; Sam was the winner in 1978.

Gary Yeats, 168, Reno, knocked out David Simpson, 173, Santa Rosa, in 1:43 of the first round.

The balance of the card was made up of amateur contests. Robey Willis, promoter.

NEW JERSEY

▲ ATLANTIC CITY — Resorts International Hotel Casino — Dwight Braxton came on strong down the stretch to earn a 10-round majority decision over Long Island's Johnny Davis, avenging the lone loss of his pro career. This was the first show of what promises to be a banner year of boxing at the East Coast gambling resort.

It was Braxton's first start since capturing the ESPN light heavyweight title, and for awhile it looked like Dwight's winning streak was in danger. Davis built an early lead, frustrating Braxton with smart boxing and quick bursts of eye-catching combos.

Davis, 174¼, knew that to trade with the "Camden Buzzsaw" would be foolish. Instead he fought a retreating battle, nailing Braxton with jabs and slashing rights as the stronger man forced the issue. It was a good plan and all was working until Johnny's legs went dead around the halfway point.

Braxton, 174, was like a freight train from the fifth on, gaining speed and momentum as he chugged forward. By the seventh, Davis was bleeding from the nose and looking for a place to hide. Johnny's punches no longer had the steam to keep Braxton off.

Davis took a real pounding in the ninth. Braxton's hooks whistled home like incoming mortar rounds and several times it looked like the New Yorker might fold. Davis, however, showed plenty of courage, and lasted the distance despite Dwight's all-out effort to put him away.

The victory was Braxton's 13th (to go with one loss and one draw) and it revealed a major weakness long suspected by some observers. Dwight has fits catching runners with good lateral movement. His whacks to the body, and often the back, did a lot to slow Davis down, but if Johnny could have kept moving for a couple of more rounds he would have won.

Judge William Kostrub saw the match a stalemate, giving each contestant five rounds each. Judge Milo Savage and referee Joe O'Neil both went for Braxton, 7-2-1 and 6-2-2, respectively. The Ring also thought Braxton had won by a slim margin, 5-4-1.

How do you figure Philly middleweight Ernie Singletary? He keeps winning (now 24-1), but seldom looks good doing it. He plods and mauls, usually blowing hard by the fifth, yet somehow is effective.

His 10-round unanimous decision over Irvin Hines, 160, Winston-Salem, N.C., was no exception. Ernie beat the light-punching spoiler by scores of 6-4, 5-4-1, and 6-0-4, looking awful, but getting the job done.

Anthoney "Two Gun" Fletcher, 138¼, Phila., beat Greg Netter, 140, Columbus, Ohio, via disqualification in the eighth and final round of the boring match.

Referee Jack Fitzpatrick gave Netter the hook for "excessive holding." It was a bad ending to a lousy fight. All Netter did was clown and try to survive. He wasn't funny—and didn't last.

In another stinker, Rich Ciafella, 157¾, Turnersville, N.J., outpointed Trenton's Steve Richardson, 155½, over four dull rounds of no-hit sparring.

Philly's Vincent Christian, 121, turned pro with an all too easy TKO over Ohio's David Alexander, 125. Alexander didn't even look like a fighter, and he wasn't. It was all over in just 27 seconds of the opening round. Strictly garbage.

Andre "Sugar Man" Cooper, 160, Blackwood, N.J., scored two knockdowns to stop Philly's Carl Veal, 157, at 0:47 of the second. This one seemed like a one-sided walkover, but the winner was taken to hospital with a suspected broken jaw.

The show, held before a couple of hundred fans in the tiny Rutland Room, was televised over the ESPN cable. Matchmaker Russell Peltz is known for putting on solid cards, but, except for the main event, this one was terrible.

NEW YORK

▲ NEW YORK CITY — Felt Forum — Fight manager Jake Perlmutter, 200+, stopped security guard Larry Janoff with a terrific right cross to the nose in the best fight seen at th;e Felt Forum Since Verderosa TKO'd Hubela.

Perlmutter was trying to get into the working press area after his fighter, Carlton Tillery, knocked out Austin Johnson in the first round of a scheduled six-round bout. After a brief altercation, Larry said "Just let me at 'em," went "at" Jake, and was caught with the right.

A scuffle followed, with Bert Sugar of The Ring defending himself well. In the process, though, Bert's hat was lost, and panic reigned in the arena.

Say what you want about Bert Randolph Sugar, but don't touch his hat. The distinctive noggin cover was finally found under the ring apron by MGS boxing president John F.X. Condon, and calm was soon restored.

The main event was a good pairing: Domingo Ayala, 142, Catalina, Puerto Rico, vs. Adriano "Nani" Marrero, also 142, Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, 10 rounds.

Ayala won the first few rounds by forcing what there was of the action . Marrero just stayed low, avoiding Dom's big left hook, till the end of the fourth session. Advice from commissioner Luis Rios ("You don't fight, you don't get paid") prompted Nani to adopt less cautions tactics from the fifth round on.

Many of Marrero's punches went below Ayala's beltline, but at least Nani was trying. Domingo couldn't get set, and things were fairly close until the 10th.

Ayala, who was cut by the left eye, caught Marrero with a left and put him down at the two minute mark. Nani managed to last out the round, but few could doubt that Domingo had won.

Referee Billy Graham scored the contest 6-3-1, judge Tony Perez had it 7-3, and judge Carol Castellano also had it 7-3-all in favor of Ayala, whose record is now 14-1-1 with 11 kayoes. Marrero is 27-10-1 with four wins inside the distance.

The 10-round semi-main saw Antonio (Kid Can) Cruz, 134½, Dominican Republic, pound out a unanimous decision over Manuel de la Rosa, also 134½, D.R.; There were no knockdowns in the battle, which was marked by furious exchanges. Cruz won the fight on all three scorecards with his attaack to the body, but the bout was close. Referee Joe Santarpia had it 6-3-1, judge Castellano also carded 6-3-1, and judge Perez scored it 5-3-2.

Tony Santana, 128½, Brooklyn, won a unanimous decision over Joey Rivera, 129, Paterson, N.J., in an eight-round contest. Scoring: referee Sid Rubenstein, 7-0-1; judge Castellano, 7-1; and judge Perez, 6-1-1.

Six-rounders: Euclides Valdez, 170½, Brooklyn, TKO'd Tommy McNeece, 174½, Oakdale, Long Island, at 1:51 of the fifth round. Carlton (Elijah) Tillery, 192, Staten Island, kayoed Austin Johnson, 195, Trenton, N.J., in 2:54 of the first.

Four-rounders: Everett Conklin, 172, Brooklyn, TKO'd dwight Triplett, 180½, Philadelphia (the Frazier stable), at 1:38 of the second. Hector Camacho, 128, New York, knocked out Benny Llanos, 125, New york, in 0:39 of the first round. Harold Williams, 175½, Bronx TKO'd Billy Gray, 183½ (announced as 175), at 0:58 of the fourth.

Billy Graham refereed Johnson-Tillery and Ayala-Marrero. Joe Santarpia handled Cruz-de la Rosa and Valdez-McNeece. Sid Rubenstein worked Santana-Rivera, Williams-Gray, and Conklin-Triplett. Larry Hazzard referred Camacho-Llanos.

HERBERT G. GOLDMAN

▲ NEW YORK CITY—Felt Forum—The Johnny Turner maniacs who trod in from Bay Ridge to buy Gil Clancy's tickets are going to have to face reality. Johnny Turner is not a contender. Saying he's "world class," in fact, is stretching things.

Veteran toughie Rafael Rodriguez, a flabby 154, St. Paul, used enough cute tricks to show he's learned his trade. He countered Johnny perfectly, and won the first three rounds. In canto four, Raf caught him with a right that broke his jaw and Turner, 149, was forced to run away until round's end. He was forced to quit between frames, losing on a fourth round TKO.

Rodriguez is now 24-16-1 with eight kayoes. He's been stopped three times. Turner is 36-5-2 with 27 knockouts.

Johnny, who was knocked down at the closing of the first round with a right counter, was taken to Bellevue Hospital after the contest.

Mike (Nino) Gonzalez, 154, Bayonne, N.J., has got to learn to listen if he's going to become a top contender. "Be first, Nino. Be first. Jab," shouted his corner, but the hard hitting Gonzalez simply waited for his opponent, Gary Coates, to make the first move.

Gary, 153½, Alliance, Ohio, took the invitation and dropped Gonzalez with a solid left hook to the chin. Coates, a journeyman fighter whose lost to names like Brian Miller and Anthony Daniels, then made the mistake of rushing Gonzalez and pushing him—prompting referee Joe Santarpia to call Coates off and give a warning. The rash action on Coates' part allowed Nino to get away and last until the bell.

Gonzalez won all nine remaining rounds, and almost had Coates out in sessions six, seven, and eight. Someday, though, he's going to be in against a tough, smart, world class, cookie. Nino had better listen to his corner and "be first" when that occurs.

Referee Santarpia and judge Simon Ramos both scored the fight 9-1, with judge Harold Lederman carding 8-2. All three officials gave Coates two points for the first round.

Mark Medal, 155½, Jersey City, knocked out the washed up Ali Perez, 160 Rego Park, Queens, New York, in 1:12 of round three in a scheduled six. Medel is now 6-1 with four kayoes. Ali, whose now lost five of his last six bouts, is 12-13-1 with seven wins inside the distance.

Roberto Vinas, 128, Bronx, won a unanimous decision over Jimmy Magnifico, 127½, Hasbroock Heights, N.J., six. Scoring: referee Vinnie Ferguson, 5-1; judge Lederman, 5-1; judge Ramos, 5-0-1. Magnifico cut Vinas, and looked good in the first round. From the third round on, however, it was Vinas all the way. Roberto is now 4-0 with 2 kayoes.

Bobby Joe Young, 148, Steubenville, Ohio, TKO'd Dannie Chapman, also 148, New Paltz, New York, at 2:38 of the fourth round in their scheduled six-rounder.

Carl Elijah Tillery, 191, Staten Island, TKO'd Khasim Stevenson, 182, Brooklyn, at 2:21 of the first round in a scheduled four. Tillery is now 3-0—all first round knockouts!

Jimmy Longo, 140½, New Paltz, New York, won a majority decision over Frank Caruana, also 140½, Brooklyn, in the four-round curtain raiser. Longo, who makes up in guts what he may lack in skill, is now 3-4-1. It was Caruana's pro debut. Scoring: referee Joe Cortez, 4-0; judge Lederman, 2-1-1; judge Ramos, 2-2.

A four-round emergency bout rushed on after Rodriguez halted Turner saw Davey (Boy) Brown, 131, win a unanimous decision over Lyndon Denny, 129, Brooklyn. Scoring: referee Vinnie Ferguson, 3-1; judge Lederman, 4-0; judge Ramos, 3-1. All three officials gave Brown two points for the first round in which he scored a knockdown. Denny, now 1-1, made his pro debut by stopping Davey Moore in two rounds on September 24 in Elizabeth. Lyndon is the brother of the late Cleveland Denny.

Joe Cortez refereed Turner-Rodriguez and Longo-Caruana. Joe Santarpia handled Gonzalez-Coates, Medal-Perez, and Young-Chapman. Vinnie Ferguson worked Vinas-Magnifo, Tillery-Stevenson, and Brown-Denny.

Timekeeper—Fred Abbatiello.

OHIO

▲ COLUMBUS — Ohio Convention Center — A USBA championship clash inaugurated the entrance of professional boxing to the newly constructed Ohio Center. Willie (Fireball) Rodriguez, 137, Allentown, Pa. successfully defended his junior welterweight title against local favorite Manning Galloway, 140, South Columbus, in a fast paced 12-rounder. Galloway had the neccesary tools to take the title from Rodriquez, but let victory slip away from his grasp.

Rodriguez, who has been quite inactive as of late, looked sluggish during the early going, and was confused by the 20-year-old Galloway's elusive southpaw style. Galloway jabbed his way through the aggressive champ's defense and had his cut-prone eyes ready to start flowing. In the fourth, Rodriguez looked confused and rusty, while Galloway pecked and backpedalled away from any punishment the champ tried to inflict.

In the fifth through ninth rounds, it was nip and tuck, Rodriquez stalking, Galloway leaving town. At the start of the 10th, it seemed as if Galloway had a slight edge. The crowd could smell a victory for their favorite. They were on their feet chanting, screaming: Galloway, Galloway. But, instead of picking up the pace, Manning let up and Rodriguez started pouring it on. At the sound of the final bell, it was too close for many observers to call. Both corners looked confident that they had won. The judges scored the fight 117-116, 119-117, 116-114, unanimously in favor of Willie Rodriguez. The Ring scored the bout 116-114, in the champ's direction.

After the fight, Rodriguez said that he had never fought anyone with a style as unorthodox as Galloway's. "He doesn't fight and he won't let you fight, either." Galloway, upset, but gracious in defeat, told the reporters that he felt tired going into the 10th and his arms just wouldn't respond. "My legs felt fine, but my hands were so tired that I had a hard time throwing anything."

The undercard, all scheduled six-rounders, was full of action and entertainment.

Mike (Bomber) Bradley, 140, Columbus, upped his log to 7-0-0 with a fourth round TKO over Calvin Straughter, 143, East Columbus. Bradley, who was seconded in this endeavor by the well known Panama Lewis, dropped Straughter with a barrage of body shots in the third round and picked up where he left off at the opening of the fourth. The end came at 1:55, when Calvin's merciful corner threw in the towel.

Bobby Sparks, former Ohio lightweight champ, 143, Portsmouth, got all he wanted from tough Darrel Green, 145, South Columbus. Green was making his pro debut and Bob didn't figure that he would have much trouble with the stubborn 18-year-old. Green hung in there and answered every blow from Sparks with one of his own. A sixth round rally by Sparks pulled the fight out for him; Bobby was awarded a split decision.

Don King (not the promoter, the fighter), 148, Indianapolis, Ind., TKO'd Sam Gervin, 150, Columbus in the third round of their battle. King charged across the ring at the sound of the opening bell and had Sam in trouble from the beginning. Dropped twice by excruciating King right hands, Gervins manager called things to a halt at the close of the third round.

Bo Moody, 153, Columbus, pummeled Bill Shoemaker, 156, Zanesville, for 2:23 before referee Tom Hamton intervened and stopped the bout. Moody was awarded a TKO. It was Shoemaker's pro debut.

Mark Frazee, 160, Portsmouth, a former national AAU champ, upset veteran Bennie Mitchell, 156, Columbus, winning a unanimous decision. Frazee was the agressor during the bout. He remains unbeaten.

Jeff Jordan, 193, West Columbus, stopped a game Donnie Townsend, 186, Columbus, in the evening's most exciting contest. Both fighters stood in the middle of the ring rocking each other with combinations. Jordan, the stronger of the two, landed some powerful body shots, lifting Townsend off his feet each time he landed. Townsend, however, was stubborn and tried to battle it out with Jordan, which was a mistake. After a series of punishing body punches, Townsend decided to call it quits, indicating to the referee that he could no longer continue.

It was a wise decision, as Jordan was just too strong and too tough. He remains unbeaten, with a log of 4-0.

PENNSYLVANIA

▲ PHILADELPHIA — Martin Luther King Arena — Local middleweight Michael "Youngblood" Williams returned to the ring following over three years of inactivity to score a 10-round majority decision over New York City's Fermin Guzman.

Williams, 162, got off to a crisp start. He backpeddled around the ring in an almost casual manner, smacking Guzman with clean jabs and follow-up rights to the face. His reflexes seemed surprisingly sharp considering his lengthy layoff.

Guzman, 164, pressed forward gamely and finally broke through in the fifth with some solid punches. It looked like he was turning the fight around until "Youngblood" rallied late in the round and shook Fermin with several hard combos. It had been an exciting round, but Williams seemed drained afterwards and never dominated again.

Williams' lack of activity showed down the stretch. Guzman hustled and made things close with a strong rally the final two frames.

Judge Tommy Cross scored the bout a draw, giving each man 47 points. He was overruled by referee Frank Capcino and judge Eddie Woods, who voted for Williams 47-44 and 48-46, respectively.

"Youngblood" is a pleasing stylist and it's good to see him back in action. The rugged bout with Guzman was just what he needed to fight his way back into shape.

South Philly's Timmy Witherspoon, 206, scored a seventh round TKO over James Reid, Richmond, Virginia, in another scheduled 10.

Reid just backed away from Witherspoon with his hands in front of his face and never threw a punch in anger. He was cut over the left eye in the fifth and stayed on his stool at the bell for the start of the seventh. Reid, 206, is not the sort of opponent that brings out the best in a young prospect like Witherspoon, although it should be mentioned that "Terrible Timmy" was no ball of fire himself.

Tyrone "Butterfly" Crawley, 136, Phila., stopped fellow Philadelphian Chris Harmon, 141, at 2:43 of the second and Sterling Quick, 159, TKO'd John Martino, 159, just 35 seconds of the first in another all-Philly match.

The best rumble of the night was a sparkling four-round draw between Freddie Reyes and Mark Petroski. The shorter Reyes, 135, Phila., took the fight to Petroski, 137, Kensington, who countered back with ripping head shots. This one featured many changes of fortune and is a good bet for a rematch.

The promotion was highlighted by several exhibitions that ranged from excellent to boring.

Local lightweight Ron "Yid Kid" Aurit boxed one round each with three members of the University of Pennsylvania boxing team. The crowd enjoyed it when one of the students, Ira Bernstein, nailed Ron with a couple of good shots, but booed his sparring with "Bucky" Singer and Rich Hamilton.

Mike Spinks donned the headgear to go three brisk rounds with ESPN light heavyweight champ Dwight Braxton. This was a very interesting encounter because it pitted two of the hottest 175-pounders active today. They pulled very few punches, with Spinks enjoying a very slight edge because of his longer reach.

Middleweight contender Curtis Parker had his hands full in his three-round session with local preliminary fighter Art "Moose" McCloud. They tore into each other as if it was for real with Parker getting the worse end of the stick. McCloud bloodied Curtis' nose and almost knocked him out of the ring.

Jimmy Sykes, 160, drew over six with fellow Philadelphian James Macey, 160.

Charles Singleton, 180, Phila., TKO'd Ed Harris, 178, Fairfax, Virginia, in four.

Randy Coleman, 160, Phila., won a four-round decision over Jamal Johnson, 163, Phila.

Marvin Richardson, 140, Phila., decisioned Tony Rivera, 142, Phila., four.

TEXAS

▲ CORPUS CHRISTI — Memorial Coliseum — Using his flashing left jab to good advantage, popular Sergio Reyes copped a ten-round unanimous decision over Elias "Chapparro" DeLeon in promoter Jorge de la Garza's main event. A fine tuneup for the popular Reyes, who will square off against world ranked bantamweight Roberto Rubaldino shortly.

Jose "Gaby" Canizales is, by most accounts, the premier prospect in south Texas; and tonight he continued unbeaten as a pro by halting Mexican Miguel "Torito" Medina in round seven of their bantamweight contest. Medina was a substitute for Ruben Mayet of San Antonio (by way of Cuba), who was unable to make the weight.

The first outing in some two years of hard-hitting jr. welterweight Juan "Dandy" Ramirez of Laredo saw him halt Ramon Enriquez of McAllen midway through round two.

The Loredo brothers of Corpus Christi both came out victorious this evening. Lightweight Joel halted southpaw Gilbert Garza of San Antonio in round six, and bantamweight Armando won an eight-round decision over Arturo "Nino" Pedroza of Reynosa.

Former local amateur standout Adam Franco halted woeful Victor M. Gonzales of San Antonio in round three, bantamweights.

Attendance—416.
Matchmaker—Dr. Luis Mendoza.

▲ HOUSTON — Latin World Arena — Houston's final boxing card for 1980 saw local youngster Humberto Rodriguez use a devastating right hand lead to score a knockout over Juan Castellanos of McAllen at the 2:50 interval of round eight in a scheduled 10-round bantamweight main event.

The quick moving visitor was able to capture the first couple of rounds through the use of a back-pedaling, jabbing attack. By the end of round four, Humberto had begun to find the range with his heavier artillery and had Castellanos holding on. Stunning Castellanos a number of times in rounds six and seven, Rodriguez decked the loser twice in the eighth stanza, with Castellanos being unable to arise on the second occassion.

Using a hunched over peek-a-boo stance, Chuy Portillo of Houston captured a 10-round unanimous decision over Gilberto Villacana of Monterrey, Mexico in promoter Ruben Guerra's bantamweight semifinal. Not so much a case, here, of a strong showing by Portillo, as it was Villacana's complete inability to penetrate Portillo's peculiar defensive posture.

When Al "Hawk" Contreras of McAllen was announced as the opposition for local prospect Steve Hearon in a scheduled eight-round welterweight match, Contreras was said to be one of the "toughest body punchers in his weight division." Unfortunately, we never got to see if his trainer, Felipe Trevino's, description was accurate or not, as Hearon kept the visiting battler impaled on the end of his crisp left jab; and finally poleaxed the South Texan with a blistering right uppercut to the belly which sent the "Hawk" down for the count at 2:01 of round three. Another fine win for Steve, who should be advancing to main event status soon.

Though he usually comes out on the short end, Rene Pagan of Puerto Rico has become a favorite of Space City fight fans as a result of his never-say-die attitude. Using his superior conditioning, Pagan finally captured a victory by pounding out a unanimous eight-round decision over highly regarded Ramon Gonzales of McAllen in a welterweight setto. Gonzales had impressed local fans when he copped a decision victory in the "walk-out" bout on the Cuevas-Volbrecht title card here. However, in the six-month interval since then, he hadn't entered the ring; and boy—did it show here tonight. After capturing the first couple of rounds, Ramon faded—and then faded some more; to the point where heart alone was keeping him going at the end.

The scheduled four-round junior lightweight curtain raiser saw the pro debut of Roosevelt Ricco of Austin. Roosevelt stormed from his corner when the bell rang and turned his opponent, Sergio Garcia of Mexico, every which way but loose in capturing a kayo win at 2:05 of round one.

Robert Gonzales and Terry Daniels shared the refeering chores, with Bill Yeager and Bob Martin judging the bouts. As usual, Virgil Reichardt was timekeeper, with the veteran Woody Meyers serving as knockdown timer.

Attendance — 577 Gate — $6,924.00.

▲ RICHMOND — Arena — Don Spellman, 212, Richmond, TKO'd John Blane, 190, Washington, D.C., in the fourth round of a scheduled eight-rounder. It was a good, close fight until Blane was accidentally thumbed in the eye in the middle of the fourth. He wanted to continue, but Commission Dr. James Gregory recommended that the bout be stopped at 1:34 of the session.

Joe Ballard, 216, Richmond, knocked out Anthony Washington, 198, Washington, D.C., in the first.

Four-rounders: Ricky Perry, 157, Richmond, won unanimous decision over Timothy Mark, 155, Philadelphia. Kid Samson, 189, Philly, kayoed John Green, 183, Richmond, in the fourth. Frank Butler, 234, Baltimore, won a split decision over Jose Navarro, 231, Richmond. Ralph Bell, 168, Philadelphia, won unanimous decision over Charles Tuttle, also 168, Bowie, Md. Martin Spriggs, 158, Baltimore, TKO'd Richard Williams, 161, Philly, in the first round. Ira Robinson, 141, Richmond, won unanimous decision over Scott Farmer, 137, Bowie.

WASHINGTON

▲ TACOMA — Bicentennial Pavilion — Sugar Ray

Seales, 162, Tacoma, won a unanimous decision over James Williams, 159½, Portland, Oregon, in the 10-round main event.

Most of the heavy exchanges were against the ropes, where Seales used crisp infighting tactics to outpunch the less experienced Oregonian. The bout was interesting, and viciously fought. Both fighters "came to fight," and the difference was simply Ray's more often. He threw more effective punches.

The win gave Seales a 55-7-3 log and a February 6 date with Chong-Pal Park of Korea in Portland.

Jerry Reddick, 160, Victoria, B.C., stopped Bobby Young, 163, Los Angeles, on a cut eye in the second round. Reddick was landing some solid punches, and appeared to be taking command of the fight when it was stopped by the ringside physician.

Prelims: Tom Rudolph, 163, Tacoma, scored unanimous decision over game Manny Gonzalves, 153, Seattle, four. Artoro Pacheco, 142, Olympia, Wash., won a close but unanimous decision over Carl Owens, 146½, Seattle, in an action packed four-rounder. Joe Wade, 195, Bellingham, Wash., weathered some early shots from Ernie Greenwood, 219, Seattle, before landing a kayo punch at the close of the third round. Rough Tony Gallo, 259, Everett, Wash., TKO'd Zeke Thompson, 218, Los Angeles, in the first.

Promoter Tom Sims' card drew 362 fans, grossing $4,265. The promotion was held two days before Christmas, and received very little publicity. It was an interesting, well balanced program, and Sims' next card show draw more fans.

▲ NOTES — Pinklon Thomas is back in training after injuring both hands in his last bout. Thomas will probably return to action in March . . . Rocky Lockridge returned to Tacoma to be with his family for the holidays . . . Bobby Boyd, former Chicago middleweight, who met some of the best during the 1950s television era, is now living and working in the Seattle area . . . Pat McMurty, world ranked heavy from Tacoma in the 50s, keeps busy by refereeing most of the area pro cards.

ONTARIO

▲ TORONTO — Masonic Temple — Roddy MacDonald, 185, Halifax, knocked out Lou Alexander, 245, Detroit, in 1:45 of the first round in the scheduled 10-round main event.

Six-rounders: Rick Pappa, Torinto, got a real Christmas present when the officials called his welterweight bout with Clint Harris, Detroit, a draw. Ray Henderson stopped Winslow Frazer in the second, light heavies.

Four-rounders: Barry Emo, 285, Toronto, and Tyrone Taylor, 195, Windsor, drew. Bobby Bland, Toronto, outscored Preston Jones, Buffalo, middleweights. Don Poole, Toronto, halted Steve Robinson, Detroit, in the first round, welters.

QUEBEC

▲ MONTREAL — Paul Sauve Arena — Eddie Melo, 161, Toronto, won a majority decision over Wayne Caplette, 164, Winnipeg, 10. The scores were 47-45, 48-45, and 46-46. Caplette was fined $500 for being overweight by the Montreal Athletic Commission. It was Wayne's first loss. He's now 19-1.

Ricky Camaro, 136, Ottawa, won a split decision over former Canadian lightweight champion Nicky Furlano, 139, Toronto, eight. The scores were 39-37, 38-35, and 36-37, and the official who called it 36-37 in favor of Furlano must have been out to lunch which the contest was in progress.

Michael LaLonde, Hull, won a split decision over former Canadian lightweight champion Jean LaPointe, Montreal, eight. The scores were 38-37, 38-37, and 36-37.

Ghislain Deroy, 148, Montreal, was too stong for Alfonso Contreras, 141, billed out of Chicago and fighting under the name Al Conte. Their bout was halted after two by the commission doctor, and it goes into the record hooks as a third round K.O. for Deroy.

Mario Cusson, 144, Montreal, won a unanimous decision over Manuel Madera, 137, Lowell, Mass:, six. The scores were 30-27, 30-25, and 29-26.

Don Bester, 176, Chicago, won a split decision over Pierre Cormier, 179, Quebec, four.

Montreal once again proved itself the only major city in Canada capable of promoting good, advertised fight cards at prices the real fight fan can afford.

Lennox Sumerset, 151, outpointed Gustavus Theobald, 141, in the six-round curtain raiser.

It was one of the better boxing programs staged in Guyana in recent years.

LLOYD W. BLACKMOORE

EUROPE

THE REIGNING EUROPEAN HEAVYweight champion is John L. Gardner, one of 10 Britons to wear the crown since the first champion, Gunner Moir, in 1906. Gardner won the crown which Italian, Lorenzo Zanon, abandoned to fight Larry Holmes for the WBC title. Gardner halted the unenterprising Rudi Gauwe, Belgium, in April last and the vacant title was his. Zanon's bout with Larry Holmes was a mismatch, to say the least.

At the Swiss-Italian border town of Campione de 'Italia, Zanon, now with his feet on the ground again, challenged Gardner for his lost title and was favored to win it back again. Gardner was behind on points on all three officials scorecards at the end of round four, but in the fifth, a single right hand flattened the Italian. The punch lifted Zanon off his feet and, on landing, his head struck the canvas. Zanon had no chance of beating the count and it was almost 15 minutes before he could leave the ring. The Italian was taken to a hospital and detained over night for X-rays and a medical check up. It was Gardner's first fight abroad and, as a professional, he had never fought farther than 10 miles form his home in East London.

This was the fifth British-Italian heavyweight duel with the score now Britain 5, Italy 0. Great Britain has produced 10 champions, but only Erminio Spalla, Primo Carnera, Franco Cavicchi, and Zanon have won the crown for Italy.

The heavyweight championship got under way in 1906 and 98 contests have produced 37 champions. It is, however, surprising that only three of the European champions since Max Schmeling, Germany, Primo Carnera, Italy, and Ingemar Johansson, Sweden, went on to capture the world title.

Paulino Uzcudun, Alfredo Evangelista, Spain; Jean Pierre Coopman, Belgium; Lorenzo Zanon, Italy; Karl Mildenberger, Germany; Richard Dunn, Joe Bugner and Henry Cooper of Great Britain, all had a shot at the world crown but lost.

At Marsales, Spain, Carlos Hernandez successfully defended his European junior lightweight title, beating Italian Aristid Pizzo, who, after visiting the canvas on four occasions, was kayoed in the seventh. Pizzo was decked in round five for eight and visited the canvas twice in the sixth. A left hook ended the bout. Hernandez won the crown, outscoring fellow Spaniard Rodolfo Sanchez, on Dec 21st 1979. The junior lightweight division did not get started until 1971 and Tommaso Gali, Italy, was the first champion. The division has had 30 bouts and provided seven champions.

At Leon in Spain, 27-year-old Roberto Castanon, Spain, who won the European featherweight crown beating Manuel Masso on December 16th 1977, made a successful defense, his 10th, knocking out fellow countryman Cecilio Lastra (28), four. Lastra was on the canvas in the opening round after taking blows to the head. Making 10 defenses, Castanon still found time to challenge WBC featherweight champion Danny Lopez in 1979, losing (KO 2) his only defeat in a career spanning 41 fights. Castanon beat Lastra on August 26th 1977 and decisioned him again in a title bout two years later.

At the London Royal Albert Hall, the Milan motor mechanic Matteo Salvemini, Italy, undefeated in 22 bouts, defended his European middleweight crown, which he took form Kevin Finnegan, in San Remo in September, against Briton Tony Sibson.

Sibson won the crown, kayoing the Italian with a right hook with only 12 seconds left in round seven. Southpaw Salvemini was decked twice in round four and suffered his first defeat in 23 professional bouts. The Italian took the crown from Briton Kevin Finnegan in September.

37-year-old, Dane Jorgen Hansen, retained his European welterweight crown, outscoring Italian Giuseppe DiPadova, 12. That title is surely Hansen's own property now. He first won the crown on June 2, 1977, knocking out Marco Scano of Italy in five. Losing it to German Jorg Eipel on a disqualification, he regained it on April 27, 1978 with a six-round kayo over Alain Marion, France. A second disqualification took the title form the Dane when he defended against Austrian Josef Pachler, but Hansen recovered his lost title, beating Briton Dave Green on June 28, 1979. Since then he has made defenses against Alois Carmetiet, Joey Singleton, Hendrik Palm, and now Di Padova. The 117 fights since Young Joseph decisioned Battling Lecroix in Paris on December 19, 1910 have produced 42 champions. This was the fifth European welterweight title fight to be staged at Randers, Denmark.

Olympic gold medalist at Moscow, Italian Patricio Oliva, won his third professional fight, outscoring Eloi Des Santon, Brazil, and collecting a purse of two million lire.

Another gold medalist at Moscow has joined the paid ranks, Yugoslav Slobodan Kacar (23). He has joined the Willi Zeller stable in Berlin, where fellow countryman Marijan Benes, European junior middleweight champion, trains.

Briton John Conteh, has been dropped from the light heavyweight ratings. His last fight was in May, 1980, when he beat American James Dixon, and he's not trained seriously since.

Otto Nispel of Germany, who was 76 in November, died after a heart attack. Nispel started boxing at the age of 18 and retired at 24 after a troublesome knee injury. In these six years, he had over 200 fights, and won the German light heavyweight title three times. As an amateur, Otto Nispel beat Max Schmeling. In later years, Nispel referred hundreds of bouts in Germany.

British promoter Johnny Griffin had all his boxing gloves stolen from his car while on the way to a promotion. Griffin offered a reward of £100 and two ringside seats to anyone who could recover the gloves.

▲ DIFFERDINGEN — Pierre Kabassu, Luxembourg, stopped German Uwe Meinicke. The towel was tossed in during the second round after Meinicke had taken three eight counts.

SPAIN

▲ BILBAO — Spanish middleweight Andoni Amana decisioned former WBC junior welterweight champion Saensak Muangsurin, Thailand, 10.

SWITZERLAND

▲ BASEL — Sepp Iten won his first pro start in Switzerland, outscoring Gianbattista Calvia, six rounds, featherweights. Iten lost one of his two starts in the U.S.

Attendance — 750.

▲ ZURICH — Local lightweight Jimmy Connelly (six wins and six draws), stopped Dal Santo, Italy, in the first round.

▲ WINDISCH — Sepp Iten won his third pro fight, outpointing Josias da Silva Melgiuades, six, feathers. Iten took a count of eight in the third round. This was his fourth contest in 23 days. He's 21 years old.

Attendance — 700.

▲ LONDON — Bloomsbury Hotel — Frank Warren, the 27-year-old fight-fan promoter, fancied breaking into rivalry in London with an all-American fight on his premiere promotion with a Board of Control license. He had earlier imported lower ranked Yanks for shows carrying the National Boxing Council tag (whatever it meant).

Warren's warriors for this show were Jerry (The Bull) Martin and Otis (Flash) Gordon, all the way from Philadelphia and Texas. The arena, in Bloomsbury Hotel, was half filled.

This was the first all-American punch-up in London since Leotis Martin and Thad Spencer waged a thrilling war in Royal Albert Hall.

Martin, in fact, was born in Antigua, the island that produced WBC champion Maurice Hope, which makes him eligible to fight Lotte Mwale for whatever remains of the British Commonwealth light heavyweight title.

Martin's five years in the States have rocketed his status. A win over James Scott excited British fans.

But Jerry's 2:30 of the seventh round stoppage of Otis made the Warrens wonder what all the fuss was about. Martin sounded like a bull who'd spotted a field of cows. He made more noise during the action than the crowd.

Otis later regretted not having tamed the Bull and won the tug o' war with referee Harry Gibbs, who tried hauling Otis back into action when he was bulled and punched out of the ring. Otis stayed out, officially "stopped" while clutching his ribs on the ring apron.

The crablike punching Gordon shocked Martin at the start, threatening an upset. But he soon succumbed to the noise and punch of Philadelphia's adopted son. When the action threatened to end, Gibbs bellowed "Come on, lemme see you work."

Martin understood the veteran English master and obliged. He even said "good punch" when Gordon landed a rare head blow.

The end came with Otis being counted out by the timekeeper. Referee Gibbs never took up the count, so the bout was set down as a technical k.o., or, as they say over there, the referee stopping the contest to prevent the poor chap taking further punishment.

REG GUTTERIDGE

▲ LONDON — York Hall — Former British light middleweight champion Jimmy Batten, 154, Millwall, outpointed George Walker, also 154, Tottenham, eight rounds, as this venue was reopened.

Batten won by 79-78½, the narrowest possible margin, and he had to pull out all the stops to do it.

Walker attacked from the opening bell, did his best to slow his man down with right hands, and cut Batten over the right eye in the fourth session. The bleeding was profuse, but good cornerwork stemmed the flow, and it didn't seem to bother him thereafter.

Jimmy boxed coolly and competently, his accurate jabs shutting Walker's left eye and producing a huge swelling over it. Walker continued to come forward until the final bell, sometimes getting home with his right hand, but leaving openings, which Batten took advantage of with his right crosses.

An exciting final round, toe-to-toe, provided a grand climax to this excellent contest. The traditional nobbins would have been in order, but the fans, alas, did not respond.

Dave Armstrong, 162¾, Hackney, TKO'd George Danahar, 160, Bethnal Green, in the second round.

Alex Tompkins, 176, Bow, halted sub Rupert Christie, 178½, in six.

Gary Nickels, 117½, Paddington, outpointed Jimmy Bott, 120, Liverpool, eight, 79-78.

Dominic Bergonzi, 146, Hoxton, halted Steve Freeman, 147, Sunderland. Freeman was retired by his corner after five rounds with an injured left eye.

Jimmy Cable, 153½, Orpington, made his pro debut, outpointing Mike Miller, also 153½, norwood, six, 60-57½. Miller ws decked in round three, but he rose without a count. Cable didn't lose a round.

▲ LIVERPOOL — Stadium — Herol Graham, 155½, Sheffield, looked impressive, stopping Larry Mayes, 155, U.S.A., in the fourth round. It was Graham's 14th victory in a row.

Tony Sinnott, 147, Liverpool, out.scored Dave Douglas, 146, Larkhall, eight, 79½-78. The victory was decisive, but Douglas ws floored in the first and second rounds.

Jimmy Bunclark, Bottle, stopped unorthodox Glen Rhodes, 126, Sheffield, in the seventh. A cut over the left optic forced the stoppage.

George Schofield, 138, Liverpool, and Barry Winters, also 138, Glasgow, drew, eight.

Ronnie Rathbone, 149, Sheffield, halted Charlie Douglas, 145, Larkhall, two. The ref stepped in when Douglas had been on the canvas twice.

▲ WOLVERHAMPTON — Civic Hall — British featherweight champion Pat Cowdell, 125¾, easily outpointed Earl Wilson, 126, U.S.A., 10 100-95.

Wilson was content to backpedal, and Cowdell was content to rack.up points with jabs.

Eric Wood, 136, beat Mickey Baker, who ws disqualified in the sixth round for "butting." Baker had already been warned for using his shoulder to throw his man.

Baker had been scheduled to fight champion Bingo Crooks for the Midlands lightweight title. Crooks, thought, went into the hospital, and the bout was called off. The fight with Wood was Baker's first defeat.

Paul Chance, 137, Wednesbury, outpointed Johnny Burns, 139½, Birmingham, eight, 79-77½.

Cordwell Hylton, 171, Walsall, Kayoed Steve Fenton, Leicester, with a left hand in round two.

Paul Murray, 142, Birmingham, outpointed John Wiggins, 143, Nottingham, six, 59½-58½.

Steve Gee, 192, Birmingham, and Derek Simpkin, 210, Swadlincote, drew, six. Gee is still unbeaten.

▲ LONDON — Cunard International Hotel — Dave Smith, 113¾, Eltham, halted Glyn Davies, 120, Llanelli, in the second round. The bout was stopped when Davies suffered a cramp in his left leg.

This was Smith's second victory over Davies, and an unfortunate ending to what looked like a good contest.

Mickey Mapp, 151½, Charlton, outpointed Liam Linnen, 148, Coatbridge, eight, 79½-77½. Mapp bled from the nose, and Linnen from the mouth, in a grueling bout.

Tommy Thomas, 142, Tottenham, outscored Johnny Beauchamp, 143½, Portsmouth, six, 59-58½.

Pharoah Bish, 163, Battersea, outpointed Owen Stafford, 166, Peckham, six, 60-58. Stafford, who formerly campaigned under the name of Owen Slue, looked like he did better than the scoreline would suggest.

▲ LONDON — National Sporting Club — Chris Sanigar, 141½, Bristol, easily outscored Norman Morton, 141, Newcastle, eight, 80-76, not losing a round. Sanigar decked Morton in the first, second, and third sessions.

Colin Wake, 138, Hull, TKO'd Barry price, 139, Brighton, in the second. Price had been down and was suffering from an injured ankle.

Steve Pollard, 128, Hull, Kayoed Rocky Bantleman, 130, Hayes, in round two after decking him in the first session.

Bobby Welburn, 144, Hull, outpointed debutant Richard White, 145, Swansea, six, 60-58. White was on the canvas twice.

Mervin Langdale, 222, Southhampton, outscored P.T. Grant, 202, Newcastle, six, 60-58½.

▲ BURSLEM — Adulte Ballroom — Dave George, 112, Swansea, outpointed Jimmy Bott, 120, Liverpool, eight, 79½-77½. It was George's second victory over Bott within three weeks.

Liam Coleman, 177, Leeds, outscored Tommy Jones, 180, Liverpool, six, 67-57. Coleman didn't lose a round, but it was a cracking contest in which Jones was unwilling to concede an inch.

Brian Anderson, 152, Sheffield, outpointed Robbie Smith, 158, Modern, six, 60-57½.

Alan Cooper, 138, Brighton, outscored Dave Taylor, 140, Livepool, six, 59-58½.

▲ SOUTHEND — 20th Century Sporting Club — Chris Christian, 151, Stoke Newington, outpointed Mick Mills, 150½, Sheffield, eight, 79-78. Mills ws handicapped by a cut over the right eye.

Peter Lock, 162, Croydon, TKO'd Tony Walton, 163, Dagenham. The ref halted matters in the sixth and final round after Walton had been floored on two occasions.

Gerry McGrath, 147½, Paddington, halted Gary Brookes, 147, Tottenham. The bout was stopped in round three with the latter taking punishment. A fine rally by McGrath, who was floored twice in the first round.

Ronnie Rathbone, 148, Sheffield, outpointed Randy Henderson, 146, Leighton, six, 60-57½.

▲ LONDON — Elephant [Castle Recreation Centre — Sid Smith, 141½, Forest Hill, kayoed Northern Ireland light welter champion Davy Campbell, 141, in the second round. Campbell, a sub, was never in it, as Smith set him up with stiff jabs in the first round and then brought over a hook that put him down for the full count.

Andy Palmer, 207, Liverpool, knocked out Ron McClean, 229½, Shepheards Bush, in round three with a right.

Mickey Mapp, 155½, Charlton, an dAchille Mitchell, 154, Coventry, drew, eight.

Billy O'Grady, 135, Ceptford, outpointed Jimmy Bunclark, Netherton, eight, 79-77.½

Dave Finigan, 151¼, halted Ricky Daniels, 152, Birmingham, in the second.

Keith Briston, 176, Battersea, outscored Clint Jones, 175½, Crawley, six, 59-58½.

▲ BIRMINGHAM — Arden Sporting Club — Trevor Cattouse, 177, and Rupert Christie, 176, drew, eight.

Bobby Hennessey, 205, Staines, outpointed Steve Gee, 192, Birmingham, eight, 79-78. Gee had been unbeaten.

Winston Burnett, 161¾, Cardiff, outscored Neville Wilson, 159, Wolverhampton, six, 59-58½.

Gordon Stacey, 175, Battersea, outpointed Billy Keen, 174, Bournemouth, six, 60-57½. Keen was on the canvas in round two.

▲ CAMBUSLAND — County Inn — Duncan Hamilton, 134½, beat Ray Ross, 137¼, who retired at the end of round six with an injured hand. Ross was decked in the fifth round.

Dave Douglas, 148½, outscored Gary Newell, 152, Birmingham, eight, 79½-77.

George Bailey, 114, Bradford, outpointed Pat Mallon, 120, Glasgow, six, 59½-58½.

Archie Salmon made his pro debut by outscoring Paul Murray, 146, Birmingham, 59½-58½ over six.

Martin nee, 212½, outscored sub Derek Simpkin, 208, Derby, eight, 79½-78. Not a good scrap to watch.

Robbie Smith, 164½, Rosehill, kayoed Casley McCallum, 157, Croydon, in the second round with a right hand.

Paddy Ryan, 164½, Dagenham, outpointed sub Muhammad Ben, Algeria, six, 59-58½. It didn't look that close.

▲ CAISTER — Holiday Centre — Midlands Area light welter champion Adey Allen, 142, Leicester, outscored Kevin Walsh, 145, Manchester, eight, 79-78. A good fight to watch. Allen won clearly, but Walsh turned in a game performance.

Ian Murray, 123, Manchester, and Alec Irving, 128, Corby, drew, six.

Kevin Durkin, 147, Bradford, outscored Steve Ward, 148, Nottingham, six, 60-58.

Debutant Nick Riaozzi, 147¼, Leicester, looked impressive in outpointing Dave Sunn, 148, Rossendale, six. Riaozzi didn't lose a round.

▲ NEWCASTLE — Eldon Recreation Hall — Brian Anderson, 154, Sheffield, was a shade fortunate to beat Dave Douglas, 148¼, Larkhall, who retired with a suspected fracture of the right wrist. Douglas looked like he was winning.

Neil Fannan, 157½, Hartlepool, outscored Terry Petersen, 156, Leeds, eight, 79½-78½.

Phil Duckworth, 148½, Leeds, halted Alex Gregal, 150, Glasgow. The ref stopped the contest in the third round after Gregal had been on the canvas thrice.

John Rafferty, 190½, Glasgow, outscored Ernie Baister, 184, Sunderland, six, 59-58. Not everyone agreed with the decision. Baister, who was knocked down in the fifth round, had been inactive for eight months.

Ken Foreman, 135, Hartlepool, outpointed Jim harvey, 127, Glasgow, four, 39½-39, in a battle of debutants.

▲ STAFFORD — Top of The World — Tommy Taylor, 173, Hednesford, outpointed Liam Coleman, 177, Leeds, 79-78½, eight. The verdict was disputed.

Taylor would do well to get himself a gumshield that fits properly. The one he had came out in each of the last four rounds. He tired at the close.

Ian Murray, 147, Birmingham, outscored Mike Clemow, also 147, Falmouth, eight, 79-78½.

George Bailey, 113½, Bradford, outpointed Steve Riley, 114, Newport, six, 59½-58½.

Mickey Kidd, 161, Nuneaton, outscored Al Neville, 160, Tottenham, six, 59½-58½.

Gary Buckle, 147, Wednesbury, outpointed Kevin Johnson, also 147, Birmingham, four. The scoreline was 39½-39.

This ws a Benefit Night for former British Empire heavyweight champion Larry Gains.

▲ EVESHAM — Sporting Club — Tommy Taylor, 173, TKO'd Steve Fox, 170, in 0:58 of the first round. Fox was still on his feet when the bout was stopped.

Steve Gainy, 149, Stratford, and Clifton Wallace, Birmingham, drew, six. Gainy was down in round four.

Gary Buckle, 149, Wednesbury, narrowly outpointed Kevin Johnson, also 149, Birmingham, six.

Joe Frater, 175, Grimsby, outpointed Willie Wright, 168, Birmingham, six, 59-58½.

▲ GOSFORTH — Park Hotel — John Feeney, 123, Hartlepool, didn't lose a round outpointing Steve Sims, 125, Newport, 80-78 over eight. A good performance by Sims-against the top ranked British bantamweight contender.

Graeme Ahmed, South Shields, TKO'd Eric Hirschmann, 155, Manchester. The ref stopped it in round two after Hirschmann had been on the canvas twice.

Debutant Ray Plant, 122, outpointed Carl Gaynor, 124, Manchester, six.

John Rafferty, 190, Glasgow, outscored P.T. Grant (formerly Paul Tucker), six. Socreline: 59½-58½.

SCOTLAND

▲ GLASGOW — Kelvin Hall — SUPPORTS TO WATT-O'GRADY: Eddie Burke, 166, Inverkething, TKO'd Freddy Brown, 164, U.S.A., in one.

John Feeney, 126, Hartlepool, outpointed Terry McKeown, 125¾, Barrhead, eight, 80-79.

Winston Spencer, 136, Walworth, EKO'd Najib Daho, 137, Manchester, five.

Terry Christie, 165, Ireland, made his pro debut by stopping Jerry Golden, 163, Manchester, in the second round.

Terry's brother, Joe Christie, 215, also made his pro debut. He outscored fellow debutant John Rafferty, 222, six, 60-58½. Rafferty was down in the first round.

Joseph Ngubane Kayoed Joe Ngidi in the fifth round of a bantamweight contest.

Moses Mthembu, 141, outscored Eugene Mthiyane, 136, six.

Elias Ngcobo outpointed Richard Mntombeni, four, bantams.

Gregory Clark won the Natal welterweight title by outscoring Abel Brown, 10 rounds.

Jerome Gumede outscored Elijah Cele, six, lightweights.

Four-rounders: Gerrie Schnieganz outpointed Mark Melville, light heavyweights. Norman Bromfield outscored Essau Dlamini, junior lightweights. Lucas Sereme outpointed Nick Masondo, middleweights. Arthur Mayasala kayoed Canny Mashala, one, junior middles.

TRANSVAAL

▲ JOHANNESBURG — Portuguese Hall — Bushy Bester, 156½, clearly outpointed American Steve Delgado, 154½, 10. It was an exciting bout that had the fans screaming, and neither fighter ever stopped throwing leather.

Delgado started to give leeway in the sixth round, and he later said it was the altitude that got him. He arrived only a week before the fight.

Bester scored well with straight lefts and right hooks. His southpaw style was a good advantage.

Delgado scored well with short punches to the head. Both fighters threw a lot of body punches.

Six-rounders: Sybrand Oelofse outscored Michael Wellels, lightweights. Basil Meintjies TKO'd Abraham Sello, four, light heavies. Johnny Sham, 146½, outscored Isaac Mabuza, 152½. Johannes Miya outpointed Paul Tsetle, bantamweights. Aladdin Stevens kayoed Elias Nkabinde, five, lightweights.

YANG-HOZUMI
OPBF Flyweight Title

TOKYO, JAPAN — Hong-Soo Yang, 111½, Korea, retained his OPBF flyweight title by knocking out former Japanese national junior flyweight champion Shuichi Hozumi, 111¾, in 2:58 of the ninth round at Korakuen hall. The 5'6" Hozumi (four inches taller than Yang) had been undefeated in 13 bouts.

Hozumi had relinquished the Japanese national 108 pound title 20 days after dethroning Tadashi Tomori at the Hall last August. Shuichi's manager, Akihiko Honda, said that crown was but a stepping stone toward Hozumi's real goal — the flyweight championship of the world. Shuichi, however, does not have the power. Yang, the WBA's sixth ranked flyweight, caught up to him in the ninth round, knocked him down, and knocked him out.

Korean referee Kwang-Soo Kim had the fight scored 80-78, Yang, after eight rounds. Japanese judge Takeaki Kanaya had it 80-78, Hozumi, while the other Japanese judge had it even (79-79). Hozumi, the WBA's sixth ranked junior flyweight, should have made better use of his left.

The 27-year-old Yang, a southpaw, is now 23-6-3 with six kayoes. Hozumi, only 20, is 13-1 with three knockouts.

Tsuyoshi Hamada, 131½, demolished the more experienced Takeshi Mine in 1:18 of the first round in their scheduled 10-round contest. Hamada, a southpaw, is now 7-1 with seven kayoes. His only loss was a decision to Fusao Imai in a Shinjin-o semi-final bout last year. Mine is 12-12-1 with six knockouts. Hamada, 19, is a former All-Japan high school amateur champion. His future looks bright. Ken Morita refereed.

Tsutomu Itokazu, 117¾, halted Shinji Taki, also 117¾, at 0:25 of the sixth round in a scheduled eight. Itokazu is now 3-1-1 with two kayoes. Taki is 7-14-1 with three knockouts.

Hiroshi Gonohe, 129¼, TKO'd Yoshitetsu Une, 129¾, at 1:24 of the fourth round in their scheduled six. Gonohe is now 3-0 with two kayoes. Une is 6-6-1 with four knockouts.

Four-rounders: Masayuki Fukushima, 126¾, kayoed Hiroaki Kikuchi, 127½, in 2:03 of the second. Mutsuo Watanabe, 111¾. won a majority (39-38, 39-38, and 39-39) decision over Nobuo Hamada, 110¾, in the opener.

Attendance — 1,400.

▲ TOKYO — Korakuen Hall — Unbeaten southpaw Akio Kameda retained his Japanese national welterweight title, stopping Kazumi Nakao, 145½, Nagoya, in 0:51 of the fourth round.

Kameda, who is now 15-0 with 14 kayoes, dropped Nakao thrice. Kazumi, six years older than the champ at 30, was nothing but a victim for the 5'10" champion. Nakao is now 10-9. Yusaku Yoshida refereed.

Kameda is ranked second among junior welterweight contenders by the WBA. That's rating him too high. He'd better start meeting name opponents if he has any thoughts of a world title shot.

Katsuo Togashiki, 108, stopped veteran Phoenix Taniguchi, 105¼, in 2:29 of the ninth round in a companion 10. Referee Shoichi Uchida stopped the bout to save the exhausted loser further punishment. Katsuo was the 1980 All-Japan Novice King tournament winner, but he needs to increase his punching power.

Four-rounders: Hiroshi Yamamoto, 117½, and Norio Hasegawa, 117¾, drew. Kazunari Tsubouchi, 114¾, eked out a split decision over Mitsuo Tokumaru, 115. Toshio Minami, 133, halted Ryoji Miyata in 2:33 of the first. Masanao Ishikawa, 117¼, won unanimous decision over Yasuo Kawauchi, 118, in the curtain raiser.

▲ TOKYO — Korakuen Hall — Japanese flyweight champion Kazumasa Tamaki, 113, a fast moving southpaw, suffered five knockdowns and was stopped by Koki Ishii, up-and-coming rookie, in 2:55 of the sixth round in their scheduled 10-round non-title bout.

It was easily the Fight of the Month in Japan. Ishii, 112½, a former Asian Games Gold Medal winner, dropped the champ with a well-timed one-two in the second round. Tamaki rose, and knocked the rookie down in the next frame. The champ, a stand up boxer (a la Alan Minter), took the fourth round, but his vulnerability to body punches was apparent. Blows to the midsection sent him down in the fifth session, and the undefeated Ishii went in for the kill in the sixth. He dropped the fading champ with body shots on three occasions, and the ref declared an automatic kayo.

The official scoresheets were as follows after five rounds: referee Ken Morita and judge Yusaku Yoshida, both 48-46; judge Shoji Nakamori, 47-46 — all for the aggressor, Ishii.

The win upped Ishii's record to 6-0 with four kayoes. Tamaki dropped to 14-6-5 with four knockouts. Both are 26 years old.

Glass jawed Keisuke Yuguchi, 107, knocked out Kiyomi Sato, 106½, in 1:39 of the sixth round in their scheduled 10-rounder. Sato was down thrice. Shoichi Uchida, referee. Yuguchi is now 7-8-1 with four kayoes. Sato is 6-8-2 (no kayoes).

Four-rounders: Muneo Taira, 111¼, won unanimous decision over Masaaki Arima, 111¾. Kazuhiko Matsuda, 118, won a unanimous (40-37 on all cards) decision over Yasuhiko Onishi, also 118. Satoshi Gushiken, 124¼ (no relation to WBA junior flyweight champion Yoko), made his pro debut by stopping Satoru Ogata, 125¼ in 2:59 of round two. Takao Ogaki, 107¼, won a unanimous verdict over Kazunori Maeyama, 106½, in the card opener.

SB Nitto and Uchino Promotions.

Attendance — 1,800.

▲ TOKYO — Korakuen Hall — Yuji Oka (previously known as Jiro Takada), 118, TKO'd Takashi Uezu, also 118, the WBC's 12th ranked bantam, at 2:20 of the fourth round in their scheduled 10-rounder. A bad gash over Uezu's left eyebrow forced the stoppage.

Oka, 27, is now 33-15-4 with 16 wins inside the distance. Uezu, 26, a southpaw, is 13-3 with six kayoes.

Tall, lefthanded Koji Kobayashi, 113, won via unanimous decision over Nobuo Horigome, 112¼, eight. Kobayashi, 23,who seems incapable of throwing uppercuts properly, upped his record to 9-1-2 with five kayoes. The official scores were 80-76, 80-75, and 80-74.

Fujimi Wada, 115, earned a unanimous decision over Manabu Irei, 114¾, eight.

Kiyoshi Nagashima, 122, knocked Naomi Yagi, 112, down thrice and finished him in 2:22 of the second round in their eight-rounder.

Ryo Asuka, 134, survived two knockdowns and floored Ryutaro Otsuki, 135, three times before dropping him for the count in 2:55 of the sixth and final frame. A total of six knockdowns in the contest.

Four-rounders: Katsuhiko Yokoyama, 134¼, knocked out

▲ TOKYO — Korakuen Hall — Masaharu Inami and Tadashi Tomori met for the Japanese national junior flyweight title relinquished by Shuichi Hozumi.

Inami, 108, a 22-year-old boxer, won a close but unanimous decision over Tomori, also 108, in 10 monotonous frames to win the title. Tomori, 20, had held the title, being dethroned by Hozumi.

Tomori was a slight favorite, but he looked too nervous, and threw roundhouse punches in the early rounds. Inami moved well, and threw faster combos at Tomori in the later frames. The former champ just didn't have his former zip and speed.

Inami's domination of the last three sessions clinched the victory. Referee Shoichi Uchida and judge Ken Morita both scored 99-97, with judge Yusaku Yoshida carding 98-96. Inami is now 13-1 with four kayoes. Tomori is 15-4 with four knockouts.

Neither man is possessed of much power.

Kazuyoshi Funaki, 112, knocked out Yoshinobu Sasaki, 111½, in 2:51 of the sixth round in a scheduled 10-round support. Funaki is now 8-10-2 with two kayoes. Sasaki is 8-9 with five knockouts.

Yoshitaka Kuwada, 139¾, knocked out Kirk Fujimoto, also 139¾, in 0:52 of the fourth frame in a scheduled eight-rounder. Fujimoto, who was done twice in the third round, had been ranked fourth by the JBC. He's now 11-2-2 with six knockouts. Kuwada is 6-3-1 with four kayoes. It was quite an upset.

Yoshihide Sawano, 134, won a split decision over Seitaro Chinen, 133¼, six.

Four-rounders: Kokichi Yamamoto, 107¾, outscored Isamu Machida, 106. Unbeaten Danny Misako, 121¼, flattened Chuji Sueyoshi, 122½, with a beautiful left hook to the button in 0:22 of the first session. Kazumi Hamakawa, 107½, disposed of Tomoya Yamada, 106½, in 1:15 of the second. Shigeru Iwaki, 117½, outpointed Haruo Ito, 115½. Kazuhiko Baba, 111, iced Kazumasa Yamashiro, also 111, in 0:56 of the first round in the program opener.

▲ TOKYO — Korakuen Hall — The semi-finals of the annual Shinjin-o (Novice King) tournaments were held before 1,000 boxing lovers. All 10 bouts were scheduled four-rounders.

Mitsuo Imazato, 111½, outscored Yuichi Uchida, 111. Kazuo Osano, 116¾, outpointed Katsuhiko Fukugomori, 111½. Yoichi Ota, 117½, outscored Isao Takashima, 118. Masahide Ikehara, 121½, outpointed Masayoshi Kashiwakura, 118¾. Terumi Higashiogiwara, 126, knocked out southpaw Kozaburo Ichihara, 125¾, in 1:20 of the third round. (Ichihara was carried out of the ring on a stretcher. He's all right, now.) Masaharu Owada, 129, kayoed Shin Nakazawa, 129½, in 3:00 of the third round. Nobuyuki Chisaka, 135, demolished Shunji Konishi, 134, in 2:27 of the third Shigeki Yoshino, 145½, looked impressive stopping Katsuyoshi Hashimoto, 145, in 2:14 of the first round. Shinji Tojo, 157¼, outscored Masanori Omori, 160. Kazuhiko Yasuda, 158¼, stopped Mamoru Numazawa, 156, at 1:15 of the second.

East-Japan Boxing Kyokai (Association).

▲ NAGOYA — Fukiage Hall — Hirokazu Fukui, 126, eked out a majority decision over Takeshi Go (previously known as Moritaka Higashionna), also 126, in 10 dull rounds. Scoring: referee Takaomi Ito, 99-99; judges Takeshi Makimura and Masao Kato, 100-98 and 99-97, respectively, Fukui. The winner is now 17-2-5 with seven kayoes. Go is 10-6-7 with two wins inside the distance.

Lanky lefty Yukimitsu Kondo, 111½, reappeared after a two-year lay-off, but collapsed for the 10 count at the hands of Ryuji Ichinomiya, 110, in 1:24 of the third round in a scheduled eight. A well timed left shot to the temple sent the southpaw into dreamland.

Ichinomiya is not 6-2 with three kayoes. Kondo is 8-8-4 with two knockouts.

Four-rounders: Hideki Godai, 119½, and Junya Hamada, also 119½, majority draw (40-40-, 40-40, 40-38). Takashi Otsuka knocked debuting Takahiro Kishioka, 122½ down thrice for a kayo at 2:24 of the third round. Otsuka is now 3-0 with three kayoes. A mismatch. Masato Kawai, 118¾, won a majority decision over Kazushi Hara, 120. Hiroshi Sakamoto, 125¼, earned a close but unanimous verdict over Kiyoshi Nonama, 125. Kazuhisa Koyama, 105¼, made his pro debut by outpointing Tokuhiko Nishida, 107½, in the curtain raiser.

Co-promoted by Tokoname and Matsuda Promotions.

Attendance — 1,500.

KOREA

▲ SEOUL — Munhwa Stadium — Only 10 days after his defense against Torkano Marcos, OPBF middleweight champion Chong-Pal Park, 159¼, faced another Australian, Phil Davies, 158¾, and retained his title with a kayo in 1:32 of the third.

Park, now 17-1-1 with 17 kayoes, may soon start meeting "name" opponents from outside the Orient. He's 5'8" and might be handicapped against tall jabbers.

Another scheduled 12-rounder saw unbeaten Chung-Jae Hwang, 145½, retain his OPBF welterweight title, stopping former Japanese middleweight champion Dynamite Matsuo, also 145½, in 1:46 of the fifth. Hwang, who floored Matsuo time and time again, is now 12-0 with 11 kayoes.

Dong-A Promotions.

▲ SEOUL — Kyunbook Stadium — Fast rising Kyung-Joo Ha, 118, won the Korean national bantamweight title by unanimous decision over defending champion Myung-An Moon, also 118, in 10 speedy heats.

Korean junior bantamweight champion Chul-Ho Kim, 115¼, halted Berlin Olivetti, 116½, Philippines, in 2:24 of the third in a supporting 10-round bout.

Leehoon Promotions.

▲ SEOUL — Munhwa Stadium — Heung-Suk Yuh, 141, and Young-Dae Kim, 140¾, the two top Korean junior welterweight contenders, drew, 10 rounds.

Young-Sae Oh, 136, the KBC's second ranked lightweight, won unanimous decision over Japanese newcomer Tadao Ishida, 135, 10.

▲ INCHON — Inchon Stadium — Korean national flyweight champion Kap-Chul Shin, 112, TKO'd Dae-Chun Park, 111¼, in the sixth round to retain his title.

▲ SEOUL — Munhwa Stadium — Chong-Yun Lee, 134, won unanimous decision over Ric Dolotallas, 133¾, Philippines, 10.

Choongchung Promotions.

▲ SEOUL — Munhwa Stadium — Hard hitting Chung-Il Choi, 133¼, continued his winning streak by stopping Rod Sequenan, 133, Philippines, in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-rounder.

Saeki Promotions.

Choi, the WBA's ninth ranked junior lightweight, has become a U.S. citizen, residing in Los Angeles. It's a great loss for the Korean boxing fraternity, as Choi is undefeated, having demolished all his opponents in the pro ranks since winning a Gold Meal in the Asian Amateur Games. He has fine assets in height, reach, and power punching, and we wish him luck in the new World.

▲ PUSAN — Kooduk Stadium — OPBF junior featherweight champion Soon-Hyun Chung, 121¼, retained his title by knocking out Korean national champion Chong-Woo Baek, 122, in 2:52 of the fourth round in a scheduled 12-rounder. Chung is ranked sixth by The Ring International Panel.

Sung-Nam Kim won a unanimous decision over Chi-Bok Kim, 110, 10. It was Sung-Nam's first appearance since his loss to Hilario Zapata, and he looked a little rusty.

Geron Porras, 130, TKO'd Leo Cansino, 131, in the eighth round of the evening's first 10-rounder.

Arturo Cayetano.

▲ QUEZON CITY — Araneta Coliseum — William Develos won the OPBF junior bantamweight title with a split decision over champion Yung-Shik Kim of Korea, 12.

The 29-year-old Kim dropped Develos with a vicious right uppercut in the second round, but William, from the third round on, used well timed lefts to take control. He showed enough aggression in the fourth and ninth sessions to win the contest.

Kim tried to knock the 23-year-old Develos out in the last round. His efforts were in vain.

Korean referee Yung-Chung Choi scored the bout 59-55 for Kim, but Filipino judges Larry Nadayag and Col. Alfredo Quiazonboth both had it 58-54, Develos.

The new OPBF champion is managed by former world junior lightweight king Gabriel (Flash) Elorde.

THAILAND

▲ UBON — Ratchathani Stadium — Vichit Muangroi-et, the WBA's second ranked junior featherweight, looked a little sluggish at the start, but used his superior combinations to earn a unanimous decision over Sandy Noora, Philippines, 10. There were no knockdowns.

Vichit and his people want a shot at WBA champion Sergio Palma. He'd better test himself with other name opponents first.

Attendance — 3,500.

▲ BANGKOK — Rajadamnern Stadium — Sakda Saksuree, 118, won the Thai Bantamweight title. He opened a gash over the left eyebrow of Suriya Pratumvadee, also 118, who was unable to answer the bell for the eighth round. This was for the crown left vacant when Venice Borkorsor was unable to make the weight limit.

▲ BANGKOK — Rajadamnern Stadium — Somdej Sakdiphipus, 136, the TBC's top ranked lightweight contender, halted Songkram Singhnongpoh, 133, in the second session of their scheduled sixer.

▲ BANGKOK — Lumpinee Stadium — Rising Dechumnaoy Singthanongsak, 124, demolished the less experienced Kajornkiat O.F.N., also 124, in the third frame of their scheduled six-rounder.

▲ BANGKOK — Lumpinee Stadium — Thanupetch Petch-u-bol, 121, the TBC's 10th ranked junior featherweight, won a unanimous decision over Dechphan S. Sirinum, 120, six.

▲ BANGKOK — Rajadamnern Stadium — Sunthi Donjadee, 124, the TBC's fifth ranked featherweight contender, suffered an upset fourth round kayo at the hands of Arcadej Singjomthong, 124½, a rookie, in a scheduled six-rounder. Arcadej is now in the TBC's top 10.

▲ BANGKOK — Rajadamnern Stadium — Another upset took place, as Kongkiat Sithmanun, 126, was thoroughly outjabbed by fresh, young Usopnoi Lukakadyotin, 130, in a six-round bout.

▲ BANGKOK — Lumpinee Stadium — Former Thai bantamweight champion Vechayun Senaphitak returned to action as a junior lightweight. Senaphitak, 129, outscored Manus Lo-Ngerng, 130, the TBC's fourth ranked contender, six.

▲ BANKOK — Rajadamnern Stadium — Overweight bantamweight Sakdisamai Chorsirirat, 121, dropped junior featherweight hope Ponpun Sorphayathai, 122, for a nine count in the third and won an unexpected points decision, six.

▲ BANGKOK — Lumpinee Stadium — Sangthong Chanjeelar, 133, easily polished of Phichit S. Poonpol, also 133, in the first round of a scheduled six-rounder. Chanjeelar is ordinarily a featherweight.

▲ BANGKOK — Lumpinee Stadium — Suban Muangsurin, 118, outscored Phichitsuk Kor-u-sayarm, 117½, six.

▲ BANGKOK — Rajadamnern Stadium — Thanongsuk Yuthankit, 130, knocked out Srinil Sithchular, 133, in the third round of a scheduled six-rounder.

▲ AUBURN — RSL Club — Southpaw Dennis Talbot, 130, Australia, outpointed Jeff Smith, also 130, New Zealand, by a good margin in an exciting 12-rounder, but had to pick himself off the canvas on two occasions.

Smith also took two counts, but he was mainly caught off balance when he was knocked down. Talbot, on the other hand, was stunned each time.

The bout was billed for the vacant Australasian junior lightweight title. An "Australasian" title is usually contested by an Australian and a New Zealander. Smith, as the New Zealand champion, certainly qualified, but Talbot is not the Australian champ. Paul Ferreri is.

Referee Billy Males, who did his usual good job, scored the bout 118-112, while judges Les Gibbons and John Gauchi carding 116-111 and 118-115, respectively. All the votes were in favor of Talbot, as was this reporter's unofficial score of 119-111.

Paul Talbot, 130, and Bimbo Morris, also 130, drew, six.

Four-rounders: Mark Aquilina, 128, kayoed Rocky Warren, 126, three. Rod Bell, 128, knocked out Lou Williams, 129, four. Billy Doyles, 133, outpointed Eddie David, 135.

▲ MT. PRITCHARD — Community Club — Former Australian welterweight champion Steve Dennis, 152, outpointed

Ross Eadie, 150, 10. Dennis, though, was on the deck nine seconds after the bout started for the only knockdown of the contest.

Eadie seemed to be past his best. Dennis, however, is as good as ever.

A couple of weeks later, Ross Eadie phoned to say he was retiring from boxing. He thanked me for all the publicity I had given him over the years and for the job I'd done in refereeing many of his fights. Eadie held two NSW State titles during his career, and made his mark upon Australian boxing.

Andy Mann, 140, stopped Rod Connors, 146, in the second round of a scheduled eight.

Four-rounders: Wayne Hanson, 152, outpointed Jim Lagudi, 150. Mark Vallance, 140, outscored Saldine Allaf, also 140.

▲ MARRICKVILLE — RSL Club — Australian Middleweight champion Wally Carr, 169, didn't play around in his scheduled 10-rounder with Ken Eldridge, 175. Carr solved Eldridge in the opening round, and slammed a right to the jaw early in the second. Eldridge stood stock still, Carr landed another right, and referee Trevor Christian darted in to give a standing count. He quit the counting early, though, and crowned Carr as the winner. Eldridge was unconscious on his feet at 0:39 of round two.

Frank Carson, 121, won a majority decision over Jim Bowen, 122, in an eight-rounder that drew a shower of $60 from ringsiders. Referee Christian scored the bout a draw.

Bimbo Morris, 128, outpointed Patrick Young, 132, six.

▲ SUTHERLAND — United Services Club — Ken Salisbury, 155, halted Benny Tabua, 154, at the end of the ninth round, and ringsiders rewarded the boys by tossing in $68.

Tabua started out well, but was never ahead on the scorecards. Referee Dal Conway stopped the scheduled 10-rounder when Ken brought Ben to a standstill.

Six-rounders: Eric King, 160, and Con O'Connor, 161, drew. Mark Branxton, 210, kayoed Gary Fuller, 212, in the first round. Joe Burruni, 168, outscored Semi Finau, 166.

▲ BELMONT — Sailing Club — Peter Berrigan, 134½, won a unanimous decision over Rex Canon, 132¼, 10.

Six-rounders: Willie Drinkwater, 154¼, outpointed Terry Clayton, 150. Wayne O'Donnell, 127¾, halted Gary Grimson, 136¾, in the third.

Four-rounders: Whizzer Lawrence, 145½, outpointed Tony Adcock, 147¾. Alf Benvenuti, 134½, stopped Wayne Tindall, 134½, three.

▲ CRONULLA — Labor & Workingmen's Club — Tommy Roberts, 145, a prospect, scored a clear points win over Sasa Baleisuva, 147, Fiji, in the eight-round main event. The crowd showed its appreciation with a shower.

Six-rounders: Steve Assang, 140, outpointed Ezzard Charles, 145. Saldine Allaf, 142, outscored Billy Doyles, 142.

▲ KINGSFORD — South Sydney Junior Leagues Club — Ken Morris, 165 outpointed Semi Finau, 170, in the eight-round main event.

Eric King, 161, and Steve Campbell, 155, drew, six.

Four-rounders: Mark Branxton, 203, halted Ray Spurling, 186, in two. Cracker Butcher, 142, stopped Richard Kumar, 143, in one.

▲ KINGSFORD — South Sydney Junior Leagues Club — Clint Brown, 152, outscored a surprisingly heavy Paul Baker, 148, eight.

Sparrow Freeman, 128, outpointed Joe Carriage, 132, five.

Four-rounders: Cracker Butcher, 141, stopped Kini Barlu, 142, in the third. Lloyd Hanna, 135, outpointed David Garland, 136.

QUEENSLAND

▲ BRISBANE — Festival Hall — Hector Thompson has come to the end of the road. Once a top boxer-fighter, holder of Commonwealth, Australian, and Australasian titles, and twice a contestant in world title bouts, the skill, reflexes, the resistence have left him. Thompson's corner pulled him out at the end of the sixth round against Steve Dennis.

Dennis weighed 152, Thompson 150, the heaviest of his career. It was scheduled for 10.

Rising Brian Janssen, 138, halted experienced Ezzard Charles, 142, in the fifth frame of a 10-round main supporting bout.

▲ NOTES — A proposed contest between Australian heavyweight and light heavy champion Tony Mundine and British light heavyweight king Bunny Johnson failed to materialize when the Brisbane City Council refused to grant a needed license.

There was a lot more behind this than what was reported.

VICTORIA

▲ MELBOURNE — Town Hall — Ritchie Roberts, 160 won a split decision over Australian junior middleweight champion Alex Temelkov, 161, in a 10-round non-title bout. Roberts boxed well, while Temelkov was not sharp.

Eight-rounders: Bimbo Morris outpointed Mick Parkinson. Rockey Vilella, 154, halted Buddy Nixon, also 154, in the first.

▲ DEDERANG — Johnny Duff, 125, and Sparrow Freeman, 122, drew, eight.

Tony Noone, 147, outscored Lindsay Goode, 149, four.

Three-rounders: Jay Crowe, 128, and Sam Carabene, 133, drew. Mick Barber, 138, outpointed Tony Cox, 133. Garry Brown, 133, stopped Graeme Howe, 135, two. Greg Crowe, 158, halted Brett Barton, 154, in one.

FIJI

▲ NADI — Saiyad Hassan, 145, Fiji, halted Kirk Blair, 139, Australia, in the 10th round.

NEW ZEALAND

▲ AUCKLAND — YMCA — Billy Johnston, Australia, knocked out Nuu Tanuvasa, New Zealand, in the third round of a scheduled 10-round middleweight bout.

RAY MITCHELL

▲ AUCKLAND — Stanley Street Stadium — Australian light heavy and heavyweight champion Tony Mundine became the new Australasian light heavy champ by stubbornly outfighting Monty Betham, reigning New Zealand middleweight and light heavyweight champion, and stopping him in five rounds of a scheduled 15-rounder at the outdoor Stanley Street Stadium.

It was a meaningful victory for Mundine, as this country's Supreme Boxing Promotions, Ltd., had promised the Aussie better opposition in the coming months and aid his guest for a WBC light heavyweight title fight with Matthew Saad Muhammad. In a prefight interview, I asked Mundine if "it migh not be wiser to go chasing the cruiserweight title, for it seems a weaker division," only to be quickly answered. "I'm a natural light heavyweight, and it's Muhammad's title I'm shooting for."

A victory for Betham would have enhanced the Samoan-domiciled Aucklander's chances of a real world rating, but it was not to be, as Mundine, 174½ to Betham's 165½, was simply too powerful. Betham later announced that he was giving up his New Zealand 175-pound crown and intended to campaign solely as a middleweight. "You know, I can even make the junior middles limit easily," stated a somewhat subdued Betham after hsi game effort against Mundine.

The pre-fight feeling was that it was simply going to be a case "of a good big man beatying a good small man" and that's how it turned out, although Betham performed well and hopes of victory looked good when Monty sliced a cut over Mundine's right eye in round two. Betham had the speed of foot and had it not been for the small size of the ring, the Aucklander might have kept his robust exponent at bay.

Mundine swept into the attack at the opening bell and unsettled Betham with lefthooks to the head. Betham however, used every inch of the ring and retaliated with lefthooks of his own. Betham kept up his counterboxing early in the second and made the over anxious Australian lunge badly and miss. Finally, Mundine scored through with a right uppercut in close to stagger Betham who reeled into a corner. Mundine rushed after him but slipped and sprawled on the canvas, giving his opponent those extra few seconds to recover and surprise him with a two-hand burst of punching before the round's end.

The Australian answered round three with blood dribbling ffrom his cut eye. he still oozed confidence supreme, but Betham had him worried, as the latter moved and countered with quick lashings from both fists. Betham was gathering the points in round four, as he unsettled Mundine with speed and fast looping lefthooks which frequently landed solidly on the Aussie's chin, side of face, and on his cut eye. With some 30 seconds to go, Mundine dropped Betham in the latter's own corner with a smashing left-rip to the body and then belaboured his game foe to head and body before the bell ended the stanza.

Mundine was out like a flash as soon as the bell rang for round five, attacking his foe with both hands until a zooming right spilled Betham for another compulsory eight-count. Betham gamely tried to hold off his tormentor, but Mundine was not going to be denied, and a sub.sequent fierce two-handed attack pummelled Betham to the canvas yet again, and, whilst a bemused boxer lay sprawled on the canvas, the referee rightfully ruled Mundine the victor.

Supreme Boxing Promotions, Limited, spearheaded by Mr. Barry Blayney and Mr. Rex hill, have better and bigger things in mind for both Mundine and Betham. Their next tourney is scheduled for February 11th, and Messrs Blayney and Hill are hoping to entice the light-heavy champion of Canada, Gary Summerhayes, here to NZ to meet Mundine in a return match. Failing that, then they trust they might obtain Lotte Mwale over to meet the Australian, preferably with Mwale's Commonwealt title at stake. Mwale vs. Mundine is, logically, a world title eliminator and, should Mundine come out on top, Supreme Boxing Promotions are going to make more definate arrangements with Matthew Saad Muhammad's camp.

Although beaten, Monty Betham is not being ignored by Messrs Blayney and Hill. In fact, they would like any genuine middle or light-heavyweight who care to oppose BEtham or Mundine to contact Supreme Boxing Promotions, Limited, Box 63124, Auckland, north Island, New Zealand (or telephone Auckland NZ 778-481) to discuss terms, etc.

This was a pro-am tournament, the main event being preceded by a middleweight bout in which Rocky Taupola wiped out the scorecards when he finally stopped Nu'u Tanuvasa in the fifth stanza. Several good amateur fights whetted the 3,000 fans' appetites before the two professional contests came off.

PAPUA NEW GUINEA

▲ PORT MORESBY — Mark Apai, Papua New Guinea, halted Benny Tabua, a Fijian living in Australia, on a cut eye in the seventh frame of their scheduled 10-round junior middleweight affair.

Tiger Mann, Papua New Guinea, stopped Patrick Young, Australia, in the sixth round of another scheduled 10. An injured hand brought on the stoppage.

VETERAN BOXERS' BEAT

ON OCTOBER 29TH, 1980, THE JAMES FIGG Association awarded former featherweight champion Willie Pep with the first James Figg International Boxing Award, at the Old State House in Hartford, Connecticut . . . Willie "Will O' The Wisp" Pep was born in Middletown, Conn. on September 19, 1922. He was world featherweight champion from 1942-1948 and from 1949-1950, fighting 241 professional bouts, with 229 wins, 65 knockouts, one draw, and 11 defeats. Pep was elected to the Boxing Hall of Fame in 1963 . . . The program had as its honored guest J. Kenneth Marsh, Her Britannic Majesty's Consul of the British Consulate General Office, as well as many Connecticut State officials and the President of the James Figg Association, Thomas Calwell, who made the presentation to the Great Willie Pep.

The 1980 Inductees of the California Old Timers Boxing Hall of Fame were as follows:

TIGER JOHNNY CLINE, Middleweight contender of the 1920's and 1930's.

JACK DOWNEY, Former boxer, still active after 50 years as a great referee.

BENNY FORD, Veteran San Francisco manager and fight promoter.

JERRY GIESLER, A former California boxing commissioner of great excellence.

HARRY GRAYSON, A San Francisco boxing writer who made the Big-Time.

CURLEY GRIEVE, One of boxing's best sports editors.

BILL KYNE, An old-time promoter of great boxing matches.

GLEN LEE, Great middleweight contender during the 1930's.

JOHNNY LOTSY, A veteran of 112 bouts during the 1920's and also a referee.

EDDIE MACHEN, Leading heavyweight contender during the 1950's and 1960's.

BILLY NEWMAN, Veteran manager, trainer and gym owner.

LOUI PARENTE, One of San Francisco's great early-day boxing promoters.

PAULIE PETERS, Middleweight contender during the 1940's.

SPEED REILLY, Veteran radio and ring announcer for San Francisco and Oakland.

This year's induction ceremonies were held on October 25, 1980 at the Cedar Lanes in Fresno, California. Among the many former Fistic Greats who attended this affair were Jimmy McLarnin, Bobo Olson, Young Corbett III, Lew Jenkins, Jackie Fields, Tony Olivera, Carmine Fatta, Roscoe Toles, Ray Lunney, Jack Silver, Goldie Hess, and Billy Mahoney.

The Veteran Boxers Association of Brooklyn, Inc.—Ring 21—held its 20th annual Testimonial Dinner-Dance on November 16th, 1980, at the "Micali Terrace" in Brooklyn, N.Y. This year's Salute went to former middleweight champion Vito Antuofermo, ex-welterweight contender Larry Esposito and the late Al DeLucia . . . Among the 400 patrons on hand were names like Charlie Gellman, Lou Salica, Corporal Izzy Schwartz, Solly Seeman, Charlie Fusari, Pat Marcune, Frankie Ryff, Young Petey Gullotta, Sam Markowitz, Tommy Marengo, Johnny Mirabella, Charley Frisco, Charley Young, Petey DelRe, Young Reo, Sonny Early, Petey Della, Manny Dizon, Dom Dellarocco, Carmine Fatta, Joe Ryder, Larry Young, Frankie Ross and Steve King—and many more too numerous to mention. President Joe Mulli was chairman of this affair and he, along with his committee, are to be commended on this wonderful occasion.

Nick Girolamo, recently retired from "Sperry" where he was employed for the past 28 years as an instructional systems engineer. Old-time boxing fans will undoubtedly remember him as "Machine Gun" Nickey Jerome, the Brooklyn boy who was dubbed the "Machine Gun" for the rapidity and damaging effect with which he threw left hooks. Nickey started boxing in 1934, and as an amateur had 15 bouts, winning 10 via the KO route. He turned pro and it wasn't long before he was in there battling the champions. Lou Salica, ex-Bantamweight King, was beaten twice by Nickey in over-the-weight matches and Nickey was responsible for ending the career of the great Kid Chocolate, winning a 1939 decision in Havana, Cuba in a bout that proved to be the Kid's last. He also boxed Beau Jack, Sixto Escobar, Tony Marino, Harry Jeffra and Joey Archibald plus many other leading contenders of that era. Fighting a total of 85 bouts, Nick was the winner of 70. Today he still maintains an active interest in boxing, training many youngsters at the local PAL and CYO gyms in his home baliwick of Greenpoint, Brooklyn.

Paul Minai is the new president of the Veteran Boxers Social Club of New Jersey. This organization's address is 177 Malone Avenue, Belleville, New Jersey 07109.

On November 25, 1980, the 5th Annual "Salute to Boxing Greats" was held at the Downtown Athletic club in New York City. A sell-out crowd of 500 people were there to honor the following: Don Scanlon, Jr., who received the Meritorious Service Award; Mike Mazurki, the president of the Cauliflower Alley Club, was presented the Distinguished Service Award; Walter Cartier, former Middleweight contender, was presented The Salute to Boxing Greats Award; and Willie Pep received the 5th Annual Rocky Marciano Award, "A Champion in the Ring—A Champion in Life". Don Dunphy emceed the evening's festivities which also featured 10 outstanding collegiate boxing bouts (with amateurs from West Point, Navy and Air Force Academies and other top colleges of the area). A great beefsteak dinner was served before the show; and after the bouts and awards a buffet along with entertainment was also quite enjoyable. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dempsey, Billy Graham, Charley Norkus, Tony Janiro, Al Tisi, Vince Cartier, Lester Bromberg, Lew Eskin, Johnny LoBianco, John Arcaro, Joe Torre, Joe Pignatano, Ed Post, Sam Markowitz and Joe Saveriano were some of the Boxing greats and sports celebrities in attendence. This year's affair was put together by Rudy J. Riska, Athletic Director, and his Committee headed by Chairman Joseph Ponte. Congratulations to a fine evening's entertainment.

On March 29, 1981, the Veteran Boxers Association of New York, Inc., Ring 8, will hold their 26th Annual Dinner and Dance at the Embassy Ballroom at the Holiday Inn, 440 West 57th St., New York, N.Y. They will honor Gerry Cooney, No. 1 ranked heavyweight contender; Johnny Colan, former middleweight and light heavyweight contender and Julien N. Mayer, Ring 8's Capable Financial Secretary. For further information please contact: Mickey Katz, 2216 Avenue R., Brooklyn N.Y. 11229.

Abe J. Greene, former N.J. Boxing Commissioner, is in the Barnet Hospital in Paterson, N.J., after breaking his ankle in a recent accident. He would appreciate hearing from his friends.

FOR THE RECORD

What does Muhammad Ali have in common with Yugoslavian light heavyweight Mate Parlov and Argentinean flyweight Pascual Perez? Answer: they are among the select men who have won both Olympic and professional boxing championships. Winning the Olympic gold medal isn't easy, but winning the world's most prestigious amateur boxing tournament and then also winning a professional boxing championship is a lot more difficult. There have been 144 Olympic boxing champions since the inception of the modern Olympic Games, but only 13 of them later won professional world's championships.

Of course, not all Olympic champions became professional boxers. Many of them were from Iron Curtain countries and never had the opportunity to box professionally. (Hungary's Laszlo Papp was a notable exception). Age was a factor for a few others. Eddie Crook was 31 years old when he won the Olympic middleweight title in 1960 and Great Britain's Richard Gunn was 37 when he won his gold medal in 1908—hardly an age to attempt a professional boxing career. Some, like Eddie Eagan, were simply not interested in boxing professionally. Eagan could be termed a "classical Avery Brundage amateur" who competed for the love of sport. He won the Olympic light heavyweight championship in 1920, competed as a heavyweight in 1924, and in 1932 won an Olympic gold medal as a member of the United States bobsled team. He was a graduate of Yale, a Rhodes scholar, and author of a book entitled Fighting For Fun.

Many Olympic champions did turn professional, however, with varying success. Currently active Olympic champions include Ronnie Harris, Sugar Ray Seales, Howard Davis, and Michael Spinks. All are top rated boxers who may yet become professional champions. Chris Finnegan, Laszlo Papp, and Bep Van Klavern were among those who campaigned successfully but could not win the world's championship. Others, such as James Boyd and Ricardo Delgado, were relatively unsuccessful as pro boxers. It would seem that a man who was the best amateur boxer in the world would have an easy time winning the professional crown, but such has not been the case.

Conversely, it would appear that a boxer capable of winning a professional championship would sail through an amateur tournament such as the Olympics. Yet, such great champions as Eder Jofre, Vic Toweel, David Moore, Vincente Saldivar, and Victor Galindez could not win more than one Olympic bout. Nearly half of the 45 professional champions with Olympic experience lost their first or second Olympic bout and didn't even make it to the quarterfinal round. All of which makes the accomplishments of the 13 Olympians who did win professional championships even more remarkable.

WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

JOE DE NUCCI

LIKE MEMORIES SOFTENED BY TIME, the marks of battle have gently assimilated into the face of Joe DeNucci. The casual glance at this second-term Massachusetts legislator might not pick it up immediately, but the experienced viewer, or the perceptive individual will recognize it: a fighter's face, a symbol of the years spent in the most brutal of athletic competition, a pride that signifies accomplishment.

It's nothing out of the movie "Rocky" and the Newton representative was never the "Italian Stallion" because DeNucci was a big winner in the ring. Sure, he received the lumps, frustrations and anguish connected with boxing and politics, but he has proved his mettle through perseverance—a type instilled by his immigrant grandfather who conned his way into a railroad job by using an Irish name.

DeNucci, 41, was born in the Boston suburb he represents. He might easily rival his grandfather's perseverance with his political triumphs because this former Chairman of the Freshmen Representatives—so elected by his peers—won his House seat in the 16th Middlesex District over Republican George F. Withington. Even more startling for political buffs who follow each contest with intensity of a Jimmy the Greek following sporting events, was his win over Democratic incumbent Richard J. McGrath by 176 votes.

In 1974, DeNucci lost his bid for the House to McGrath by four votes, a sign to politically attuned soothsayers that he was destined to run again. So, DeNucci heeded a call as he had done in a ring career in which he met two world champions and dozens of the world's best middleweight boxers.

Often, the bouts flash back in his mind as the unanswered questions grate and annoy. Why was it a draw against Joey Giardello, a great fighter who became a champion after most had retired?....Or a split decision loss to Emile Griffith who once held the welterweight and middleweight titles? For if

BY MICHAEL COUTURE

DeNucci had only won. But the world of boxing is governed by fragile standards: A blow missed by an inch; One head striking the eyebrow just before the other had a chance to land fully; A referee who doesn't care for in-fighting, or one who does; A judge's preference for style; the home crowd spurring the underdog into a Don Quixote conquest, etc., etc., etc.

Mainly, it is a game of psyche as Muhammad Ali proved. During his years DeNucci was equal to it with his heavily-muscled physique, the rugged features, the confident walk and a reputation for destructive punching and grit. Oh, it was all his during those golden years when he was unrivaled in Boston as a drawing card. The fabled North End, with its large Italian population, turned out en masse as did the Italians from other suburban cities such as Malden and Revere.

His bouts held a special flavor—one that today's pugs fail to recapture. Perhaps it isn't their fault, only the passage of time. For then, there were the sounds of bets and odds being made as the bout progressed; the shouted names in English and Italian while sombre looking men in their 50s and beyond sat in the wide brimmed hats of the day. During the afternoon some of the voices peddled produce in Haymarket Square or were heard near the dock areas or at the race track. At night, they united in cheering for Joe DeNucci. For he brought the expectancy of the fight-goers ultimate thrill—the knockout.

No, DeNucci didn't need theatrics. He didn't need a boost in bravado from an entourage. He carried his lethal weapon in a left hook. Hardly considered a stick-and-move boxer, DeNucci needed punching power to cope with the many six-footers in the division. At five-foot, eight inches, one didn't expect to outjab his taller foes.

Again, good fortune was his in having the late legendary Sammy Fuller (Sabino Ferullo) in his corner. Also, there was the just as legendary "Rip" Valenti as a manager. Both guided Tony DeMarco to the world welterweight championship. Like DeMarco, DeNucci was a local product who budded under careful guidance. Like DeMarco, he was a proponent of the left hook, an easy manner and a large following.

Going back, the start was even more pronounced due to the tutoring provided. A former amateur and professional boxer, Alexander "Sandy" DeNucci, Joe's father, taught boxing at the Newton YMCA where he worked as a maintenance man. Little Joe was fascinated by game: the ability to land punches without being hit in return; the hard demanding exercise and the intense satisfaction of training.

"My father never pushed me, but when I decided to take up boxing seriously, he helped me," DeNucci said in his relaxed manner.

A friendly, easy-going type, DeNucci is well liked in the State House. It is apparent by the number of persons hailing him, kidding with him. And it is obvious that DeNucci enjoys it, just like an old movie star who knows the public remembers. But he hopes he will be remembered for more than just what he did in the ring. For DeNucci is conscientiously trying to do his best in office. He is on committees dealing with health care and public safety and has accepted his commitments as a 24-hour job.

Actually, "Joe" is his middle name. DeNucci's first name is Angelo, taken from his maternal grandfather, a custom in Italian families. A strong bond exists between DeNucci and his grandfather.

"I remember one night at ringside with him dressed in his conductor's uniform, as he just made it from work," De Nucci recalled. "In the days that he first got the job, it was impossible for an Italian to work for the New York Central Railway. When he applied, my grandfather used the name John Dennison. It took a little wit and perseverance to get a job then."

When Angelo DeNucci went into a hospital for tests not long ago, DeNucci went to see his grandfather and found that he hadn't been admitted, at least not in the hospital records. Thinking quickly, DeNucci asked for John Dennison and was shown to his grandfather's room, his grandfather forced to use his nom de rail because of the railroad insurance.

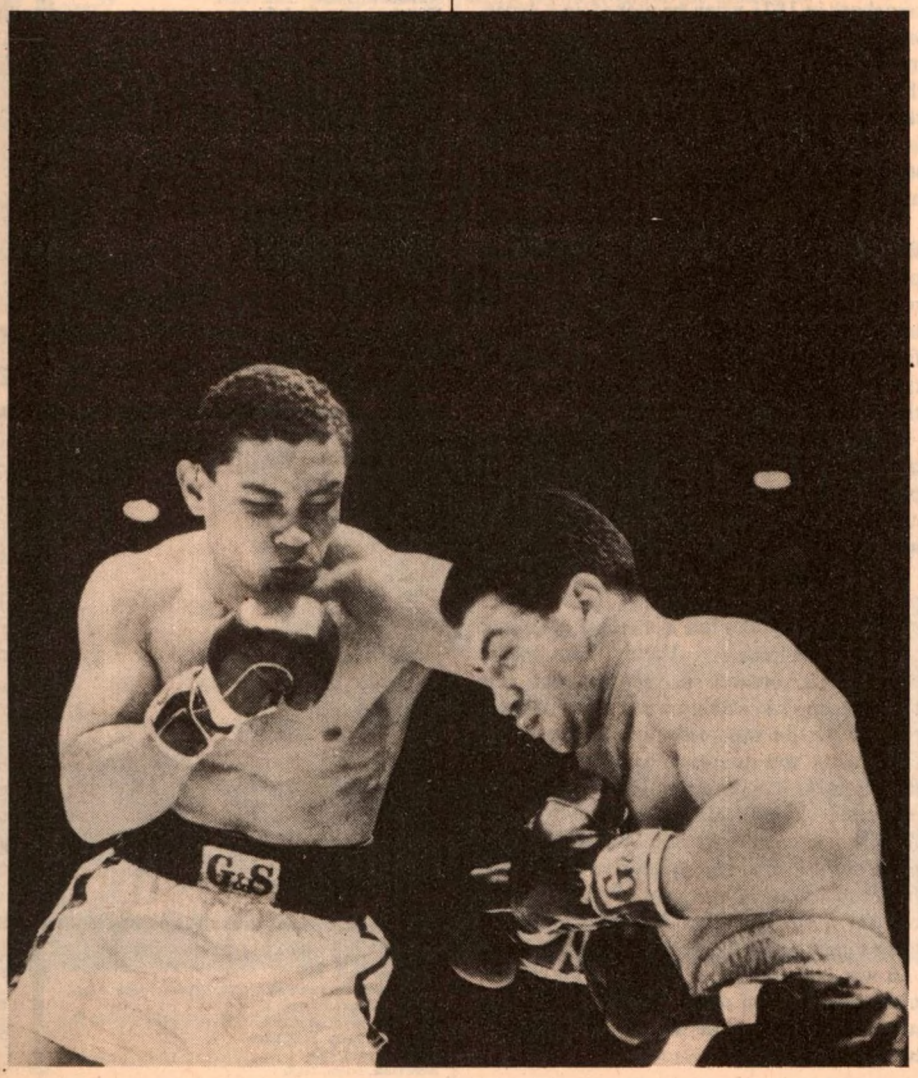
As an amateur, DeNucci captured honors in every competition he entered. With no new worlds to conquer and the desire to excel as part of his basic character makeup, DeNucci used a doctored birth certificate to turn professional in 1957 while still a senior in high school.

To DeNucci, the past is easily accessible and like a childhood dreamer, he is able to pick up the pieces and reshape them. By this time Fuller was an integral part of the scene and was committed to the goal of making DeNucci a contender through a philosophy steeped in good physical conditioning and a bone-jarring left hook.

"Sammy fought some of the greats such as Barney Ross, Tony Canzoneri, Billy Petrolle and others. Legend has it that his voice became hoarse from catching punches in the windpipe, but I doubt that it's true because a fighter keeps his chin tucked in thereby protecting it—and the windpipe. But it could have happened," DeNucci said.

Fuller had a voice that was so gravelly that it would have made the late jazz great Louis Armstrong appear to be a tenor.

Never rocked by uncertainty DeNucci always felt the championship was within his reach. He trained with that concept in mind, learning the lessons provided by Fuller: the slip of the jab, the counterpunch, the bob-and-weave to get inside an opponent. He coupled his lessons with an ability to disregard the crowd's emotion and concentrate on the task at hand. Or, at glove.



Yet, the title always remained just out of his reach. Still, he kept going despite the discouragement, feeling his break ultimately would come. It came, he was ready, but somehow it was too close to belong to him.

He fought some of the best: Ralph "Tiger" Jones, familiar to television audiences in the 1950s and 60s; Tony Dupas of the famous New Orleans fighting family; Chico Vejar; Al Andrews; Florentino Fernandez; Joey Giambra, who many called an uncrowned champion, and Denny Moyer, who through his cleverness remained in the game after many were retired. Out of all these bouts, DeNucci was stopped only once—by Fernandez, a noted destroyer who ruled supreme at one time among the one-punch knockout artists.

"The scale was always my toughest opponent and it was especially true in the Fernandez bout," he said. "Although Fernandez was a hard puncher, I felt making the 160-pound weight limit was worse than what he threw at me."

It was to be the only time in 85 bouts—of which he lost only 12—that DeNucci was on the ring canvas. Many of the fights were on national television. In appraising his opponents, DeNucci says that Giambra, often regarded as more of a boxer than puncher, hit him with the hardest blow in a bout won by DeNucci. When he defeated "Tiger" Jones, DeNucci felt he had a peak night and could have beaten anyone.

Somewhere in here are the untold hours spent at the New Garden Gym on Friend Street, near the Boston Garden, learning his trade: skipping rope, hitting a speed bag until a small pool of sweat formed beneath his feet; and the long morning runs where the solitude is symbolic of the true meaning of boxing—one man against another, stripped to the barest weapons, fists.

Giardello is considered the "most dangerous" by DeNucci who said he had to stay on top of the former champion to fare well. "I just didn't give him a chance to punch. I was seldom hit with a really solid punch anyhow," DeNucci, who possessed fairly good boxing skills for a puncher, said. "To last as long as I did you don't get hit squarely and expect to be around."

However, it was Griffith, to whom he lost two split decisions, that DeNucci attributes the crown of "most durable." And it is made with the sincerest respect because the seemingly ageless athlete was still fighting a year ago. As for the toughest, DeNucci recalls a man relatively unknown, except to New England fans—a boxer named Johnny Otto from Cape Cod.

"He had the toughest," DeNucci said while talking about the man who took punches he felt no one else could have stood up under. "I don't know how he stood up."

As to the biggest thrill—winning a big bout or an election—DeNucci said it is difficult to weigh the two. Once he was young and the elation of victory disappears quickly, recaptured with the next bout. Only in his 30s could he truly savor the fruits of his labors in politics. But there were some moments from boxing to treasure, moments he might have had in his youth, such as his comeback in 1971 when he picked up a dozen wins in recapturing some of the best ring movements of his career. Perhaps in this vein the boxer stands alone: in this belief that his skills have never depreciated, that he is still indestructible, that time has more or less stood still and he will survive as the eternal man.

On March 2, 1973, fighting Jean Claude Bouttier, the European Middleweight Champion in France, DeNucci suffered his second technical knockout due to cuts. The first had been to Vejar of television-and Chuck-Davey fame. When the Bouttier bout was halted at the end of the ninth round, there were only three minutes of boxing remaining.

On the flight back, DeNucci continued to mull everything over, to put his life into proper perspectives. He had to think about more than just himself and pride. Now there was his wife Barbara and four youngsters.

"I had done it all, fought the best, so I packed it in," he said.

Behind, DeNucci left a sterling record of courage and tenacity. Facing him was a bigger fight because it involved not just representing Joe DeNucci but a great many people. But he was ready for it. One of his first fights was to save the Boxers' Fund Board and the Boxer's Fund from annihilation by former Governor Michael Dukakis. The fund provides aid to destitute, handicapped or ill ex-boxers. Monies for the fund come from one per cent of the gross gate receipts at boxing events. The public pays no taxes into this fund.

It was only one fight. But there are dozens more being waged daily. To DeNucci, it's a new way of life and he wants it to stay. He's not looking to retire.

Discover the Caribbean with the ships that discovered the Caribbean.

The tall ships. Sleek sailing vessels out of another age. Ships which were the prized personal schooners of the millionaires Onassis, Vanderbilt and the Duke of Westminster.

Now, you can sail them through the mystical Caribbean. To well-known islands as Nassau, Antigua and St. Maarten. And to places the 12 story oceanliners never touch.

To magic islands with names like Saba, Carriacoi, Anegada. Bligh's breadfruit isle. Stevenson's Treasure Island. They are all here waiting to be discovered again. With unforgettable beaches, forgotten forts, hushed volcanoes, picturesque towns and our island friends.

Join us in your barefeet, bikinis, or shorts. Start off with your morning eye opening Bloody Mary or a hot steaming cup of coffee, and brace yourself for a day unlike any on earth. This is the sea.

A special place of rainbows, iridescent sunsets, living reefs, rainbow fish and pink and white sand beaches.

Break bread with a great bunch of guys and gals. Gorge yourself with hearty home cooked meals, washed down with evening wine.

Now comes the night at sea. The silence broken by the throb of steel drums, merangue, calypso, reggae, all under an exotic Caribbean moon.

This is a Windjammer adventure like no other on earth. Join our voyage for 6 or 14 glorious, uncomplicated days aboard the tall ships. You can share for only $400. Send the coupon for your free 'Great Adventure' booklet.

BOXING'S POWERS-THAT-BE

A WHO'S WHO TO WHO IS DOING WHAT TO WHOM

THOSE WHO POSSESS IT DON'T HAVE TO be told. Some possess it more than others and some think they have it more than they actually do. To some, it is such an intoxication that it makes them drunk. To others, it is a burden they shoulder uneasily.

It supposedly corrupts and, if it is absolute; it supposedly corrupts—absolutely.

Call it "juice" when you're in Las Vegas. In Washington, those who had the "ways and means" are headed back to peanut farms and gas stations. Many of those who have it are soft-spoken and far from famous. When you've got clout, you don't have to shout. All E.F. Hutton has to do is whisper.

When they asked Muhammad Ali, a proud black man, why he had a white interface like Angelo Dundee working on his behalf, Ali replied in rhyme: "You need the connection and the complexion to get the proper affection." Oh, does Dundee get affection.

It is power. It is influence. And, like the ocean, it has shifting tides. Today's In Crowd may be tomorrow's Out Group. There is an Old Guard and a hungry pack of Young Lions. They are the captains of the boxing industry. They are the Powers That Be and if they were all invited to the same party, the guest list would read like this:

TV AND OTHER MEDIA

ALEX WALLAU, 36, ABC—Wallau is ABC's knowledgeable—and/or "official"—boxing maven, has more sources than Woodward and Bernstein, and Don King has his picture on a dartboard because Wallau vaulted to his present position by blowing the whistle on the U.S. Boxing Championships. Wallau doesn't hold the purse strings, Charley Lavery is above him, below Roone Arledge, but Wallau is a man on the move. "He carries a lot of weight," an insider said. "He makes recommendations on which fights to buy."

MORT SHARNIK, 51, CBS—When the ex-magazine writer started, he didn't know Larry Holmes from Sherlock, or even Ernie, Holmes. Had a lot of room for improvement. But he has improved. Said to rely less and less on Gil Clancy's obviously less-than-impartial advice. Give Sharnik some money and he'll go out and do some smart shopping.

DR. FERDIE PACHECO, 52, NBC—What made Ferdie famous was being Ali's physician. Was quick to acquire young talents like Tony Ayala, Alex Ramos, et. al. Pacheco must be economical, though, because NBC is still reeling from its loss of the Moscow Olympics. The Doctah places himself in questionable position when he approves matches and then goes on air to pat himself and NBC on the back with such cliches as "crossroad fights." NBC may find itself developing talent which jumps to the two others because of budgetary limitations.

SETH ABRAHAM, 33, HBO—The networks losing title bouts to cable outfit? HBO and other cable companies look like the New Wave. HBO isn't serious enough yet to hire a full-time boxing consultant but purchases such as the recent Hagler-Obelmejias—part of a one-million, three-fight package—prove that they have pushed their proverbial camel's nose into the market-tent.

HOWARD COSELL, 61, ABC—Cosell should have points in Sugar Ray Leonard. He not only fashioned the legend but also recommended him to ABC and all Ray had to do was keep winning. Howard is The opinion-maker and the general public takes him at his words, words and more words. It is better to have him make you a hero than to knock you.

BY MIKE MARLEY

CHET SIMMONS, 52, ESPN—While they are hardly top quality bouts, the all-sports, 24-hour-a-day-operation, headed by the ex-NBC Sports boss, is spending quite a few bucks for Bob Arum's weekly shows, club fights on cable. Simmons, who was too heavyweight-conscious while at NBC, appears to want to expand programming. And any fight card is better than 73 million viewers on 1300 affiliates—the Andy Granatelli Vocational-East Cupcake Teachers women's volleyball game, especially at 3 a.m.

BERT SUGAR, 44, THE RING—In many parts of the world, The Ring was always to boxing what Austen's Peerage was to British nobility. Sugar has contempt for WBC and WBA ratings, but networks use them as weak imprimatur. "The Hat" revived a faded beauty, but still the stigmata of past administrations lingers like Watergate.

MALCOLM (FLASH) GORDON, 32, TONIGHT'S BOXING PROGRAM—Could've been boxing's Ralph Nader but doesn't even pretend to be a reporter. Instead, is viewed by many as an anti-hero. His is a scandal sheet short on facts and long on fantasy. Read only by insiders who giggle as long as it's not their ox that is being gored. Doesn't make reputations, but can damage them. Monastic life may have made him madder than Rasputin. He wrote that Don King is—or has been—a CIA operative, for instance. Was DK supposed to have provided air cover for Cuba?

PROMOTERS-MANAGERS-TRAINERS

HAROLD SMITH, 37, MAPS—The ex-Daddy Warbucks of the fistic scene, Smith once headed a rock concert group called Do Something Productions. What he and MAPS once did was to blow money and acquire champions, lining up some eight or nine, mostly WBA variety. His megabux may have come from his wife's family or from his

Monopoly set. Who knows? The only people interested now are the F.B.I., the Wells Fargo Bank and eight fighters he stiffed by taking it on the lam with $21.5 million in boxing's sting of stings.

DON KING, 49, DKP—Don bought a $50,000 white mink coat to shield him from the winter winds but the chill of an FBI investigation still swirls around the ex-con. Could tumble if Smith and Arum use tag team tactics. His biggest weakness is trying to do it all himself. Don't be shocked if he bows out of boxing when his champ, Larry Holmes, does.

BOB ARUM, 49, TOP RANK—Has best matchmaker (Teddy Brenner) and best right-hand in the business in TV-foreign rights whiz Mike Malitz. Arum is using ESPN series as a farm club for developing future champs like Ayala on cable TV. Arum's strength ebbs and flows, but he always makes money.

MIKE TRAINER, 40, SRL, INC.—Ray Leonard's lawyer. Wears plaid golf pants and no socks but is a shrewd negotiator who thinks his man's opponents should receive what's coming to them—little. He walks alone and controls boxing game's hottest commodity. Both Leonard and his best man, Janks Morton, are satisfied with Trainer's efforts. If someone was caught selling unauthorized Sugar Ray T-Shirt, Trainer would probably advocate no less than the death penalty.

BUTCH LEWIS, 38, BLP—Has two highly-touted draft choices in Greg Page and Michael Spinks. Will dance on tables to make a point. Dressed the part and watches for openings. His time is coming.

MICKEY DUFF, 50—Another hard-bargainer. Works in tandem with Jimmy Jacobs, who is one of the brightest minds around. Promotes world champs Maurice Hope and Jim Watt. Travels the world making one deal after another. Isn't choosy about his partners; but what slick businessman is?

EMANUEL STEWARD, 36—Detroit's boxing assembly-line is the Kronk Center and Steward is the foreman who produced world champions Thomas Hearns and Hilmer Kenty. Steward worked for the city and built up bankroll renovating slum housing. Constructs fighters as well as buildings. Some call him Godfather because he drives both a gold Cadillac and a gold Mercedes. He and Hearns are headed for a huge Leonard bout—probably next year—unless they go after Hagler first.

MIKE JONES, 45, AND DENNIS RAPPAPORT, 35—They don't like their "Whacko Twins" tag, but they have driven old-time fight figures nuts. Combined record for all their fighters—Gerry Cooney, Howard Davis, Ronnie Harris, et. al—150-7 as of February 1. Smart enough to have Victor Valle as their trainer and street-smart Johnny Bos as their adviser. These two Long Island realtors may have the last laugh as they expand their stable and rack up some world titles.

SHELLY FINKEL, 36—Like Smith, he was rock and roll entrepreneur. Part of the New Breed of well-heeled managers who are driving old nickel-and-dimers out of game.

LOU DUVA, 58, AND DANNY DUVA, 29—New Jersey's father-son combination is ideal. Dad is boxing veteran and son is a lawyer and fight fanatic. Complete family operation with Danny's wife, Kathy, hustling as P.R. person. Tied up with Arum, Finkel and others in "Tomorrow's Champion's" concept. They run America's most prosperous local club in the form of an ice skating rink.

PEPE CORDERO, 36—Whatever Puerto Rico's Pepe wants, the WBA seems to go along with. See Rodrigo Sanchez and Dr. Elias Cordova. Watch Pepe make them dance. Pepe, who is built along the lines of Bruno Sammartino, is smart enough to let his lawyer wife, Rosa, handle both business and legal affairs. What Pepe, whose background is insurance, does is "move" the right people. He delivered Pipino Cuevas for the Thomas Hearns fight. Has promoted six world champs.

RODOLFO SABBATINI, 53, AND UMBERTO BRANCHINI, 65—Now that's Italian! The frog-voiced Sabbatini was a humble sports writer before getting into the promotion end in 1965. He does the promoting and Branchini, who is based in Milan, manages Italy's best boxers.

MOGENS PALLE, 46—Don't tell Palle—now handling WBA junior middleweight champion Ayub Kalule—that something is rotten in Denmark. Copenhagen-based Palle found great pipeline in Uganda—Kalule, Mustapha Wassaja, etc. The 20-year vet has promoted about 10 world title bouts and 50, or so, European championship bouts. Once co-promoted the Ingemar Johansson.

BILL DALY, 83—Often seen whispering in King's ear. Honest William, as he has been unaffectionately known, now bosses WBC cruiserweight champ Carlos DeLeon. Daly's heyday has passed, but he still can stick-and-move with anyone. Has lived in Puerto Rico several years, but still his Spanish is minimal. His language is that of the backroom.

ANGELO DUNDEE—No more Mr. Nice Guy? Never happen. Angie, who has sights set on handling his 10th champion, is boxing's Dale Carnegie. Has won friends and influenced people everywhere. Cynical sports writers are silly putty in Angie's hands. He could do P.R. work for the Ayatollah. One of the last honor grads of Stillman's University.

LOU FALCIGNO, 42, AND JOE GAGLIARDI, 42—New Yorker Falcigno, whose background is in Rock promotion (sound familiar?), and Gagliardi, a San Jose insurance company owner, have made serious money on several recent closed circuit hookups. On first Leonard-Duran fight they divided the country at the Mississippi River. Gagliardi is especially close to King.

LOPE SARREAL, SR., 76, AND LOPE SARREAL, JR., 44—Another of the ancient but active promoters. Lope, whose son-in-law is ex-champ Flash Elorde, is known from Bangkok to Manila. His last world champ was Saensak Muangsurin—win, lose, or Thai.

RAFITO CEDENO, 48—Physically resembles Ed Sullivan's pal, Topo Gigio, the little Italian mouse. Some call him Rafito Bandito, but, in Caracas, he gets a lotta respect. He steered Fulgencio Obelmejias to a title shot and WBC-WBA No. 1 ranking without meeting any of the many so-called contenders. Cedeno handles WBC super flyweight champ Rafael Orono. He is the man in Venezuela.

GEORGE KANTER—Off-and-on King associate. New York-based, Kanter can be counted on to deliver less-than-formidable U.S. based fighters to European promoters wishing to build up their current heroes. Never gives fighter a long count on their purses.

POL TGLAO, 48—Based in Los Angeles, Tglao was a lawyer in his native Phillipines. Was a legal adviser to late George Parnassus. Books fighters into various parts of the Orient.

KYU-CHUL KIM—Head of Wonjin Promotions. Had ex-flyweight champ Tae-Shik Kim. South Korea has had ring resurgence, as evidenced by eight title bouts held there last year—third only to U.S. and Japan. The Seoul Brothers are now trying to land a title chance for middleweight Chong-Pal Park.

TITO LECTOURE—Evita had power in Argentina, but what did the Perons know about boxing? Tito runs shows once a week at Luna Park in Buenos Aires and fighters flock to him from all over the country. Do the names Monzon, Galindez and Corro ring any bells?

REGGIE ICHINOSE—Yes, he is related to Hawaii's Sad Sam Ichinose. In Japan, TV outfits—TV Asahi, Nippon TV, TBS, etc—are actually the promoters of bouts. Ichinose handles live gate and even manages some fighters. Also prominent since 1921 is the Teikin Boxing Club, headed by Akira Honda St.—presumably of the Honda Hondas.

PAUL GUEZ, 36—Oooh, la, la, does this jeans manufacturer want to toss some of his money around boxing. He'd like to promote Gerry Cooney fights should the big Irishman become heavyweight champ. Most East Coast fighters are being paid pocket change and given clothes to wear the Sasson name on their trunks and robes.

ABE KATZENNELSON,—What's a nice Jewish fellow like him doing in Sao Paulo, Brazil? Managing fighters, of course! Honest Abe was last seen in the U.S. with Marcelo Quinones, a Peruvian. He had an ex-light heavyweight contender named Mauro Mina.

HENK RUHLING,—Holland isn't exactly dominating the world ratings but, when a Dutch treat comes along, Ruhling is the man behind him. And who can forget Ruhling, with an assist from Kanter, giving the world the Lion of Flanders, Jean-Pierre Coopman? He's the Belgian who was waffled by Ali.

RAFAEL MENDOZA,—Ex-sportswriter, Mendoza is an agent for Pipino Cuevas, among others, In fact, he wrote a book on Pipino Cuevas. Works with Mexico's top managers and trainers, such as Lupe Sanchez, etc.

OFFICIALS

JOSE SULAIMAN, WBC—Is he the president for life? Bob Arum once labeled him a "fat Mexican dictator," but Sulaiman is generally regarded as a well-intentioned, but incredibly naive man who is thrilled by his minor celebrity status. The WBA makes both him and the WBC look good by comparison. Sulaiman handles his group's 1-10 ranking and those are the guys who get to the big money. Sulaiman could be more effective if his feelings weren't bruised so easily.

DR. ELIAS CORDOVA AND RODRIGO SANCHEZ, WBA—They run the WBA out of Panama. Cordova, chairman of ratings committee now, is apparently el jefe (boss) even though Sanchez is the president. WBA's Latin bent is strong and the group has about half as many member nations as the 100-or-so-member WBC. The WBC has rules and regulations it bends like so much silly putty but the WBA seems to operate by the golden rule—they let whoever has the gold make the rule. South African apartheid bothers these two not at all.

BOB BUSSE, WBC—He runs commission in state of Texas and has handled the 1/1-20 WBC ratings. Most influential American in organization unless Nevada's Duke Durden has overtaken him. Also big in NABF.

RAY CLARKE, GREAT BRITAIN—He is executive secretary of British Boxing Board of Control. Britain is now member of both the WBC and WBA.

COL. HASSINE HAMOUDA AND DR. JOSEPH FOFE—Hamouda is Paris-based but perhaps he gets African fighters—or, at least, the ones who haven't moved to Copenhagen—into the WBC rankings. Fofe is from Cameroon. They may become more important as black Africa continues in predicted boxing revival.

This list is, unavoidably, incomplete. For that, there is no apology here because in the shadows of boxing there lurk a lot of powerful people. Some of them use "fronts" and others are never seen at ringside, in the gyms or in the known power brokers' offices. And there are, I'm sure, powers That Be in other places which aren't included here or haven't yet been discovered.

But, of the 91 world title bouts held in 1980, 77 took place in five nations—the U.S. (46), Japan (13), South Korea (8), Great Britain (4) and Venezuela (6). So you can look for the power there. Did you notice Mexico had zero title bouts and Panama just one? Yet the world of boxing is governed by Mexicans and Panamanians.

But, the tides are shifting even now. Next year's guest list will not be identical. We can assure you of that!

THE RING MAGAZINE INDEX FEBRUARY 1980—JANUARY 1981

COMPILED BY RICHARD L. GROUP

LIKE ALL GOOD SHIPS, THE RING HAS KEPT A LOG. WE PRESENT THE RING INDEX, A GUIDE to all the stories, fight reports and other morsels published in "The Bible of Boxing" from February 1980 through January, 1981.

The uninitiated may wonder at the designation "Volume 59." Copies of The Ring are preserved —for better or worse—in leather binders that hold twelve issues (a year) apiece. Since the first issue of The Ring was designated February, 1922, each "volume" begins with February and ends with January.

And so it is with fondness—and a few regrets—that we've compiled, for the first time in our memory, an index to a full year of The Ring. Volume 59 was, incidentally, the first full such "volume" under our new management. (When asked for a comment on the work that you see listed, one of The Ring staffers just said "Whew.")

It was a lot of work, but we think it was worth it. And, with the continued support of our readers, The Ring will continue to grow and provide the best and most complete coverage of boxing to be found in any publication.

If you have any articles you care to find, prepare to find them now. . .

INSIDE BOXING

IF YOU BELIEVE THAT MUHAMMAD ALI IS too old to box any more at the age of 38, what about Dr. Herbert D. Odom, Chicago welterweight, who is boxing at the age of 46? Odom can knock your teeth out in the evening and replace them at his office the next morning, for he is a dentist, and has been for the past 23 years. Herbert D. Odom, DDS, MBA, has built a successful private practice and is also a civic leader, university lecturer, banker, businessman, one-time campaign manager for politicians, a millionaire, and a grandfather! Yes, Dr. Odom is all of the above—and a professional boxer as well!

Last September, Odom boxed an exhibition with WBA welterweight king Tommy "Hit Man" Hearns, and is unbeaten since returning to the ring. Dr. Odom boxed in college in 1951, deserted the fight beat to pursue his profession, and then in 1979 returned to the dust and resin of the ring. He is in excellent condition, and when he went back to the gym in 1978 he was tested twice for his boxing license by the Illinois State Athletic Commission. They could not believe a man at 46 would want to fight, let alone be in condition, or have the ability to. Needless to say, Dr. Herbert D. Odom convinced them on every score.

Dave Jacobs is "out" once again as trainer for Sugar Ray Leonard, WBC welterweight king. Jacobs and Leonard have been "tiffing" since Ray joined the punch for pay ranks. Dave wanted more say in the opponents Ray faced and did not agree with Angelo Dundee and Mike Trainer when they took the return match with Roberto Duran without a tuneup. As things turned out, Angelo and Mike were right, Duran didn't make much of a fight of it. Jacobs' grooming role is now being provided by Janks Morton, a former professional football and softball player, who has been an assistant trainer and the fighter's closest confidant since Leonard turned pro following his Olympic triumph in the 1976 Games at Montreal.

Said Earnie Shavers recently, "I don't really like boxing, but it has been good to me financially, so I'll stick with it as long as I can get a pay day." Now his mentor, Frank Luca, offered Muhammad Ali a whopping one million dollars to box Shavers, site to be selected if Muhammad accepts. Where does Luca figure he's going to get the suckers to pay to see this battle of the aged? In boxing they call a financial backer an angel. Luca will certainly need an "angel" to back this one! Both of these shopworn heavyweights are close to receiving their old age benefits, that is, if there are any left the way the money is being spent in Washington.

Philadelphia's Joe Gramby—veteran boxing manager who handles the ring destiny of Randy "Tex" Cobb—is not disappointed with Cobb's recent loss to ringwise veteran Ken Norton. Gramby figures Cobb will be back. After all, he's young, strong and he learned from the 10-round loss, which was mighty close at that . . . As for Norton, 35 pushing 40, he is pretty well set financially, but he just couldn't resist the "big money" around boxing today. When you can pick up ½ million dollars fighting non-entities, you cannot blame Norton for making his decision on a comeback.

Didjaknow that Jersey Joe Walcott, chairman of the New Jersey State Athletic Commission is now 69 years old? . . . Ike Williams, who reigned as lightweight champ from 1946-1951, is now 57 years old. Williams won the NBA title from Juan Zurita, April 18th, 1946 and the world title from Bob Montgomery, August 4, 1947 in Philadelphia. He lost the title to Jimmy Carter—no relation to the former president on May 25, 1951, via a kayo in the 14th round in New York City . . . Lou Brouillard, former welter and middleweight champ, will hit the 70-year mark on May 23, 1981. Lou resides in Halifax, Mass. with his wife Minnie. They have six children and nineteen grandchildren. Minnie is the daughter of the late Joe Beston, who operated a gym in Quincy, Mass., where Brouillard used to train, and where he met Minnie . . .

Ernie Fliegel was in San Francisco to attend the testimonial dinner for Pat Valentino, the veteran heavyweight who boxed the late Ezzard Charles for the heavyweight title on October 14th, 1949. Fliegel managed such ring greats as King Tut and Frankie Battaglia. Ernie is out of Minneapolis and made the trip to honor Valentino and spend some time with old boxing friends, namely Joe Herman, former co-owner of the famous Newman-Herman Gym in that city. The dinner was staged by the Northern California Veteran Boxers Association.

See you next month.

Keep Punching . . .

THE MAN WHO NEVER WAS BRIBED

(THIS WAS WRITTEN AFTER ROCKY Graziano stirred up a bobbery in fight circles by not mentioning not taking a hundred-thousand-dollar bribe before not throwing a fight that was not held.)

There was some difficulty getting into the quarters of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club because an armored car blocked the entrance and workmen were shoveling the weekly consignment of bribe money down a coal chute. However, at the risk of being brained by a carelessly flung bag of gold, it proved possible to climb the stairs, picking a path through neat stacks of crisp green banknotes.

A horde of Mysterious Strangers jammed the outer office, all slick, dapper, ingratiating, furtive, and smooth-talking, and each carrying a bulging black satchel. It was a relief to escape into the cell of Walter St. Denis, which was occupied only by; Walter, Dumb Dan Morgan, and Tex Sullivan.

". . . All gamblers," Walter was saying. "Get on a race train any day and what do you see? Bankers, Supreme Court judges, clergymen . . ."

"And what do they ask you?" Dan Morgan said "They say: 'Do you know anything?"

Walter lit a cigar with a thousand-dollar bill and said: "You ought to talk to Tex here. He's got a fighter nobody ever offered a fifty-cent bribe to. Hey, Tex, come away from that window and quit clowning."

Tex was amusing himself tossing emeralds to urchins in the street. He flung out a last handful and closed the window.

"Take it easy, Walter," he said. "These ain't even square-cut."

"Who is this freak of yours?"

"My tiger?" Tex said. "Oh, he's just a little old middleweight I picked up in the Waldorf."

He swept a heap of old, soiled diamonds off a chair and sat down.

"His name," he said "is Irish Pete Mead, and it's funny you should ask about him because by a coincidence he is fighting Harold Green in the Garden this week. But since you did ask, I might mention that I do not claim he is the greatest fighter in the world. Only just as good as anybody is all."

"Rocky Graziano ran out on him," Walter said. "Wouldn't take a match with Mead."

"Which was all right with me," Tex said. "Incidentally, since you press me for every last intimate detail about this tiger, the fact is I did pick him up in the Waldorf. It was like this:

"Pete is a long, skinny farmer jake from the town of Trumann, Arkansas. Well, when he was maybe fifteen years old there's a guy in Grand Rapids, Michigan, name of J.C. Miller, a manufacturer with a lot of rocks that's got no kids and is interested in taking on a good boy sort of as a kind of protege. He's interested in athletes and a friend in Trumann puts him onto this kid, who is boxing in the gym there, and this Miller wanted to take the kid up to Grand Rapids.

"The kid's parents weren't so hot for the idea, so this Miller took the whole family up to Grand Rapids for a while. When they went back home the kid went with them for a visit, and like everybody else in Arkansas he got married before he was sixteen. So this Miller built him a house on his estate and gave him a job in his manufacturing plant and finally he started this kid fighting in the amateurs. He hired Wesley Ramey, the old Grand Rapids fighter, to teach Pete.

"Well, the kid went into the pros and had maybe three, four fights before he went in the service, but he didn't like fighting much. In the service, though — he was in the Medical Corps and went overseas — why, he had some service bouts in England and Belgium, and when he came back he told this J.C. Miller he now likes fighting.

"Well, this Miller says, if that's how it is , he better get him a manager. So this Miller gets a hold of his friend, the Michigan boxing commissioner in Detroit, and he sends 'em on to me. I met Miller and the kid in the Waldorf, and that's where we make the deal.

"We make eleven fights since then, and Pete wins 'em all, including Sonny Horne and those kind of guys, except one bout with Herbie Kronowitz, and he beats Kronowitz back in the return match. He is a fair puncher with a good left hand."

"A good right hand," Walter St. Denis said, picking his teeth with a platinum ingot.

"A good stand-up boxer," Dumb Dan Morgan said. "Old-style Irish fighter like you don't see any more. A very good angle on him is he eats McCann's Irish oatmeal every morning for breakfast, which is imported from Ireland. Greatest thing for energy there is; I eat it every day myself, and look at me."

"That's confidential," Tex said. "Don't want to queer him with the Battle Creek fans. Look, this Miller that's got this estate about half the size of Central Park, why, he's bringing all the sports writers on from Grand Rapids, along with the kid's family, of course.

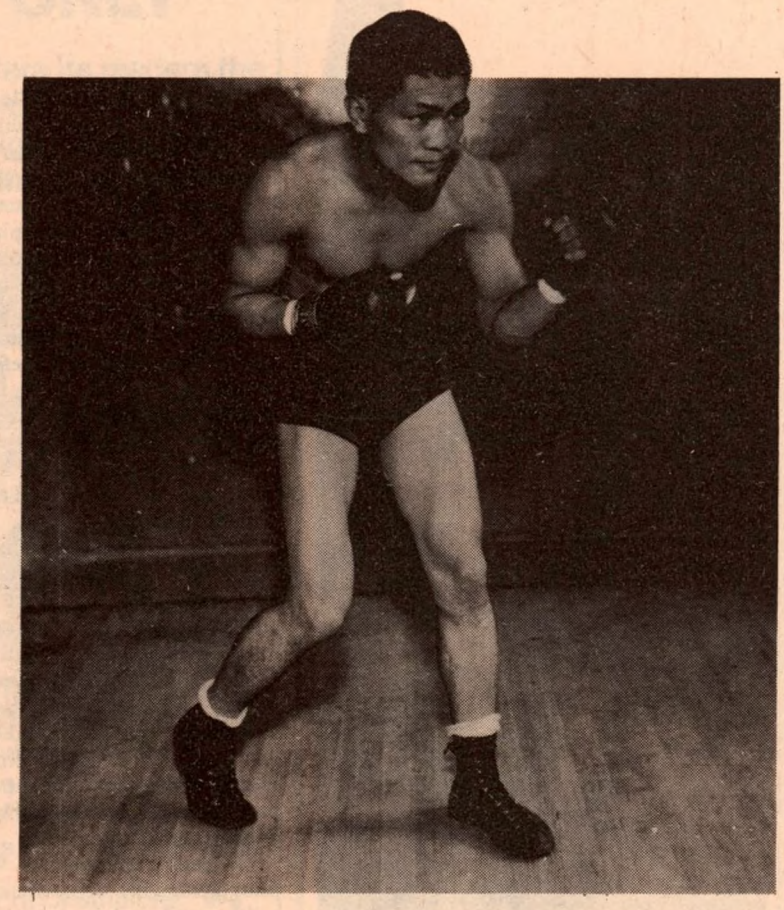
"Pete's got two kids now, and his boy wears long pants, and when we boxed Fritzie Zivic in the civic center in Grand Rapids, why, Pete's little boy and Pete's father kept running up and down the ring steps so much I couldn't hardly get in the corner between rounds."

Three generations in one corner," Dan Morgan began, "reminds me—"

A burst of laughter from outside interrupted him. Down the corridor, loud and derisive, came Lew Burston's voice:

"Listen to him! A lousy ninety-nine thousand dollars, he says! Why, the cheap, chiseling, cut-rate slob!"

LAST ROUND



CEFERINO GARCIA

He helped his father to cut sugar cane, swinging the sickle-like bolo knife like a fighter tossing a punch.

Years later, after Ceferino Garcia had become a fighter, his manager George Parnassus, coined the expression "bolo punch" to describe the right hand uppercut Garcia learned to throw while cutting sugar cane. The expression stuck; so did the fighter.

Most fighters from the Philippines are little men—flyweights, bantamweights, and feathers. Not so Ceferino, a member of the Tagalog tribe. (The smaller men are from the Visayan.) He was born in Manila on August 26, 1910, according to available records, but some said that he was older when he died last January 2nd, 1981.

The Ring Record Book tells the basic story of Garcia's career: 122 bouts, with 62 kayoes, 26 wins on points, nine draws, 19 losses by decision, one loss by disqualification, and five defeats via stoppage. But those totals don't include perhaps 100 more fights in the Philippines from 1925 through 1931, before Ceferino left his native land to go to the United States under the management of Jess Cortez.

Garcia, known as "the Welterweight Champion of the Orient," let his new-found earnings take him to good times—away from training sessions—during his first year in the U.S. Garcia also had a tendency to cut. After a few losses—including two to Freddie Steele, both times in two rounds—Cortez told Ceferino "Baalan Na," two words that mean "good-bye" in any language.

Enter George Parnassus, whose ace meal ticket, Mexican Alfredo Gaona, had been knocked out by Garcia in the latter's U.S. debut. Ceferino, at this time, was being urged by letters from friends to come back home. He was undecided. And then George, the Golden Greek, stepped in.

Parnassus operated like one of the monsoons that habitually wracks the Phillipine Shores. He bought Garcia's contract, straightened out his money problems, and put him under a strict training program. It paid off, but only after four more years of struggle.

Ceferino won a good 80% of his fights in that period, and was never to be stopped again after Young Peter Jackson took him out in three rounds on April 10, 1934. Parnassus maneuvered well, and a 15-round draw with Izzy Janazzo in Madison Square Garden on October 30, 1936 cemented Garcia's position as a top contender.

Two great title efforts followed—against welterweight kings Barney Ross on September 23, 1937 and Henry Armstrong on November 25, 1938. Both times, Garcia lost by a close decision in hard-fought bouts. He kept on fighting—and winning. Nine more wins after his loss to Armstrong (including kayoes over Lloyd Marshall and Bobby Pacho), put him in the ring with Fred Apostoli in the Garden for the latter's world middleweight title.

Garcia was really a welterweight—he got up to 153¾ for Apostoli—but achieved immortality on the night of October 2, 1939, when he beat Apostoli for the middleweight title. For six rounds, it was a contest. In the seventh, Ceferino charged out like a wild man, raining punches on the man from San Francisco and dropping him for counts of two, nine, and two. At that point, Apostoli knelt in helplessness, and referee Billy Cavanaugh stopped the bout.

Garcia made two successful defenses of his 160-pound crown, which was not, incidentally, recognized by the National Boxing Association. He halted Glen Lee in the 13th in Manila and then fought a 10-round draw against Henry Armstrong in Los Angeles. Most observers thought Armstrong had won, but referee George Blake said he had taken two rounds away from "Hammerin' Hank" because of "foul tactics."

Ceferino lost his title to Ken Overlin nine weeks later. The Manila bolo puncher was well into his 30s—regardless of who was keeping score—and his boxing life was drawing to a close. Parnassus made him pack it in after a young Jackie Wilson beat him soundly over 10 rounds on February 24, 1942. A comeback bid some three years later ended with Garcia winning three fights (including a 10-rounder over Kid Azteca), and losing to Wild Bill McDowell.

It was another great welter, Kid Gavilan, who brought the "bolo punch" to fame, courtesy of the television era. But older fight fans recall the days of Ceferino, greatest of the Oriental "big men" and originator of the punch that carried him to fame—and the middleweight title.
